9-MILE ROAD PROGRAM TO BE AWARDED

Contracts for State Aid Highway for Allen-co Planned

BIDS ON MARCH 20-27

Federal Inspector Here Saturday to View Proposed Routes

Contracts for approximately nine miles of state roads to be constructed in Allen-co in 1932 will be let at the office of the state highway department in Columbus, March 20 and 27.
Walter Toy, county surveyor, announced Saturday.

A number of local contractors are to bid on the work.

ROUTES PLANNED

The roads to be let March will include:

Inter-county highway No. 496, 1.05 miles, known as the Waynesfield-rd.
Inter-county high No. 127, 4.41
miles, the Elida-rd.

March 27, contract for building a 2.50 mile section of the Dixie Highway thru Beaverdam will be awarded.
Letting for the Elida-rd was cancelled two weeks ago when it was discovered that it had not been properly advertised. Since then it has been re-advertised and will be let, along with the Waynesfield-rd.

Plans for an additional three-quarters of a mile of paving within the corporate limits of Elida and Bluffton are not yet approved for federal aid. They are in the Federal office at Columbus.

VILLAGE PAVING

About one-half mile of the paving is in Elida and the remainder is in Bluffton.

Approved within a week were given Surveyor Toy Saturday by J. G. Mc-Kelvey, Columbus, federal inspector, who was in Allen-co looking over the roads to be improved this year.
He was accompanied on a tour of inspection over the county by George Clements, district engineer for the state highway department.

Allen-co is to build 35 miles of permanent state aid road this year.
Plans for other roads to be included in the 19 mile program are partially approved.

Plans for continuation of No. 127 between Delphos and Elida are in the office of the state highway department at Columbus. Plans for the Dixie Highway south of Lima, the Harding Highway and Inter-county Highway No. 132 between Lima and Spencerville, are under consideration by the division engineer.

COUNTY TO GET $118,500

Joe Hartline, chairman of the Allen-co road council learned at Columbus that Allen-co will receive $118,500 inter-county highway money from the state this year. Part of the money has been due for the past three years. It was not used, because the roads were not built.
From the federal government a sum totaling $412,250 will be spent on roads.

"I believe every inch of highway planned for this year will be built," Hartline said. "Surveyor Toy is rushing things along. If possible, however, the commissioners and prosecutor should sell bonds to pay the county's proportion before the roads are let. Other counties are doing it."

Investigation of delays in getting the 1922 road building program under way will be made at a meeting of the Allen-co road council called for Monday night.

ROAD MEETING MONDAY

City, county and state officials will be heard from. The trustees of every township in the county have been invited to be present.

A two reel moving picture showing various types of hard roads will be shown and woven into an interesting story by an expert road builder.

County commissioners, Surveyor Toy and George Clements, district engineer will be the principal speakers.

ARBuckle WILL GO ON TRIAL AGAIN MONDAY

SAN FRANCISCO—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle was packing his blue norfolk suit into his trunk in Los Angeles Saturday night and storing away, pending return, his $25,000 motor car, preparatory to coming to San Francisco Sunday for this third trial on a manslaughter charge.

Monday morning the big comedian will appear before Superior Judge Harold Lauderback once more, to fight for exoneration of the charge that he caused the death of Virginia
Rappe, movie comedy star on Labor Day when he gave a party at a fashionable hotel here.

LIFE SAVINGS TAKEN

NEW YORK—Two young bandits
Saturday night entered the harness shop of William Hamilton, 73 years old, and robbed him of more than $4,000, his life savings.

Death Secret Buried With Circus Owner?

Slain Jersey Man Believed
Informed as to W. D.
Taylor's Murder

CAMDEN, N. J.—A theory that "Honest John" Brunen, proprietor of the Doris-Ferrari Circus, who was murdered at Riverside, N. J., Friday, knew the secret of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, California moving picture director, was held by detectives on the case Saturday.

Brunen was known to be a friend of Taylor, whom he had met in the course of his 25 years' experience in the show business.

He was known also to have been the object of close surveillance for a time preceding his murder. A few hours before his brains were scattered by a heavy charge from a shot gun, fired at close range thru the kitchen window of his home, he had run a close motor car race with unnamed parties from Riverton to his home. He was on his way from Williamsport, Pa.

He passed this incident off with a laugh. Yet, a few minutes later when his wife, drawn from the second floor by the shot that killed her husband, passed the front windows of the house, she saw two men run past, the place and jump hurriedly into a car that made off in the darkness. She was unable to describe them when questioned by detectives.

WOMAN IN CASE

The footprints of a man were found outside a window thru which the shot was fired. They led to an open field, where the shotgun cartridge was discovered and part of the gun stock. The imprints were lost a short distance from the road that leads into this city.

A mysterious blonde woman, said to have once been friendly with William Desmond Taylor, was brought into the case when detectives learned she returned to her home late Friday night with a man suspected of the Brunen murder. Both seemed excited.

Another woman, modishly attired in sport clothes, lingered in the vicinity of the blonde's home the greater part of Saturday. She seemed to be watching for some one to emerge.

OHIO GIRL SHOT

Georgetown Child Wounded in Fight Over Board Bill.

CADIZ — Mary Zornicka, 14, was shot in the face Saturday night, following a quarrel between three men at her mother's home in Georgetown, seven miles from Cadiz, according to reports to the sheriff's office here.

Her condition was reported critical and physicians do not believe she will live.

According to police, Carl Krisko went to the Zornicka home, where he had been boarding, to secure some clothes. He was accompanied by Harry Sleska and a man named Conrad, authorities stated.

A fight followed over payment of a board bill. Mary ordered the men to leave. Police declared Conrad whipped out a gun and shot her. Officers said.

A posse, headed by Sheriff Martin, was scouring the woods late Saturday for Conrad.

The other two men were held in jail.

WILL SUE PAPERS

Prince Eitel Claims Lies Published of Divorce Case

BERLIN.—Prince Eitel, second son of the former Kaiser, is preparing to bring legal action against newspapers which printed accounts of the divorce suit brought by Baroness Platenberg against her husband, and a friend of Prince Eitel.

The prince is preparing to visit the ex-kaiser and would make no comment on the case, but Count Ran-zau, twin brother of the former foreign minister, in the name of Prince Eitel made the following statement:

"The newspapers reporting the case lied and grossly exaggerated. It is true that Princess Eitel admitted relations with the Baroness Platenberg, but she was summoned as a witness,
not as a co-respondent.

"His royal highness has ordered legal actions against newspapers printing the false reports."

Great Insurrection In Africa
Threatens as Result of DEATH TOLL IS 30

Walkout In England, Irish and Indian Situations Also Serious

(BY ED L. KEEN)

LONDON—The British government Saturday night was confronted with its most serious combination of domestic and foreign difficulties since the war.

The week-end brought sudden intensification of trouble in India, the Transvaal, Ireland and at home, and it was considered certain that Lloyd George would be forced to curtail his holiday in Wales and hurry to the relief of his shaggy government.

At home a lockout of 300,000 machinists at noon Saturday threatens to add a million men to England's already tremendous army of the unemployed.

TRANSVAAL SITUATION

In the Transvaal, the roads are afire with fierce warfare between striking gold miners and the police.
Nearly 50 have been killed in what threatens to develop into open insurrection.

Grave fears are felt that the ability of General Smuts, premier of the Union of South Africa, to deal with the situation.

India is reported to be seething with scarcely repressed revolt following the arrest of Gandhi, its leader.

Secular warfare has broken out again in Ireland, intensified by murder of four members of the crown forces in Belfast.

To add to the government's difficulties, Edwin S. Montagu, whose resignation as secretary of state for India was demanded by Lloyd George following publication of the Indian government's demands in behalf of Turkey, Saturday launched forth in a bitter denunciation of the coalition government, its foreign policies and its treatment of himself.

GOVERNMENT PERPLEXED

Taken all in all, the British lion finds the tail which it was beginning to wag happily over better times, suddenly tied in a series of perplexing knots. Only those who remember the adeptness of this same lion since the empire was founded, could remain optimistic over the situation. The government had consistently managed to "muddle thru" its greatest difficulties.

AFRICAN LABOR WAR

JOHANNESBURG—The mine war that has blazed up over the Transvaal rands in the vicinity of Johannesburg Saturday night threatened to develop into open insurrection against the government.

The strikers were reported holding two towns, Brakpan and Benoni, following a battle in which 21 constables were killed, and to be threatening the capture of central Johannesburg.

Heavy casualties were reported on both sides as fierce fighting in the Forsburg and Jeppe districts
cut. The Union of South Africa government takes a most serious view of the situation. General Smuts has characterized it as "one of the gravest crises that ever has arisen in South Africa."

The government fears the mine war, which is a climax of a three months' strike at the gold mines, may grow into rebellion. Worse than this, it is said here Saturday night, would be a race war between white and blacks.

SITUATION IN INDIA

BOMBAY—At the M. K. Gandhi's last message to his followers before his arrest was to urge "no violence," the Indian government at Delhi is preparing for the worst.

Removal of the non-co-operation-ist leader from the scene of his "passive resistance" campaign against British rule may pave the way for more radical agitators among the natives, it was feared.

The arrest of Gandhi indicated to every one in India that the government has determined upon a vigorous policy of repression. It had been planned to wait until after the departure of the Prince of Wales next Friday, according to reports from Delhi, but events precipitated by the enforced resignation of Edwin S. Montagu, Indian secretary, who was popular with native leaders, caused immediate arrest of the "ma-hata" as Gandhi is called.

RACE BETTING FALLS OFF

PARIS.—The general tightening up of economic conditions in Europe has hit race track betting. The committee which takes the state's percentage of the receipts of the Pari-Mutuel betting machines at the tracks has reported that the 1921 takings were 24,500,000 francs, or a drop of about ten per cent over last year.

RICHEST MAN IN WORLD—IN THEORY

JUDGE J. R. WELSH

SAN JOSE, Cal.—Henry B. Stewart, proprietor of a small grain store here, is the richest man in the world—but he can't collect. There isn't enough money in the world to pay a judgment he received a few days ago against George J. Jones. The judgment granted by Judge J. R. Welsh is for $304,840,332.912.685.16—three hundred trillions. Stewart loaned $100 to Jones in 1897 with the understanding that interest at the rate of 10 per cent a month would be paid. It took experts long weary hours to figure it out when he sued the other day.

Cleanup Week April 1 to 7 As Aid in Fire Prevention Here

Lima to Unite With Other Cities of This State

EARL ROHN IS CHAIRMAN

C. C. and City Officials Unite in Campaign

'Cleanup week will be observed in Lima April 1 to 7.

Plans were formed Saturday by Chamber of Commerce and city officials following receipt of bulletin
from the Ohio State Fire Marshal's department, setting the date.

Preliminary conference resulted in the appointment of a city-wide committee representing clubs and civic organizations.

PLANS FAR-REACHING

It is planned to have the program outlined for the week touch all corners and classes in Lima.

Particular attention will be paid to the elimination of fire hazards.
Earl Rohn, member of the city commission was named general chairman of the committee to carry out the week's schedule.

Plans were formed Saturday by Chamber of Commerce and city officials following receipt of bulletin
from the Ohio State Fire Marshal's
department, setting the date.

Millions of dollars in property was destroyed in the state during 1921 by 535 fires, reported. Many of them were preventable. Some 2,793 were in dwellings.

"One person was killed every day and $140 worth of property destroyed by fire every minute during the year."

Miss Marietta Day, assistant to J.
Kennard Johnson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will act as secretary to the committee, of which City Manager C. A. Bingham and Johnson are to be ex-officio members.

P. Dawson, police department; Chief John Mack, fire department; E. F.
Stallsmith, boy scouts; Dr. Josephine Phibce, public welfare committee, and the Federation of Women's clubs.

Representatives for the Ministerial association, the Catholic Mistery and the public schools are to be appointed during the week.

CAN COPYRIGHT GOWNS

PARIS.—Madeleine Vionnet, well known dressmaker has won a suit in the Paris courts whereby two smaller dressmakers were fined 16,000 and 12,000 francs respectively for violating the copyright of the Vionnet models. The court decreed that "Women's gowns are works of art and as such are to be protected by copyright."

WEATHER

WASHINGTON—Weather predictions for the week, beginning Monday are:
Ohio Valley — Considerable cloudiness; occasional rains; normal temperature.

Region of Great Lakes—Normal temperature; considerable cloudiness; occasional rains or snows.

NIERENGARTEN GETS LIFE
TERM IN PEN FOR KILLING

Murderer of Scotty Kershaw Found Guilty In First Degree
by Jury After Long Deliberation—Mercy Recommendation Carried In Verdict

Lima Bellhop Unmoved as Foreman Announces Fate—
Sighs With Relief and Smiles as He Is Freed
From Strain Lasting Thruout Week

WAPAKONETA—(Staff Special)—Harold Nierengarten, confessed slayer of Joseph Scott Kershaw, must serve a life term in prison, without hope of pardon or parole.

A jury of nine men and three women so decided at 10:17 p. m., after deliberating 11 hours Saturday.

The jury returned a verdict of first degree murder, but recommended mercy, thus saving Nierengarten from going to the electric chair.

Nierengarten, who must spend the remainder of his days in prison, scarcely flinched at the words of the foreman. He heaved a sigh of relief as if he were glad it was all over. Later, when the handcuffs were slipped on his wrists and as he started to leave the court room, he smiled slightly.

It was plainly evident that he was relieved to know that he had escaped the death penalty for killing Kershaw in a box car on November 20, 1921, the penalty which the state asked in its final rebuttal Saturday morning.

Nierengarten did not utter a word as the verdict was read or while he was in the court room. Counsel for the former Lima bellboy will have three days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

Announcement that the jury had come to an agreement at 10:17 p. m. was entirely unexpected. Judge Joseph D. Barnes had left on the 10 p. m. car for his home in Sidney, believing that an agreement would not be reached and having notified Sheriff Bob Ewing to take the jury to the hotel at midnight.

JUDGE BARNES RUSHES BACK TO WAPAK TO RECEIVE JURY VERDICT

Just 17 minutes later, as the judge was speeding to Sidney, the jury came to an agreement. Efforts were made to stop the interurban car and have Judge Barnes start back to Wapakoneta in an automobile, but without avail. Mrs. Barnes, reached by telephone, said she would have an auto meet him in Sidney and rush the judge back to the court room.

Judge Barnes returned with his wife in an auto at 11:55 p.
m. Eight minutes later the jury filed in and the verdict was reported by A. H. Barber, of Salem-tp, the foreman.

It was understood that the first ballot taken was nine to three for conviction on a first degree murder charge. A second ballot shifted the vote to 10 to 2, with a recommendation of mercy. Dinner stopped further balloting.

Another ballot taken later was 11 for conviction and one against before the final agreement was reached.

The agreement was sudden, it is understood, as at 10 p. m.
the jury seemed hopelessly tangled.

The court room and rooms adjoining were filled with spectators who flocked in when it became known that the jury had reached an agreement.

VERDICT EXPECTED

It had been generally conceded in court circles that a verdict would not be reached Saturday night and the crowd of over 100 that had stayed up until 9:30 p. m. in the hope of hearing the result began to thin out. When Judge Barnes left shortly before 10 p. m. to board the car for Sidney, the court room was almost deserted of its crowd.

Previous to this Judge Barnes had stated that if an agreement was not reached by the jury by midnight he would order an adjournment until some time Monday morning. The jury would not consider the case on Sunday, he said, but the nine men and three women would be carefully guarded by Sheriff Bob Ewing, of Auglaize-co, to prevent their mingling with outsiders.

Arrangements had been made for the accommodation of the jury at a hotel and all plans had been laid with the idea in view that an agreement would not be reached Saturday night. The sudden announcement at 10:17 p. m. that an agreement had been reached was unexpected.

Very few rumors were circulated in the court room regarding just what was keeping the jury so long in arriving at a decision. It was conceded by court authorities that the real tangle lay in the fact that a few were holding out against a first degree murder verdict with a recommendation of mercy.

HOW WOMEN VOTED

One other report was to the effect that two of the three women on the jury were in favor of the death penalty, while the third was holding out. This, too, was only a rumor.

The jury began consideration of the case at 11:15 a. m. Saturday following the charge of the court which consumed about an hour's time. The jury started to get down to business and then it was decided that since the time approached so near the noon hour the 12 would be taken to lunch first.

Sheriff Bob Ewing was placed in charge of the jury and the men and women were taken to the Central restaurant for lunch.

Before leaving for lunch, Judge Barnes cautioned them against giving utterance to their opinions to any outsiders and impressed upon them that they must not talk to anyone save other members of the jury.

The jury returned from lunch at 12:25 p. m. From then until 6:50
p. m. they were in steady session.
At 5:50 p. m. they were again taken from the jury room to the restaurant, for dinner.

At 6:40 p. m. they again returned and were in session until 10:17 when it was announced that a verdict had been decided upon.

Mrs. Jeanne Kershaw, widow of the slain man, and P. A. Kershaw, the father, were not present when the announcement came. They left Saturday afternoon for Lima.

The Nierengarten family remained in Wapakoneta to be present if an agreement was reached. Miss Louise Nierengarten, a sister, Mrs. Lenore Frueh, another sister who resides in Detroit, and Leo, a brother, were in the party. Mrs. Nierengarten, the mother, has not been present at the proceedings since her collapse in court. Thursday, although her condition had improved since then.

PRISONER DOWN-HEARTED

Harold Nierengarten appeared more down-hearted and sullen Saturday afternoon than earlier in the week. It was very noticeable during the morning proceedings that he was extremely nervous. His hands twitched and he sat with his eyes closed while Prosecutor Timmermeister presented his rebuttal and later while Judge Barnes gave his charge to the jury. During the two days he sat with his eyes closed while the jury deliberated. He seemed fairly alert and gave close attention while the testimony was being heard. The change came on Friday and it became more marked toward the close of the trial.

At the jail, while the jury was in debate, he did not appear to have changed greatly, however, although his face was a worried study.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Upchurch, for the first time Saturday while Sheriff Ewing had charge of the jail at lunch, took the prisoner to the jail. Upchurch is about the same build as Nierengarten and he said that the accused man, laughingly, asked as they walked along:

"Well, which is the prisoner, you or me?"

The crowd Saturday afternoon greatly increased, a number of school children crowding into the room. The court room had been cleared at 11:15 a. m. and must be sheeting was put up at the windows and the room was used with an adjoining room as the "prison" for the jury while it was deciding the case.

Forced to stand up, the crowd became restless and mingled with the chatter of school children the outer rooms looked more like the scene of an afternoon picnic.

Inside a man's life was at stake.

WITNESSES NOT CALLED

Thirty-eight of 47 witnesses were called by the state to testify while the defense called six of 11 witnesses. The defense announced only eight witnesses at first, but three more names were later added. They were not called, however, and two of the original eight were not asked to take the stand, one of them being Mrs. Louise Nierengarten, the boy's mother.

Miss Geraldine Stepleton, of Lima, was the youngest witness to be put on the stand. She gave her age as 13. Miss Louise Nierengarten, sister of the defendant, was the next youngest. Her age is 15.

Many old men and women were in the curious crowd Saturday and it was noted that they predominated all thru the trial. Farmers began to leave at about 5 p. m. Saturday, however, and the crowd from then on consisted of people living in Wapakoneta or Lima citizens who had flocked here in the hopes of hearing an early verdict. There were few autos or busses around the court house by 7 p. m.

Judge Stueve, counsel for the defense, remarked that he would be glad when the entire thing "is over." "It has been a severe strain on my nerves," said the attorney who has battled all week to save the life of the Lima bell boy.

Prosecutor Karl Timmermeister also passed the remark that he would be glad when the end was attained. In fact, everyone in the court room had grown tired physically of the week's ordeal. Mentally, however, they were as keen as ever for any new developments.

REMOVAL SOUGHT

Dusting of State Movie Censor is Threatened.

COLUMBUS—Rumors prevailed here Saturday night that Mrs. Evelyn G. Shaw soon would be ousted as state moving picture censor.

Confirmation was lacking, however, owing to Governor Davis' absence from the city.

It is known considerable friction exists in the department and strong rumors are at work seeking Mrs. Shaw's removal.

Attorney General John G. Price Saturday expressed deep concern over reports in newspapers recently that "apparent discord existed in the state division of film censorship."

Continuing, Price added, censorship is a practical thing, instituted for the purpose of protecting the public from having inflicted upon them any pictures which might be harmful to the morals or subversive of good government.

He refused, however, to comment further on the fight in the censorship department.

Governor Davis is expected personally to take a stand in the matter as soon as he returns to Columbus.

FLOOD FEARS DISAPPEAR

MEMPHIS—Alfio refugees continue to struggle into Memphis and towns along the Mississippi as the result of the overflow of lowlands following heavy rains this week. Fear of a disastrous flood was largely dissipated Saturday night when reports indicated the crest of the flood water had passed.

SIDELIGHTS ON MURDER TRIAL

WAPAKONETA—(Staff Special)—Wapakoneta can get back to normal now, with the Nierengarten murder trial off its mind. To hear the complaints of a number who crowded into court on the final day of the trial, they have had no sleep, meals or anything but excitement the past six days.

Judge Joseph D. Barnes instructed Bob Ewing, Auglaize co. sheriff, to take the jury to lunch at 11:20 a. m. "Rather unlucky, don't you think, Judge? Thirteen of us, you know," remarked Bob.

"Well, you don't have to eat," replied the judge.

Deputy sheriffs were instructed by Judge Barnes to keep the crowd as far away from the jury room as possible while the jury was deliberating.

"Where do you get that stuff, showing us back? We're taxpayers, aren't we?"

A man remarked thus as he was told to move back a little.

For the first time Saturday during the past week a few vacant seats could be noticed in the court room at 8 a. m. They were all taken a short time later, however.

Joe Sells, janitor at the court house, says he moved the chairs about so much in the court room that they have warts on them. Joe is 30 cents richer as the result of the trial. He found this sum of money in the building while cleaning up.

The condition of Judge F. C. Layton, who has been ill and for whom Judge Barnes substituted, is slowly improving. The judge is 74 years old and is still very ill. It was reported Saturday, he wanted to attend the trial, but his physicians would not give their permission.

TREATY BUILDERS HIT CRITICS

Hughes and Underwood Defend Four-Power Pact

(BY LAWRENCE MARTIN)

WASHINGTON—Two members of the American delegation to the arms conference Saturday struck back at Senatorial critics of the four-power Pacific treaty.

Secretary of State Hughes, chairman of the delegation, in a letter to Senator Underwood, Democratic senate leader, said failure of the treaty would be "nothing short of a national calamity."

Senator Underwood, Democratic leader, and a member of the delegation, in a speech to the senate, denied that the treaty constituted an alliance and said that if it was an alliance, he would vote for it anyway.

This was an alliance for peace, not for war.

FINAL DRAFT FOR HUGHES

Replying directly to Senatorial attacks as to the authorship of the pact, Hughes said the American delegation was neither hoodwinked nor imposed upon in the forming of the agreement and that the treaty is in accordance with traditional policies of this government. He revealed that he wrote the final draft, which was adopted with some changes, but said international amenities prevented him from disclosing other drafts.

The treaty according to information obtained by the United Press, is a complete picture of drafts submitted by Hughes, Arthur Balfour, of Britain, and Ambassador Shidehara, of Japan.

These are the chief developments in the most important day thus far in the senate treaty fight, had the effect of clearing the treaty atmosphere of the "draft" controversy.

LODGE ABANDONS PLAN

It is apparent that if ratification is obtained, which now seems certain by a small margin, much credit must be given to Underwood.

Abandonment by Senator Lodge of efforts to hold the senate in continuous session to force voting on reservations proposed by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, and others; loss of another vote to the treaty supporters thru illness of Senator Harrell, Republican, Oklahoma, and a movement designed to produce a "Russian scare" and thus lose votes for the treaty, were other developments.

Hughes wrote Underwood: "That a full disclosure of everything said or done in the course of the negotiations would reveal nothing derogatory to the part taken by any of the American delegates or involve any consideration or acceptance of any position not entirely consistent with the traditional policies of this government."

That there are no secret notes or understandings.

That the negotiations resulting in the four-power treaty "were conducted within limitations defined by the American government."

That the treaty itself is so clear and simple in its enunciation that "no ingenuity in argument or hostile criticism can add to them or make them other or greater than its unequivocal language sets forth."

That Hughes himself prepared the final treaty draft, after full conference not only with representatives of Great Britain and Japan, but with members of the American delegation.

Eight famous Victor artists entertained a large audience at Memorial hall last night. The concert of these famous musicians was presented here by the Johns Music company and was one of the big music hits of the winter.

Those appearing are well known to everyone wherever Victrola music is heard. They were: Albert Campbell, Henry Burr, Billy Murray, Frank Croton, John M. Meyers, Monroe Silver, Fred Van Eps and Frank Banta.

His Holiness Talks of This Section to Toledo Man

FIRST U.S. LAYMAN ADMITTED

Church Head Gives Special Blessing for K. of C.

BY JOHN A. ODWYER, Supreme Director of the Knights of Columbus of Ohio Who Has Just Returned From Rome, Where He Was the First American Layman To Have an Audience With Pope Pius XI.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—The first impression one gets when His Holiness Pope Pius XI enters the audience chamber at the Vatican is that in him is the ideal of the world-figure one has traveled thousands of miles to see.

He is tall and firmly built, with a strongly intellectual face and deep, penetrating eyes. His voice is deep, and I observed that his teeth are perfect—a rare thing in a man in the middle sixties.

His Holiness speaks perfect English. I heard him on the day he received me, speak English, French and, of course, Italian, and at the same time acknowledge the greeting of a distinguished-looking Austrian in the Austrian's native tongue.

Everywhere in Rome cultured Italians had told me how much they looked forward to the entry of the Knights of Columbus into warfare work there. The late Pope Benedict looked forward with the keenest interest to the advent of the K. of C., a select body of whom had visited him on their pilgrimage in August, 1920. Now Pope Pius will witness the inauguration of the work.

"You come from Toledo, Ohio, not Toledo, Spain," the Pope said to me. After I had made my obeisance and been introduced, "It is in your great middle vest of which I have heard and read much."

BLESSING FOR K. C. The purity of his pronunciation of our language is striking. As a rule, Europeans who speak English do so with an English accent. The pope has no accent beyond an attractive Italian inflection.

"The Knights of Columbus," he said, "are my special blessing. Their patriotic work is worthy of admiration. I am always delighted to have Americans visit the Holy See."

Then I received some scores of rosaries blessed by the pope. At taking my departure His Holiness gave me a typical American handshake. He has a strong, athletic grip, doubtless the result of great mountain climbing days.

Several others were awaiting audience with His Holiness as I left the chamber, one or two not members of the Catholic church but eager to see and hear the ruler of that church.

I watched His Holiness walk away to receive them. He appears a magnificent figure, in pure white, with a touch of bright scarlet on his buckled shoes, walking amid guards arrayed in purple against a background of gorgeous tapestries of the renaissance.

I came away from the Vatican convinced that in Pope Pius the Catholic church has a ruler of great personal vitality and varied learning; a man who keenly appreciates the part that the Knights of Columbus must play in the church of the future, and I felt proud that as a director of the Knights of Columbus it was my privilege to aid in the executive management of the work which the K. of C. have undertaken in Rome at the behest of the Vatican.

EL KARAN GROTTO WILL AID IN PRODUCTION OF LIMA MADE MOVIE STORY

Lima movie fans will have their opportunity to display the screen while they possess in the making of a two-reel comedy "El Karan Grotto" proposes to sponsor.

R. N. Rhodes, of the Chicago American Society Films, will supervise the taking of the picture, which will have a college background. The two local high schools and members of the institutions will be seen in the cast. Other home talent will appear.

"Along Came Jack" is the title. The photoplay will be screened at a local picture play house the week of March 26.

NEW CURE FOR T. B. COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—A large concrete igloo, built after the fashion of the snow igloos of the far north, may be constructed to test a theory of curing tuberculosis, advanced by Fred M. Spiers, of Alaska.

The plans are to have the patients, warmly clad in furs, live in the large room without any artificial heat. This plan was found successful in Alaska, it was said.

RESISTS FEDERAL CONTROL SANTA FE, N. M.—More than 3000 square miles, comprising approximately one-half of New Mexico's area, might be converted into a game refuge and public shooting ground, under the control of the secretary of agriculture by the terms of the senate bill No. 1432. This is the statement made by Gov. M. C. Mechem in a letter of protest sent to the governors of a dozen western states.

BUSIEST PHOTOGRAPHER BUENOS AIRES—There's a photographer in this city who claims to be the busiest in the world. When the Argentine Government decided to inaugurate the "Cedula" system for the identification of citizens, he was appointed to do the "snaps" and he's had a slack day when he takes less than 100. The other day his serial numbers had reached the eight-figure mark. "On a minute" is his motto.

WEATHER PLANS; HELP YOURSELF

Here's a mixture in weather forecasts for the present day and the next to follow.

Fair Sunday and on Monday increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer.

Take your choice, either one; both if you like. There's no assurance that the predictions for the two days will not be reversed. In fact, 'twill not be surprising if they are.

As the prognostication stands, look for bright conditions today, conducive to the appearance of spring togery. Those who possess nifty "glad rags" smile when prospects of fair weather loom and accordingly depressed when 'tis otherwise.

But don't bank any of your money on weather wagers. It's too risky.

BATTERY D WINS HIGH PRAISE

Held By Inspecting Officer as One of Best in 135th Artillery

That Battery D, 135th Field Artillery, is destined to be one of the finest outfits in the Ohio National Guard, was the declaration of Captain Russell G. Barkalow, federal inspector assigned to the regiment, Saturday.

Captain Barkalow expressed astonishment at the improvement made by the organization since it was mustered into service.

"Lima had a better turnout than the Toledo battery," he said, "and the men are steadier and make a smarter appearance."

Colonel H. M. Bush, regimental commander who was present at the inspection, also expressed surprise at the snappy drill of the Lima unit.

Both officers were lavish in their praise of the improvement wrought by Captain Calvin Seltrage, battery commander.

Battery D is to have four gun sections, a caisson section and a repair section. Each artilleryman will carry a Browning automatic.

Drill pay to be paid to the enlisted personnel will total $450 monthly. Beside this money, local grain dealers will profit from sale of feed for horses.

Most of the horses inherited from the old cavalry troop will be exchanged for animals of more bulky type.

SOUTH HIGH SENIOR CLASS TO PRESENT PLAY, "GREEN STOCKINGS," FRIDAY NIGHT

"Green Stockings," a three-act comedy, by A. E. W. Mason, will be presented Friday night, March 17, by the senior class of South High at the central auditorium.

With the scene laid in London, the action of the play centers about an ancient custom requiring the eldest daughter of a family to wear green stockings on the occasion of the marriage of the younger sister previous to her own. Celia Faraday has put on the green hose twice and to prevent a third similar happening, William Faraday refuses to give his consent to the marriage of his daughter, Phyllis, to Robert Tarver.

Then Celia suddenly announces her engagement to Colonel Smith of the British forces in Somaliland.

The cast includes a number of prominent players who have taken principal roles in productions throughout the year. It includes: Scott Hammond; William Faraday; Marcus Donovan; Colonel Smith, Paul Panoff; Robert Tarver; Neil Shaw; Henry Steele; John Sonat; James Raleigh; Francis Sanford; Martin, the butler; John Ridenour; Celia Faraday; Susanna Kallier; Phyllis Faraday; Marcella Ulrey; Lady Trenchard; Martha Rothlisberger; Mrs. Rockingham; Alice McRitchie; Aunt Ida; Vera Miller.

BIG HARNESS COMBINE JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Consolidation of six plants into a $400,000 corporation, effected recently, makes the Ruwert Brothers Manufacturing Company the largest producers of horse collars and harness in the world. The new concern will be controlled, owned and operated by Jake, Henry, Joseph, Edward and William Ruwert. Six factories, three in Denver, two here and one in Fayetteville, Tenn., are owned by the brothers.

BARS MOTHER-IN-LAW DENVER, Colo.—The married man who is bothered by his mother-in-law should have been a Navajo Indian and married a girl of that tribe. For, according to a recent letter to a local newspaper from the Indian agency at the Navajo reservation at Shipwell, N. M., tribal customs provide that the mother-in-law, after her daughter's marriage, must never see her son-in-law.

SHIP WENT TO BAD KINSTON, N. C.—The "Message of Peace," British West Indian booze ship held at Wilmington, N. C., after being seized by the coast guard farther up the coast, is an example of a good ship having gone to the bad. The "Message of Peace" was built in England for a gospel station. Eckenroed had gone to the home port to secure some coal and not smelling gas, lighted a match, and a terrific explosion followed, the cellar door and several windows being blown from the house.

BURNED IN BLAST ELYRIA.—Clarence Eckenroed was badly burned about the face and shoulders Saturday when an explosion of gas followed his lighting a match in the basement of his home.

HOSPITAL BILL REPORTED WASHINGTON.—Appropriation of $17,000,000 to complete the hospital building program of the United States veterans bureau, was provided in the Langley bill which was unanimously reported from the house public buildings and grounds committee Saturday.

UNCLE SAM MAY RUN MINES

Determined Strike Shall Not Bring Fuel Famine.

WALKOUT NOW IS CERTAIN

Davis Proposed Conference Rejected by Operators.

NEW SMYRNA, Fla.—The administration has decided that the railroad and essential industries shall be kept going whether or not miners strike on April 1.

President Harding and his cabinet, according to members of the party here, have evolved a definite program of executive action in event the threatened walkout occurs.

In the first place, of course, it is the hope of the administration that the strike may be avoided. If it occurs, however, it now may be regarded as certain that fuel will be provided even if government supervision of mines is necessary.

The president is accompanied on this trip by Attorney General Daugherty who will be an active figure in the strike emergency. In addition Secretary of War Weeks already has been in consultation with the president and Weeks naturally would have an important position in whatever action the government decided to take.

According to those who are in position to know what is in the administration mind, there appears to be little hope of a preliminary wage conference. The mine workers are eager to hold such a conference but the operators in the bituminous fields are so decided on the question that it would seem there will be little likelihood on operators uniting on a general wage program.

The government, while urging the conference, does not have any means of enforcing such a conference.

PARLEY REFUSED COLUMBUS.—Mine operators and workers of Ohio Saturday night prepared battle lines for the approaching struggle over wage and working principles.

With the strike date but three weeks away, both sides had virtually given up hope of a settlement and were making ready for what leaders said would be the greatest industrial conflict in the state's history.

The invitation of Secretary Davis for operators to confer with miners before March 31, in accordance with the four-state agreement, was flatly refused late Saturday by members of the Southern Ohio Coal Exchange, after a lengthy conference.

The Southern Ohio operators stand virtually invalidated the decision of the members of the Pittsburgh Vein Association, who voted to accept Davis' offer providing other mine owners agreed.

STRIKE INEVITABLE The refusal of southern Ohio operators virtually means a strike cannot be avoided except by compulsory action by the government which federal officials have declared is impossible.

In rejecting the secretary of labor's offices, Ohio mine owners have taken the stand the situation in this state deserves separate treatment and no results could be obtained by a joint conference with union officials of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

The mine operators in a letter to Secretary of Labor Davis, made public Saturday night, declared their action was prompted because union officials "have violated every agreement made by them since April 18, 1920, when southern Ohio operators and miners at a conference here reached an agreement on wage advances after representatives of the central competitive field in joint conference in Cleveland had failed.

MOVEMENT DISRUPTED Operators charged the Ohio agreement was then taken as a basis for wage settlement throughout the central field.

"The rejection of the miners' demands by the interstate conference at Cleveland, in August, 1920, now renewed, disrupted the interstate movement and at that time was no considered by the United Mine Workers themselves," the letter told Davis.

Ohio operators concluded inferring the proposed joint conference was a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, declaring "you understand, of course, that the method of arriving at wage scales by interstate agreement has been challenged in the federal courts."

Renewal of the offer to deal independently with the union in Ohio "with the understanding that it will not include the check-off" was made by the operators.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, denying his department has indulged in unfriendly propaganda against the interior department, Saturday night issued a letter supporting his forestry chief, Colonel Greeley, original cause of the Wallace-Fall controversy.

Greeley, whose recent magazine article aroused the ire of Secretary of the Interior Fall and caused a row which President Harding eventually must untangle, was upheld as a man of the finest character quite incapable of lending himself to improper criticism of other government departments or of the heads of other departments.

Wallace's letter, answering an inquiry from Senator Capper assured that the secretary's relations with the secretary of the interior "have at all times been friendly," and he added:

"I regret very much to learn that he has entertained the belief or even the suspicion that this department or any one in it, has been guilty of issuing propaganda or press material in criticism of him or any of his department, or of any one else in the government service. There is no ground for such belief or suspicion."

The Greeley article, charging in substance that Fall's plans would open Alaska to exploitation, was written during the Democratic administration and approved by Wallace's predecessor in office. Hence, Wallace pointed out there could be no aiming at Fall.

LUNCH CLUB MEMBERS AND WIVES HEAR ADDRESS BY FORMER KOREAN ENVOY

The Lima Kiwanis Club has invited Rotarians and Lions and their wives to hear Homer B. Hubert, F. G. S., former envoy of the Korean Empire, give a talk Tuesday evening at the Elks' club. The dinner meeting will start at 6:30 p. m.

Hubert is widely known as a diplomat, traveler, editor and humorist. He is expected to give a diagnosis of Eastern problems and will also talk on the customs and politics of that country. A closer understanding of conditions in the Orient will result after hearing Hubert speak, those who have heard him say.

HARRY O. BENTLEY TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS

Rotarian Harry O. Bentley, past president of the Lima Rotary club, will speak on "Good Citizenship" at the regular noonday luncheon of Rotarians at the Hotel Normal Monday at 11:45. Bentley's talk is expected to afford information of the ways and whys of being good citizens.

Action of the allied finance ministers in Paris Saturday in virtually ignoring the American claim, but covering it with a general reservation of American rights will result, it is believed, in notes from Secretary Hughes to the allied governments, insisting on payment.

There was due this government from Germany on May 1, 1921, $241,000,000 for maintenance of the Rhine army. This has been mounting steadily since.

Officials here pointed out that the claim is valid under the armistice terms and that the failure of the United States to ratify the Versailles treaty does not effect it.

LIMA MAN URGED FOR CONGRESS

Friends of J. H. Goeke Circulate Petitions in His Behalf

DAVIS TO SEEK REELECTION

Candidates For County Office Are Coming Into Open

(BY J. W. FISHER)

Unless someone "spills the beans" between this time and the August primary, the Democrats of the Fourth Congressional district may name to the mat in the forthcoming November election with Congressman John L. Cable, as the nominee of his party for another term.

Events of the past week indicate pretty conclusively that this statement is a correct reflection of the situation. Despite a lot of talk that has been going the rounds about this or that potential candidate to oppose Cable in the election, there has been nothing of a concrete character worked out for the reason that the rank and file of the party leaders all over the district have been awaiting developments.

There is no dearth of timber, but everyone appears to be of the opinion that the way should be cleared for the strongest possible candidate. The eyes of certain of the party leaders have been turned toward J. H. Goeke, a Lima man, and formerly Congressman from this district. During his absence from his home city for a month, his friends during the past week decided that he is the logical man to stand as the party's candidate.

When he returns, Mr. Goeke will find that a petition for his declaration of candidacy has been prepared, signed by the requisite number of voters in the various counties of the district.

From what can be gathered from party leaders over the six-county district, it is possible there will be no primary opposition should the Lima man consent to accept a nomination.

So far as can be seen now, prospect of the Democrats entering the fall campaign with a unanimous choice of a candidate, is possible. There is practically only one danger being faced, leaders say, and that is the possibility of interference from the enemy, along the line of endeavoring to stir up a primary fight among the Democrats, hoping thereby to aid and strengthen the cause of the G. O. P. However, it is not believed likely that an effort of that sort on the part of the Republicans would get far. In fact, such a thing could be very easily seen thru.

There should be no misunderstanding. The bars cannot be raised against anyone who may desire to enter the field. Whether Mr. Goeke would consent to become a candidate is a primary contest is staged, his friends of course cannot state. Only he could decide.

Ohio's Governor, Harry L. Davis, was a visitor in Allen-co last Monday. So far as Lima was concerned, it was a case of "Mr. Pim Passes By." The Governor did not tarry here. There was nothing in particular for him to see at any time in this city. There was no outpouring of leaders or near-leaders of the G. O. P. from Lima or any other part of the county when he addressed an audience in Gomer. The Governor was greeted by a large and enthusiastic assembly of splendid citizens. He was received and feted as the Governor of the state. There was nothing of a political thing about it. It was not intended to be so and in his address, the Governor eschewed things political, save to afford information concerning the work of the administration and assert that promises made by his party would be carried out. There was no hint at any time, in the course of his remarks, that would indicate his state of mind concerning the possibility of Governor Davis's again offering himself for nomination by his party this year. He did not seek to take advantage of a situation. He was invited to Gomer to assist in the celebration of St. David's Day. He was honored as the Governor of Ohio. All of which was eminently proper.

Going to and coming away from Gomer, the Governor, accompanied by his secretary, Bob Harris, traveling in a touring car, passed thru Lima. No stops, worth mentioning in a particular manner, were made here. Returning from Gomer, en route to Columbus, they stopped for a midnight lunch in a Wapakoneta restaurant. So far as Lima and G. O. P. politicians were concerned, there was really no reason for the Governor to tarry long here. He never did get along very well with the party leaders in Allen-co and he doesn't seem disposed to endeavor now to make up for lost time.

It must not be presumed, however, that Governor Davis is altogether out of touch with the affairs of Allen-co and its people. Far from it. It is stated on what appears to be well founded authority that the Governor has imparted the information in a whisper, "It's true, but well understood, that he will announce his candidacy shortly for renomination. That he wants to run again, is patent. That the leaders of his party hope he won't, is also patent. So, dear readers, prepare for something. They may succeed in stopping him before he starts, but it looks very much like the G. O. P. is going to have to squelch Davis in the primary election.

While former Congressman B. F. Welty does not resort to the use of a lot of adjectives in a letter he entrusted to Uncle Sam's mail section via the Lima postoffice, for delivery to Congressman John L. Cable, nevertheless he unambiguously pretends to be calling the attention of John's attention to the well established fact that the "joker" the Lima Congressman found in the enabling act of Ohio for the rebuilding of waterways isn't a "joker." No stall, no steele!

In this little word tilt that has been going on between John and Ben, it is patent that John is in the position of the man who grabbed the cat's tail and after the marathon started, he was afraid to let go. Ben calls to the attention of John that he, as well as all others who know anything about the contents of the Ohio canal bill, know that the zone requirement was contained therein, not for the purpose of paying the cost of the construction of the canal, but for the building of terminals.

Retaining his temper, altho John's criticism isn't foolproof, Ben points out that John had the same fault to find with the enabling act in the campaign of 1920, when he was a candidate for Congress, but that when asked to point out specifically defects in the measure, he failed to do so. Altho now rather late, Ben expresses the hope that John will give the Legislature of Ohio the benefit of his wisdom. John took a neat little slam at Ben, as the representative of the Cincinnati Manufacturers' association, in his first-page "joker" story early last week, when he said: "Members of Congress here can look after the interests of the citizens of Ohio who favor the proposed construction, but something absolutely has to be done with reference to the amendment of the laws of Ohio otherwise the vote upon the petition of the public in any route zone will block all construction whatever."

Under the circumstances, Cable's statement that he had "cited the situation to those employed professionally to push the project," but no action has been taken to change it, makes it look rather peculiar for John, since he has known since 1920 the contents of the measure, and that in spite of his criticism, repeatedly voiced, he has taken no steps to have the so-called error corrected by a Republican Legislature. John's first-page effort in connection with the canal situation is on a par with a lot of other press dope that is coming out of Washington, for which John pays rental out of his salary. It is strange that the canal bill "joker" is so often used by the Lima Congressman when the case occasionally, in politics. Sometimes it is needed to keep the limelight going strong. There is nothing new about the canal bill to throw a lit over now. A canal without unfloating terminals would be as useless as a kite without a tail. Get away from the old stuff, John; spring something new.

Ordinarily, a house divided against itself is a losing proposition, but not always. This is proven to be the case occasionally in politics. Comes the case of the Beam family at Ansonia, Darke-co. It makes little difference to these good folks when a change of administration comes in Washington.

William Beam, Democrat, has been postmaster at Ansonia for several years, receiving his appointment under the Wilson administration. Recently his term expired and an examination was ordered to determine who his successor would be. Postmaster Beam ranked first on the eligible list, but his wife, Nellie Beam, a Republican, was second. Exit Mr. Beam. Enter Mrs. Beam. Congressman Cable has recommended to the postoffice department the appointment of Mrs. Beam, to succeed her husband.

Under the circumstances, the transition from a Democrat to a Republican postmaster at Ansonia has been brought about with no trouble resulting. Everybody is probably satisfied. The salary is still in the family and to all intents and purposes, save in the matter of signing official papers, Pa Beam will likely go right along being the real postmaster.

If Congressman Cable had a situation like that in every village in his district, he'd be mightily tickled. John isn't getting out of the situation in the matter in Auglaize-co, so easily. There's danger of a real storm there. It was expected that all trouble would be eliminated when it was found the three eligibles in the civil service list were ex-service men. Congressman Cable awaited a recommendation by the county G. O. P. committee. Things were all set to shift the burden of responsibility from the shoulders of Cable to the committee. But that he shifted 'em right back, smooth politicians that they are.

A meeting of the committee was held in Wapakoneta and here's what was found. It was charged that Hilmer Dickman, one of the eligibles, had forfeited his right to vote and hold office in Auglaize-co, by reason of having voted in Michigan. Now note this:

Ed Schulerberg, one of the active party workers who had secured the endorsement of the New Bremen and German-tp members of the county committee, was found to be next in line to go on the eligible list. But then there is E. H. Haines, who is next to Cade in the examination and outwits him in popularity with members of the committee outside the home town, the sages say. Haines is an ex-service man, too.

A new problem presents itself for the folks over to the south to unravel, and in the meantime—Bruff Hamilton, a member of the G. O. P. committee from St. Marys, saw over the turn-down he has received at the hands of the gang, is reported to be taking rather a keen delight in getting the situation complicated to as a great a degree as possible.

Wonderment that has been rife as to why Congressman Simeon D. Fess has been hesitating in releasing an announcement of candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, to succeed Alton Pomerene, may have its answer in gossip trickling out of Washington. That Dr. Fess originally determined to run for the Senate is well understood, but according to the situation as it now frames, the Yellow Springs man has in prospect either return to Congress from his own district, the Seventh, or a place in the President's cabinet as Secretary of Education, a post coveted to be formed under the Harding plan of reorganization. Dr. Fess' enthusiasm for running for the Senate has been on the decline for some time, as he could not help notice the strong sentiment in behalf of Senator Pomerene.

If Dr. Fess doesn't, Walter F. Brown of Toledo will—run for Senator. And if Governor Harry L. Davis hasn't made up his mind to run, Thompson of Cleveland, even as he is reputed to have done to Harvey Smith, Carmi will run for Governor.

Those Republican guys should remember this old saying: "What a tangled web we weave when first we practise to deceive."

Altho it is considered a "leedle" early by prospective candidates for county office for the most part to make it known that they have the political "itch," the fact remains that there is any quantity of talk among the faithful, particularly on the Democratic side of the fence.

With the state administration such a miserable spectacle with its ripper bill and emergency clause, expenses growing by leaps and bounds as the reorganization measure demonstrates its weakness and its inadequacy to meet the situation, the G. O. P. boys don't see a lot of hope of getting anywhere there coming fall. Lack of a fixed program either in Columbus or Washington, with Governor Davis and President Harding vacationing a considerable part of the time, the outlook isn't hopeful for Republican aspirants.

That's why the Democratic boys are getting their noggin above the surface good and early. The latest to make his debut is Julius Callahan, who has fully determined to seek the Democratic nomination for county recorder in the primary election. Jule feels it's a little early, but not too early to talk about it. He gained a wide acquaintance over the county while serving as county probation officer for three years, while Judge Fred C. Becker was in the probate office.

Jule has made a start. Maybe others will fall in.

This year Allen-co will elect, the same as other counties in the state of Ohio, a complete county ticket, with exceptions as are provided by law and conditions.

Candidates for every office in the list, save that of Probate Judge, will

The places to be filled are as follows: Clerk, sheriff, auditor, one commissioner, recorder, treasurer, surveyor, prosecuting attorney and coroner.

Nominations will be made in the August primary election, which this year falls on the second Tuesday of the month, the eighth day of the calendar month.

If, dear reader, you happen to be among the many intending to qualify as a candidate before the primary, whether you are Democrat or Republican, you are required to make your wants and wishes known not later than 60 days prior to the primary, or on the eighth day of June.

The "oat season" for candidates is here. They'll be tumbling out into the open with regularity from this time on until the primary election. Considering the fact that several are already avowed candidates, there seems to be a pretty deep seated belief in the statement that the early bird gets the worm.

Clever manipulators of words, well posted on the political situation, take delight in employing Bible forms, with new words applied, to express their feelings when the occasion demands. The latest, taken from the columns of a Labor page takes a dig at the G. O. P. in this fashion, which recalls the 33rd Psalm:

"Hanging is my shepherd and I am in want. He maketh me to lie down on the park benches. He leadeth me beside the free soup houses. He destroyeth my faith in the Republican party. He leadeth me in the paths of destruction for his party's sake. Yea, tho I walk thru the valley of the shadow of starvation I will fear no evil, for thou art against me. Thou preparest a reduction in wages before me in the presence of mine enemies. Thou anointest my income with taxes, my expenses with poverty and unemployment will follow me all the days of this normalcy."

administration and I will dwell in a rented house forever."

Despite the fact that Lima's new city administration is less than three months old, there is being heard scattering comment concerning the application of the recall.

There is "ellected to be very little prospect of a movement of that kind taking form this year and there is expected to be no stir in the August primary."

Maybe the sporadic talk about the use of the recall is due to the fact that the city charter provides for it and there is desire to experiment with it more as a diversion than on the grounds of using it under the circumstances contemplated when it was provided for in the first place.

WHITEN ROUGH CHAPPED HANDS

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten, rough or chapped hands. This superior lemon lotion is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.—adv

GIRARD WOMAN IS WELCOMED HERE

Miss Hauser Addresses League on "Women in Politics"

LUNCHEON MEET AT ARGONNE

Local Organization Plans Drive For New Members

Sixty members of the League of Women Voters welcomed Miss Elizabeth Hauser, of Girard, Ohio, at a luncheon meeting held at the Argonne Hotel Saturday. Miss Hauser spoke on "Women in Politics."

Women Meet Test

"But she proved she was equal to the occasion. Wonderfully well she performed her task. There was forethought, study and decision which counted for much when the country was hanging on a pivotal point. Women cast the lot which set the country thinking and erased forever that thought in the minds of many women could not handle the ballot, even if given an opportunity."

Miss Hauser declared that few ballots of women were thrown out at the polls. If contrast could be made, no fewer than men, on the same ratio and number of votes cast, she said.

"Women not only know how to vote, but they know what they are voting for," Miss Hauser declared.

A reception was extended. Miss Hauser prior to the luncheon. Miss Drusilla Reilly and Mrs. W. E. Crayton who was in charge of the luncheon, received with Miss Hauser Mrs. D. L. Sherwood looked after the arrangements. Mrs. A. E. Gale and Mrs. H. F. Welby were in charge of refreshments.

LEAGUE IS NON-PARTISAN
The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization. It does not attempt to dictate politics of its members, officials declare.

Miss Hauser made a stirring appeal to women never to leave the league and declared it was a great privilege to belong to the organization, which has branches in every state in the union and whose power is nation-wide, she said.

A house-to-house canvass to be made by the League of Women Voters within the next few weeks, will be undertaken to increase membership, according to plans devised Saturday. Fifteen members were added Saturday.

GOOD RESULTS IN DOG TAG DRIVE

Negligent Owners of Canines Pay Visit to Auditor

Search by Allen-co deputy sheriffs for dogs have caused a large increase in the sale of dog tags the past couple of days.

When Sheriff Baxter sent his deputies out the past week, in automobiles, he told them to look for dogs and road offenders.

Every unlicensed dog in the county, harbored by its owner, must either have a tag or the owner must pay the penalty. Allen-co is being compelled to look for dogs in an effort to locate all transgressors of the dog tag law.

"We have sold on an average of 25 tags a day since the sheriff's deputies started out," C. R. Phillips, county auditor said, Saturday. "It's either a case of a fine or a tag and I believe they reason the license is the cheapest."

Up to the latter part of the week Phillips says sale of dog tags had been unknown for the past six weeks in his office.

ANNIVERSARY TO BE CELEBRATED

Mansfield Pastor to Assist Rev. Spayde in Special Event

Rev. Webster C. Spayde, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church, Spring and Pierce-als, will celebrate the seventh anniversary of his pastorate in Lima, on Sunday, March 19.

Rev. Spayde hopes to have present at the celebration at that time, Paul W. Koller, D. D. Mansfield, president of the Ohio synod, United Lutheran churches of America. He will deliver the sermon in the evening.

Dr. Koller will install a Lutheran minister at Urbana on that Sunday morning and will come here for the anniversary in the evening.

Rev. Spayde is one of the oldest pastors in Lima today. He has seen the church grow and expand, until now it occupies one of the most important places in Lima's church world, according to leaders.

Rev. Spayde is a noted theologian and is declared to be one of the most able speakers in Lima. The anniversary will mark a great gathering at Bethany Lutheran church, according to present plans.

PRICE WAR ON COLUMBUS—A finish fight between big fertilizer manufacturers and the co-operative buying organizations of Ohio farmers is under way, the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, charged in a statement Saturday night. The price-cutting war "is an attempt on the part of the farmers to reduce production costs, which sooner or later must be reflected in a reduction of the prices to the consumer," Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the federation declared.

Trials of a Librarian Are Many and Varied Every Day

Ridiculous Questions Propounded in Innocent Manner

NAMES OF BOOKS CONFUSED

Patrons of Library Write Opinions of Books

Intensely interesting and varied human nature, in all its manifold forms and intricacies, daily and hourly confronts Miss Martha Gamble, librarian at the Lima Public Library. Wee children bring their funny questions about books; a tickle young girl comes seeking a love story; a middle-aged man a book on history; possibly it is a new bride who desires to delve into the mysteries of a cook book or some discourse on advice to the newly-wed.

The scores and hundreds of problems that find their way into the daily lives of men and women seek an outlet and in the majority of these cases this open channel is sought by digging into the past experience of other men and other women. And, true it is, that the experience of others is told in fiction.

REMARKABLE QUESTIONS
Hence the library and its custodian.

Truly questions from the ridiculous to the sublime come up for solution and to puzzle Miss Gamble.

"It was a yellow book," one caller who is seeking a novel says.

Or it was a red book, with a green edge.

And they expect a librarian to find the correct book amid scores of shelves and thousands of volumes.

Humor blends with the "tragedy" of this, tho. Scarcely a day passes, says Miss Gamble, that some remark or question—and it is not intended to be flippant, but asked from an ignorant standpoint—of a ridiculous nature is asked.

"Indeed, it is hard to keep my face straight sometimes," the librarian said, smiling. "One wanted 'Huckleberry Thin'; another 'Wigles in the Cabbage Patch,' while still another asked for the 'Interluding of a Cup.' 'I want Romeo and Juliet, are they in?'" This question made me smile.

Another would like to have "When Knighthood was in Bloom."

"My mother wants some kind of a 'loving book,'" a small tot told Miss Gamble one day, while another offered the very "precise" information, "I don't know the name of the book I want, but it has a boat on the back."

"SPECKLES" WANTED
"Is the book 'Speckles' by Porter in," an inquirer wanted to know. Another asked to have a book, "I forget the name of it." First word begins with "R" and the last with "B."

Of course, with a description like that it's the simplest problem in the world to find the volume.

"I don't believe I can take any books for awhile, for I am going to Aunt Daisy's," one thus exposed a little of her family affairs.

Another who sought a book with coarse print asked for a volume with "very thin printing."

The volume "Still Jim" was asked for as "Stiff Jim."

And there are fine literary statements made by those who seek literature.

"Some of them surely need to read a few books," said the librarian, "judging from their language. One said, 'I haven't taken any yet.' Another declares 'Aren't we darst to take the ones like those?'"

In asking for the book certificate many ludicrous questions are heard. One wanted an "empty card."

After the books are returned to the library or from the pages of those that are read in the building come quite a bit of comment.

Some pages are crawled with "It's good," "Rollen," "Don't Read this," "Take it Home and Try it" and other phrases, advice, opinions, etc. Miniature book reviews on limited portions of the pages where there is no printing are frequent, oftentimes sincere, altho rather humorous.

GROWNUPS GUILTY, TOO
And the librarian says these questions are not confined along to the younger boys and girls, altho naturally the majority of them do come from this source. But grown-ups, folks who ought to know better, are guilty, too.

Some of the questions asked are not really so bad, altho they make one nervous and cause a lot of time to be almost wasted. In answer to a telephone call recently, someone wanted to know if the library "is open nights."

Such is life and such are the characters that those who deal with the public and public opinion must face. Libraries, however, sometimes get more than their share of the oddities of nature.

FINAL DECISION HELD UP IN RAIL CONTENTION

Final decision on the application of the Indiana Columbus & Eastern to abandon service over the Lima-Defiance division is being delayed, Attorney R. R. Trubey stated Saturday, because the record in the case has not been sent to him.

At the conclusion of the Columbus hearing two weeks time was allotted traction counsel to file a brief. Trubey, who is counsel for the interests fighting abandonment of service, is not sure that this has been done.

After company attorneys file a brief, Trubey will have another week to prepare a reply.

ONE DECREE, TWO SUITS FILED

Doyle Duff Granted Divorce on Grounds of Neglect

One decree was granted and two new divorce actions were filed in Judge P. C. Becker's court of domestic relations Saturday.

Doyle Duff was given a divorce from Blanche Duff, 827 Weadock-av, on the grounds of neglect. Duff testified his wife preferred to live away from his home and that when she left May 21, last, she refused to return.

Duff said she was an employee in a cigar factory. He resides at the home of his parents, on Holly-st. They were married in Lima on November 23, 1918, and have no children.

Mrs. Irene Goodman filed suit for divorce from George Goodman, on grounds of neglect, after married life of little more than two years.

Mrs. Maud Heyworth is asking a decree from Guy Heyworth, on the grounds of neglect and failure to provide her the comforts of life.

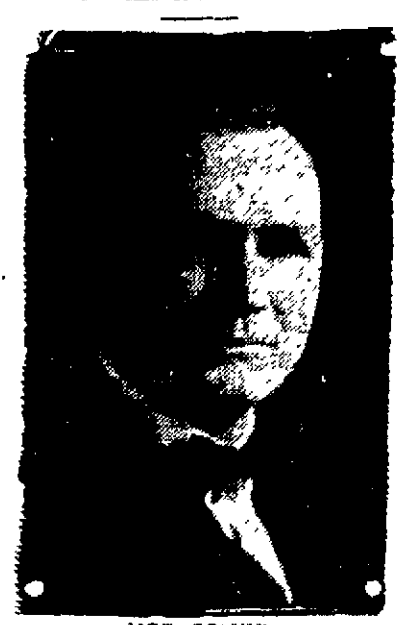

ELIDA FACTORY TO BE CONTINUED. WILL OF W. H. C. MONROE ORDERS

The Monroe Screen, Blad & Par-tition company, Elida, will continue business upon the same plan as it was formerly conducted, it provisions carried out in the will of the late William H. C. Monroe, proprietor, are heeded.

Monroe, in his will, asked that this be done. His six children are to have $2,000 annually from receipts of the business. Mrs. Edna I. Monroe is to have the household goods and belongings and occupy the family homestead in Elida as long as she remains his widow.

Mrs. Monroe is to be paid $100 a month from the earnings of the manufacturing establishment. The document asked that John Monroe, Mansfield, be named executor.

EVANGELIST IS TO SPEAK HERE

BOB JONES

SOUTHERN ORATOR HERE TODAY

Bob Jones and Party to Hold Two Special Meetings

"You Can't Get Away With It" is the text of a talk to be given by Bob Jones, southern evangelist, at a mass meeting for men at Memorial hall, Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

This southern orator has been preaching for 18 years and is now only 38 years old. He is described as a dynamic human machine. In the pulpit he exerts enough muscular and nervous effort to pin a 100 lb. man to the wall and to destroy the rising hope of a contender for the pugilistic championship while delivering a single sermon, those who know Jones state unreservedly.

Jones came to Lima from a successful season of meetings held in Ft. Wayne, Ind., under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of that city. "Y" members in Ft. Wayne describe him as a very pleasant fellow, tremendously in earnest. He will bring a singer and pianist with him, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Jones.

The Bob Jones party is here under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and some of the churches. In addition to the mass meeting for men Sunday afternoon, a union service will be held Sunday evening in Trinity M. E. church at 7 o'clock. Bob Jones will speak.

NEW TRIAL DENIED
CLEVELAND — Federal Judge Westonhaver Saturday overruled a motion for a new trial for John Glenberg, sentenced on a drug charge.

Following the hearing Mrs. Glenberg attacked two detectives as they left the court room. Glenberg was sentenced to two and a half years at Leavenworth penitentiary on a charge of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

UNIQUE PLAN FOR GRANGE PROGRAM

Lima Firms Contribute Numbers for Perry-tp Event.

Further plans for the cementing of friendly relations between the residents of the city and rural districts will be put into effect in a program arranged by Perry Center Grange, to be given at the grange hall, Wednesday evening, March 15, at 7 o'clock.

A feature of this event will be the plan of formation of the program. Business men of Lima will contribute the talent for the various numbers. The idea is a unique one and large numbers, from the city as well as the rural districts, are expected to be present.

After singing of "America" by the assembly, invocation will be voiced by the Rev. D. N. Kelly. L. E. Shaw, Master of the Perry Grange, will deliver the address of welcome. The following numbers will be given, talent to be provided by the business firms and others mentioned:

The Rowlands Furniture Co., solo; R. P. Jones Hardware Co., duet; C. D. Jacobs, reading; E. H. Dorsey, instrumental music; county commissioners, the Craig sisters; Lima Trust Co., reading; Lima Merchants' association, James E. Morton; S. S. Coon Co., special number; Hunter Drug Store, special number; Clyde Marshall, quartette; Chas. Siferd, Undertaking Co., special number; A. C. Rousculp, duet; Herrett Tire Co., duet; Lima Merchants' association, special number; B. S. Porter Co., special piano; White Mountain Creamery Co., ice cream special. Cake will be furnished by the women of Perry-tp. Prosecuting Attorney Eugene Lippincott has been secured to deliver an address.

CITY OFFICIALS PLACE TABOO ON MOUSTACHES; BINGHAM PARTS WITH HIS

Mustaches have lost caste officially in Lima.

Since Manager C. A. Bingham severed diplomatic relations with his some days ago, Chief John Mack is the lone member of Bingham's official family who doesn't shave his upper lip.

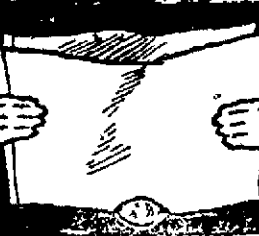

Manager Bingham's prolonged absence from the City Hall a few days ago was explained at noon when he appeared smooth shaven.

All of the commissioners, Chief of Police Dawson, Auditor E. O. Sellers and Vaughn C. Miller, city engineer, either never were one or abolished it long since. Now the city manager has joined their company. Chief Mack, however, will refuse to make the sacrifice, at least, for the time being.

FUNERAL PLANS CHANGED
Plans for funeral services for Mrs. Irene Hill 1207 St. John-ave who died Thursday, have been changed and will be held Sunday at 9 a. m., instead of 9:30, at the residence. The Rev. S. A. Beck, pastor of the Second-st M. E. church, will officiate. Interment will be at Dupont, Putnam-co.

PARLOR TRICKS

COIN THRU HOLE

MATERIALS: Sheet of paper with nickel-size hole cut in it; a quarter.

PROBLEM: To pass the quarter thru the hole without touching the coin or tearing the paper.

SOLUTION: Place quarter on table. Fold the paper across center of hole. Scoop up the coin with the paper and shake into position just above the hole. Holding the paper as shown, bend the sides upward and the coin will fall thru.

MOOSE TO INITIATE MARCH 21; MEMBERSHIP DRIVE ON

More than 1,200 letters were mailed to members of the Moose in Lima Saturday, inviting them to co-operate in a drive to place the membership of the lodge over the 2,000 mark, when the drive closes May 1.

R. R. Trubey, dictator, announced Saturday.

Two teams of 40 men each headed by E. H. Wentworth and J. P. Miller, are engaged in a friendly contest to line up the largest number of prospects.

The first class of candidates will be initiated March 23, it is announced.

MONEY EASING IN EASTERN BANKS

Another Insurance Company Offers Loan to Lima Realtors.

Easing money conditions in eastern states have made it possible for Lima realty owners to secure loans from the Prudential Life Insurance company, W. R. Foulkes, of the loan department of the Lima Trust company, announced Saturday.

For more than a year past A. D. Hildreth, agent for the insurance company here has been endeavoring to have the company make real estate loans in Lima.

Conditions in the east were such that up to a few days ago official refused to consider the matter.

Three forms of loans on completed buildings, both business property and dwellings, can be arranged thru the Lima Trust company. No money will be advanced on uncompleted houses, factories or churches.

The loans are in regular mortgage form, monthly installment mortgage loans and monthly amortized loans.

Terms are more liberal, according to Foulkes, than on similar classes of loans available at present. Interest rates will be not less than six per cent.

Foulkes was notified Saturday to receive applications for loans from the Prudential until further notice. He is unable to state the amount of money the company will assign for loans.

DAVIS CONTINUES UNDECIDED

Governor Doesn't Say He Will Or Won't Be Candidate

HAS ALL OTHERS GUESSING

Ironton G. O. P. Editor Rips Into Harding, Davis

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU
COLUMBUS — (Special) — Those who have been urging Governor Harry L. Davis to get into the race for renomination for Governor on the Republican ticket and those who likewise have been insisting that Congressman Simeon D. Fess should get into the race for United States Senator, cannot understand why these gentlemen have hesitated and hesitated and meditated and then hesitated some more. For instance, there is an old college roommate of Mr. Fess in Columbus who is somewhat prominent in affairs, but who still retains his recollections of those little traits of his chum that enable him to say that he knows another man, and who will bet dollars to doughnuts right now that Fess will never enter the race. Then there are W. W. Durbin, the breezy and bombastic bill, as someone called him, and former Governor James E. Campbell, good soul, not growing old, just growing ripe; they have been urging Governor Davis to get into the race to show he is a brave man and all that. So they taunt and dare and nominate and then speculate as to whether Governor Davis will act on their suggestion, while the Governor has another check to think it over as his allotted time expires. They little know what Davis knows.

And this is what Davis knows. He knows the fable by Aesop about the two frogs who were traveling the dry and dusty roads after the hot sun had dried up their spring pond. The weather was warm and they were thirstier than the citizens of Milwaukee under the operation of the Volstead act and as dry as a covered bridge in July. But all at once they came to a deep, cool well, holding out its inviting dampness and coolness to them. "Well, let's jump in," said one frog. "No," said the other, "let's look about it. It's all very well now, but if the well should dry up how should we ever get out?" Aesop, who tried to point a moral rather than to attain any continuity to his tale did not inform us whether the frog actually leaped in or not, for you see he was trying to bring a word of caution in the proverb, "Look before you leap," and so this reader will not add to the $2,921,563 guesses that have been made as to whether Davis will run again. There is enough evidence at hand to warrant a guess that if other avenue of continued journey is before Dr. Fess he will shun the doubtful senatorial trail, but as for one would be foolish to risk a reputation for unflinching accuracy by guessing. If life depended upon the correct analysis, the odds might favor the prospect that he would be seen tearing around the state in a manner hard to explain upon the part of a man who has no further ambition in political life.

Of course, there are all sorts of stories running thru a succession as endless as the numerous iterations, denials and retractions of the August nights. The Governor will run, he will not, he will and so forward to utter weariness. Then there are rumors of a third pensionnaire as, for example, the one about Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, heir-at-politics to the nomination by the will of the Harding crowd at Washington and prospectively of Davis himself. The story is that Carmi was in Columbus a few days ago and gave a constituent a resounding whack on the back right in the union station of Columbus and told him to tell the boys at home to get lined up because he was going to be in the race. And Colonel Thompson said, "He would not be in if Davis is in, so the argument was that Davis will not be a candidate because Carmi, sly and crafty worker, had it out of the box that Davis will not be a candidate and is getting the inside on the other runners thru his pole information. It is a certainty that Colonel Thompson is doing what he can to get things ready if he starts. Right now they are creating legends of what he did in Washington during the arms limitation congress when he was a member of the advisory committee and had a seat under the balcony at every last session. It is peddled around that he is the man who conceived and carried thru the prohibition on the use of poison gas in warfare so as to make the future conflicts which the congress contemplated pleasant little outdoor affairs and not bloody and brutal. This poison gas agreement is supposed to have a definite relation to Ohio politics.

Now, for Carmi's information, the trick has a lot to learn about the tricks of Ohio politics, not having participated in the rough part of the game as a candidate for a baker's dozen of years, Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith had the same sort of feed box down. He, too, got set to run, when strangely enough Davis did not get out of the Judge's way. One doubts whether Colonel Thompson has it in "black on white" from Davis that if (Davis) will be content with what he has gained in Ohio politics and is ready to step down and out and have promises with the game. Yet and word promises do not go, for Smith had them and it only made him feel bad about the vanity of pledges and the faithlessness of men. He, too, thought he knew, but finds he has not spoken a word, other than a mere formal one, to his Excellency these many weeks. "Put not your trust in princes," wrote Solomon. He was himself well known to the breed. He realized that they are entitled to one shift without explanation. Davis had his with Smith. Has he had it with Carmi? Be careful, Carmi!

What seems to have been as much as possible in a number of the bellet that Fess, after all, may desert the Senatorship fight is the fact that his addresses throughout Ohio have failed to soothe or to satisfy. They did not quite put the audiences to sleep neither did they quite waken them. They just left them with a vague unsatisfied longing for something else. Then came the hint that the good professor might be made secretary of education if, as and when such a position is created, as they are talking of doing down in Washington. In the meantime there is put out this talk about Walter Folger Brown, of Toledo, as a candidate; the man who may some time or other reorganize the Federal government along the lines of economy and efficiency. After what has happened to Ohio under one of those high-gear organizations, one may marvel that such a thing, done as Brown may propose, as we said, some time in the future, should be regarded as an asset, but then the ways of politics are mysterious. If Brown comes in to have a fight because the brethren have new yet and never will forgive him for his 1913 heresy, do you think he pleases. If it isn't William H. Boyd of Cleveland in the race, it will be someone else. And stick a pin there.

Those who read the outpourings of Editor John B. Corns of Ironton on the woes of the party of Lincoln, Grant, Harry Davis, Carmi Thompson and John B. Corns, must have imagined the Ohio river afire. He calls his screed which seems to have been widely distributed as "Merely Our View" but if that is all, they are broad views. Corns looks from Washington to Columbus and from Columbus to Washington and doesn't really know whether he is sadder when contemplating Washington or when contemplating Columbus. He still hates Wilson, the late President, with all the old-time venom, but gee! How he does lay it on Davis and Harding. It's time, says he, to "get away from the Jack Arnolds, the Clarence Browns, the Harvey Smiths and the Harry Davises" and in this hour select men big enough to handle the job." Colonel Carmi A. Thompson seems to meet the specifications. But later on, he pays a tender tribute to the national regime by saying: "In the nation we are almost as important as we are in the state." After a "full year of normalcy, politics, fear and trembling have marked our efforts. The bonus plan has been a scare crow, business has not been encouraged or relieved, the farmers have been forced to organize threatening blocs for their own protection, profiteering has continued, the railroads have been hindered and the almost unbearable tax burden has been little relieved." Then prescribing, he adds: "What we need at Washington is decision, intelligence, force and infinitely less of politics." If it were a hard shell Democrat saying these things, he would be accused of making reckless partisan utterances, but coming from a fount so pure, it simply must be believed, men, it must be!

One of the proverbs that we all learned in school was this one: "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link." It is capable of demonstration and it has a potent reference and a direct bearing on a certain situation in Ohio and throughout the nation. Various of those persons who can receive radio waves from all parts of the United States and tell at any given minute the exact political pulse of the country, give assurance that President Warren G. Harding is strong and that Congress is very, very weak. That reads all right to the Harding admirer; fine, in fact, but how does it look to the fellow who thinks in terms of an essential unity, "the administration," as we generally term it, one who sees the whole chain and does not compare link with link? It can be imagined that the fellow staled on the highway at night and looking for a good Samaritan to tow him to town would hardly be interested in a chain that was 50 per cent bad. For is there much comfort in this for the partisan who has to defend 50 per cent of a thing to cover up his condemnation on the 50 per cent that is bad. And what shall be said when the "good part" puts its stamp of approval on the "bad part"?

"The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la la. Breathe the promise of merry sunshine." So runs the couplet from the "Mikado" and it tells us that there is in store a summer of roses and that which is now forbidden under the eighteenth amendment to the constitution.

tution. As they note the candidates angling up everywhere for state, district and county offices, the Democrats insist that they are flowers that bloom in the spring. In 1920 it seemed as if the ticket would go begging in many districts, but in this year they are getting ready in March in a week there have been at least three for Secretary of State and at least four for Attorney General and at least one for Governor. As the party of the state "hard core," as the say-ings goes, "Judge Charles F. Schaber is the hope of Bucyrus, which has long yearned for state recognition. "Ben" Harris is Lorain's hope. W. D. Fulton is back again as Newark's choice and so it goes.

It is always interesting to record the course of the village. Here for instance is the village of Milford, which lies in both Hamilton and Clermont-cos, boasting that it has collected $100,000 in fines from the sinful persons of Cincinnati who will indulge themselves in home brew and like potatoes. And then there is Terrace Park, a suburb which Cincinnati claims as all her own. Terrace Park, too, would be in on this soft stuff and just the other day carried thru by popular suffrage an ordinance creating a special prohibition enforcing department under which the arresting officers get a large part of the fines. What must grieve the oppressed taxpayer who has lots of friends in utterance but few in deed is that the village troopers do not get all the fines that may be collected. They have a way in these suburbs and out in the rural townships where the justice courts are the peculiar appendage of some firm lawyers of developing wonderful "forgetteries" where suitable agreements are made. For particulars one may scan the court records of Montgomery-co and other jurisdictions.

But reform touches even Pickaway-co, where for four generations a chicken fight, occasionally, has been as much a part of the social life as a wedding party, a dance, a quilting bee or any of the simple rustic pleasures. The county has only recently had its first chicken fight and sorrow reigns among the patrons of this sport in the larger centers of population who once visited the counties which did not know there was a law against the sport. It was Sheriff Frank L. Holycross of Franklin-co, who "threw the gaff" into the fighters, kicking them all for a ten-spot each for forfeit money. Pickaway getting the money and Franklin the honors. What could be fairer?

Chronologically, the year 1922 and its predecessor, 1921, may lose their significance and be designated by other characteristics. Who does not recollect reading in his Caesar's Commentaries the listing of the years as those in which Marcellus and M. Piso were consuls? And who does not hear Columbus citizens recall events as occurring in the second mayoralty of old George J. Karb in "good old Columbus town." Just comes naturally. And shall not the future highway material interest define 1921 as "coal tar year?" And 1922 as "cement year?" What better appellations could be given them? The cement fellows, to mix metaphors just a little, are wallowing in clover. There are certain persons who insist that the Dayton investigator who put the fancy didoes on the report on the Three C's highway has much to do with this, but that's only a story. Mayhap they forgot the social success achieved by Leon C. Herrick, Director of Highways, with the cement crowd in the leading hostilities of Columbus. They're a bunch, this cement crowd, and they have been around for some time and have not been idle a moment of the time, if the indications may be trusted. Now there is talk of a state cement plant, but after what has happened to the state brick plant, may be the state will be too wise for that. Put us in mind of the $23,000,000 fine on John D. Rockefeller. The reformers yelled themselves hoarse, asking that it be taken off because they did not wish to be stung for higher prices on their coal "the" back in those days. And it would be just like those cement people to "fine" the state if it dared to make them cut prices for a season. But, any way, Ohio is paying $1.50 to $2.00 for cement selling to other states for $1.30.

Now that the Italian societies have announced their plan of storming the Capitol of Ohio to prevent the execution of one of their race, Sam Pur-pera, of Cleveland, for murder, who has just obtained his third reprieve from the death chair, new and interesting possibilities are opened up. Suppose they try to execute a native born American of the pioneer stock? What a crowd could come to the historic statehouse where once Lincoln spoke and where his martyred body lay for a day! The old days surely have passed and new days are upon us. Can it be imagined that if a descendant of one of the Mayflower Pilgrims fell about of the May that the banners would be brought forth. There have been a host of stories about this Italian pilgrimage in which the united power of a race is to be expressed. Some hint that it may "take the place of Fiume as a live 'issue' in state affairs. At all events, the demonstrations that are planned to stop this process of the law bid fair to establish a new era in state affairs.

This opening up of the whole subject of capital punishment by Governor Davis has produced a lot of comment, second only to the censorship of Mrs. Evelyn Francis Snow, Ohio's leading movie censor. If the people of the state want another vote on the subject, that's their business. They voted down the abolition bill in 1912 by some 45,000 when there was a trend toward the ratification of all amendments. But a decade has come by since that time and maybe the state is so much further "advanced toward civilization" that it does not care much about the numerous victims of the bandits, gunmen, thieves and bank robbers, but is more deeply concerned about the minority of life-takers who get caught in the net and finally find themselves in danger of their lives by the electric chair route. The editor of the Cleveland News of Governor Davis's home town thinks he is pretty near alone in finding an "overwhelming public demand" for any change and thus discourses on the subject: "Instead of subjecting himself because Ohio feels the need of a 'relief of barbarism' or doing anything to spare brutal assassins the one penalty they dread, the Governor might do well to concern himself a little more with efforts to protect the decent men, women and children of Ohio and stop the 'killing of human beings' by design or accident outside the penitentiaries. To be quite specific and constructive, we respectfully urge upon Governor Davis that he forget about abolishing capital punishment and give his time to a movement to abolishing railroad grade crossings through Ohio, that our state need no longer feel responsible for such horrors as the recent slaughter of a bus load of school children down state or the more recent killing of sixteen unoffending men and women in the Palmsville death trap."

It will be interesting to note the reaction from the Governor's appeal. If he should become a candidate for re-election it would naturally be a part of his record. His administration, due to the crime wave, which is now of what has been termed "legal murders" than any others in a similar length of time and "death row" is still filled. As for the glory of advocating a change as the Fourth Constitutional Convention did at the instance of J. R. Read, of Akron, the Governor is alone among the candidates for Governor. The other names to take the position of the French Prime Minister who was long ago approached on the subject, "Abolish the infliction of death?" he asked. "Why certainly, I favor it. Let our bandits get us the example!"

NEW DISCOVERY IS LIFE SAVER

Method of Recharging Nerves Found by Britisher

STATUE FURNISHES DATA

Great Power Wrapped Up in Carbon Pencils

LONDON — (Special) — A. E. Baines, British electrician, whiffed away an afternoon in the British museum.

He saw an ancient Egyptian statue of An-Kheft-Ka, kinsman of a long-forgotten Egyptian king.

The statue held a queer small cylinder in one hand.

"What is it?" Baines asked.

None of the learned Egyptologists could tell him.

"I'm going to find out," Baines said.

Baines has And incidentally he's found what he thinks is a method of recharging the human nervous system with energy—a device that will save hundreds of lives on the surgeon's table or under other circumstances where the nervous system has much to bear.

Baines thought the cylinder in the Egyptian's hand was a symbol of power. Experiments showed him that carbon pencils, specially hardened, which look like the statue's cylinder, have a pronounced effect in strengthening the nerves.

Dr. White Robertson of the British Army Medical Service says Baines' discovery has great possibilities.

GUILD GIRLS IN STATE MEET

Members of First Baptist Church Attend Toledo Assembly

Members of the World-Wide Guild of the First Baptist church, High and McDonel-sts, were much in evidence at the state meeting which opened Friday in the Ashland-ay Baptist church, Toledo, to continue over Sunday.

Mrs. A. T. MacDonell, W. Market-st, supervisor of the guild, accompanied the delegation to that city. Other chaperones were: Mrs. Adda Stuckey, Mrs. Clyde Troutman, M. A. Carl Webber, Mrs. W. L. Stokesbury, Mrs. Alfred Brogan and Mrs. W. Vincent.

Young women who made the trip included Misses Elsie Dekin, Faye Randall, Marie McClure, Hazel Stewart, Ruth Roebue, Louise Zurmohr, Grace Jolley, Margaret Ralston, Olive Parmenter, Delma Chapman, Helen Dunn and Hazel Frazer. Miss Lois Thomas, Springfield and Jameson-av, song writer of the guild, was unable to attend the meeting on account of illness.

Miss Thomas composed an original song which heralded Lima before the throngs attending the convention.

Miss Hazel Frazer, in an original poem, entitled "In Answer to the Call" placed Lima and the First Baptist church on the map. Yells by the guild punctuated the sessions in this Lima was in the lead.

Work of the girls is to undertake carrying of the gospel into the great mission fields. They will return Sunday afternoon from Toledo.

HOUSE OF ROWLANDS TO OCCUPY NEW HOME IN THE HEART OF LIMA RETAIL DISTRICT

Plans Announced by Manager of Famous Happy Home Makers

BUILDING ENTIRELY CHANGED

April Fifteenth Set as Date for Grand Opening on Square

Walter D. Rowland, vice president and manager of the J. W. Rowlands furniture company, announced yesterday his plans for occupying their own business block at 57 Public Square.

The firm is one of the oldest in Allen-co, having been founded on N. Main-st. by J. W. Rowlands in 1892. He removed to the Metheany block in 1901, and a few years later purchased the quarters then occupied by G. E. Blum at 57 Public square. Despite his ownership, he remained in his old location until developments last year decided him to occupy a new home.

The Lima Cut Stone company has been entrusted with the remodeling and changing the building proper. The basement has been cemented and made into a modern showroom, a portion to be occupied as a furniture repair department. New elevator service, rest room balcony with phones and checking facilities, and a new modern Victrola department will be added features. The building is 50x160 feet, three floors and basement. Officers of the J. W. Rowlands company are: J. W. Rowlands, president; Walter D. Rowlands, vice president and manager; and C. T. Helmkamp, secretary treasurer.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT PLANS ELIMINATION OF ONE-ROOM SCHOOL HOUSES

Allen-co will follow in the footsteps of Clark-co in the elimination of the "little red school house," if plans of C. A. Arganbright, county superintendent, materialize.

There are but a few of the one-room buildings left in the county. Failure of bond issues in the past two years has continued to make them a part of the county educational system.

A recent bond issue in Clark-co which carried, will replace the last one-room school there with a modern centralized structure. It is the first county in the state to get rid of the one-room buildings.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR VETERAN'S GRAND BALL

O. L. Wallburg, secretary of the local B. & O. Veterans' association, was in Dayton Saturday completing plans for the B. & O. annual ball to be given in that city Thursday afternoon and evening.

All the grand officers of the Veterans' association as well as the Ladies' auxiliary will be present. Daniel Willard president of the B. & O. Railroad; C. W. Galloway, vice-president and Mrs. Margaret F. Stevens, associate editor of the B. & O. magazine are also expected to be present. Mrs. Stevens is better known as "Aunt Mary".

ELIMINATE RAIL GRADE HORRORS

Bulletin from Safe School Head Sent to Arganbright

Determination of Vernon M. Riegel, state superintendent of schools to eliminate recurrence of grade crossing horrors like the which occurred near Van Wert, is seen in a bulletin received Saturday by C. A. Arganbright, county superintendent.

Several school children were killed and others maimed when a Pennsylvania freight struck a school bus in which nearly 40 children were riding.

Another accident of similar character recently occurred in the state at Painesville.

Riegel in his bulletin suggests that the following precautions be taken:

No vehicles be used where the persons seated within interfere with the driver's view.

A person should always go ahead onto railroad tracks to signal the driver if the way is clear.

When the vision is obscured by the condition of the weather or other cause, the passengers should walk over the crossing.

Adherence to these suggestions, it is believed, may save lives of many school children, who ride to school in buses.

HAYNES PRODUCTION DOUBLES PAST MONTH

That Haynes production has been more than doubled since February first of this year, was the statement made by Alton G. Seibert, vice president and general manager of The Haynes Automobile Company, Kokomo, Indiana. Mr. Seibert declared that the rapid increase in the factory output was made necessary by the large volume of orders received since the national automobile shows.

How Many Objects Beginning With "S" Can You Find in This Picture?

Here's a picture that contains a lot of objects beginning with the letter "S." The object of the game is to find the most. Twenty cash prizes will be given for the twenty best lists of words submitted in this Puzzle Game. The persons sending in the largest and nearest correct list of "S-words" will win 1st prize, the second-best, 2nd prize, etc.

Without any trouble whatever you can readily see such objects as "saw," "saddle," "store," and "steeples." Can't you? Well, the others are just as plain, but the idea is to see who can find the most. I wonder how many of these "S-words" can you find? Can you find twenty?

You can win $1000

THE PRIZES
Winning Answers Will Receive Prizes as Follows:
20 Grand Prizes given	Prizes given	Prizes given
1st Prize.....$20.00	$500.00	$1,000.00

Here's the Plan

If your answer to the "S-word" puzzle is awarded first prize by the judges and you have sent in three dollar worth of subscriptions to THE GENTLEWOMAN MAGAZINE you will win $500 instead of $200.00. Second prize, $375; third prize, $200.00. (See second column of prize list.) If your answer was first prize and you have sent in five dollar worth of subscriptions to THE GENTLEWOMAN MAGAZINE you will receive $1,000 as your prize. (See third column of prize list.)

Isn't this a dandy offer? But look! Extra amounts will be given on all prizes in the same manner. If you have sent in five dollar worth of subscriptions to qualify for the $1,000 reward, ABSOLUTELY, $5 worth is all. You'll find it easy to find a few subscribers to THE GENTLEWOMAN MAGAZINE. It is by far the best home magazine published for the price. It is filled with splendid stories, fashions, department store news and articles on seasonal topics, etc.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

THE past week has been on the constructive side in the big ledger of business for virtually all lines of industry and endeavor. Stocks and bonds continued their advance, Liberties reaching their highest quotations, the third issue now selling within $1.60 of par. Grains fluctuated, with no decided dips; steel firm and railway earnings continue to show better comparatively. Money at the same time declined in New York, and closed at three to three and a half per cent. Merchandise is seeing some advances.

There was no development either at Washington or in Europe to cause uneasiness. The bonus bill will have a hard, long fight in the senate even if passed by the House. Nonparticipation on the part of Uncle Sam in the Geneva conference has been discounted. The President went to Florida to play golf and Congress is virtually killing time thru committee work.

Locally, conditions are steadily improving. More men are getting on pay-rolls and there are more new pay rolls. Farmers are optimistic and present markets afford a profit, where a few months ago they meant certain loss. The money situation here is not of the best. Banks continue to be loaned up and borrowers, with seven per cent necessary if money must be had. Bulldog and Loans are still short of funds, and few of them are loaning at all. Contrariwise, collateral loan banks have idle money and are canvassing for patrons. Automobile discount houses are doing a thrifty business but able to take on more patrons. Sales of automobiles have doubled, the two lower priced standard cars reporting the most active sales in months.

In the retail district, furniture, ladies' ready to wear, piece goods, shoes, paints, some hardware and building supplies reported active trade. New building looks optimistic despite the money situation. We are on the way, so come ride with us.

THE FINAL MYSTERY

WHAT does it feel like to die? This question aroused intense curiosity in Thure B. Wagellus, brilliant young chemist and psychic investigator of Brooklyn, N. Y.

A daring scheme to peek behind the mysterious curtain of death occurred to him.

Locked in his laboratory, young Wagellus rigged up an apparatus that dripped an anaesthetic drug into an inhaler attached to his nostrils.

This had an automatic regulator. Each successive experiment, Wagellus went one drop of drug nearer to death.

Then, coming out of his stupor, he wrote down his experiences.

"I am on the verge of discovering the great secret of the hereafter," he told friends.

Finally the drug carried him beyond the curtain, showed him what lies after death. But death is a one-way door.

THE mystery of death has been a matter of deep thought by every person that ever lived.

Haller, great philosopher and physician, watched his pulse on his death-bed, hoping to be able to speak a message an instant after death claimed him. His last words were, "My friend, the artery ceases to beat." His voice was stilled before he could impart the secret of the beyond.

Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of blood, also kept a close watch on his pulse when he was dying in 1657. He knew the exact instant he died, but was unable to get a message back to the doctors grouped about him.

WHY do men fear death, yet yield without dread to its twin-brother, sleep?

Probably because they go to sleep with a conviction that they are certain to awaken in the morning, while death closes the door on mortal consciousness and opens the way into the unknown.

People have an instinctive fear of what they do not understand. The savage is terrified at the explorer who can remove his glass eye. But explain the glass eye to the savage and he loses his fear. Our ancestors of 500 years ago would die of fright if they could come to life and see our movies, electric lights and flying machines.

We, too, would be terrified if we could look into the future 500 years, or beyond the grave. Progress is slow because the human brain cannot stand too rapid change. Curtains of mystery shield sanity.

CLEANUP WEEK IN LIMA

PLANS have been completed for the observance of cleanup week in this city, April 1 to 7. Hearing to the plea of the state fire marshal that Lima participate in a statewide movement, city and chamber of commerce officials Saturday decided to enter heartily into the plans outlined.

No time was lost. The chamber of commerce at once began the organization of a citywide committee of representatives of various clubs and other bodies, so that the program for the week will reach all corners of the city and all classes of people.

This movement is designed as an aide to fire prevention. Rubbish in corners, debris piled in sheds and in cellars, boxes stacked against alley fences, careless disposition of ashes and various other things that could be mentioned, provide eyesores in addition to increasing the fire hazard.

The determination of the officials of the city and of various civic organization in this respect is commendable. Anything that will improve the city, give it a better appearance and reduce the fire danger, is worth while. During the past year, thru lack of fire prevention education, carelessness and the presence of needless hazards, 343 people were burned to death in Ohio. This state had 5,835 fires during the year, of which 2,793 were in homes.

Fire took the life of more than one person a day, on an average and burned $140 a minute in tangible property. It is high time steps are being taken to reduce this awful loss of life and property, needless because it is due to carelessness and the failure on the part of many to keep their premises clear of debris that produce a fire hazard.

In connection with cleanup week, April 1 to 7, it will also be a good time for the liberal use of the paint brush in brightening up structures; use hammer and nails in making repairs on broken down fences and in other places.

A PROUD RECORD

FAILING health has caused D. W. Higby, superintendent of the Allen-Go Children's Home, and his faithful wife, matron of that institution, to resign, effective May 1. They will have completed nearly 24 years at the home when they leave. During that time they have had the training of between 2,000 and 2,500 children.

"Dad" and "Mother" Higby will leave the local institution with heavy hearts. The better part of their lives has been given over to rearing unfortunate little ones. They have given to the hundreds of boys and girls during the many years the same kind care they would give their own offspring. The records of many of those who have gone out from that home to make their marks in the world—honest, upright, God-fearing men and women—speak louder than cold type for their efforts.

But there will be a joy in their hearts, too, as they go to a new abode to spend their declining years. It was expressed yesterday by Higby on behalf of himself and good wife in this manner:

"My greatest joy is the fact that there has never been during our service a word of criticism from the public or thru the press or from home trustees."

What a record! More than 23 years in a public institution, handling the most precious thing in the world—children—and not a single word of criticism! And criticism the freest thing to be found.

There should be solace for this pair, who have come in contact with more boys and girls than any others in our county, as they go out to await the setting of the sun on their lives. They have the knowledge that they have done a big job well and there can be no greater compensation.

The ladies of the city,
They're painted to the eyes,
They're highly artificial
And very worldly-wise;
But oh, my little country girl
She scorns such false deceit,
For all of her is natural
And innocent and sweet!

The ladies of the city
Go flitting to and fro
With little up above the waist
And even less below,
But oh, my little country girl
She's modest as can be,
Her gingham gown is amply made
As all the world can see!

The ladies of the city
They dance and drink and smoke,
They make you take them out to shows
And supper—till you're broke;
But oh, my little country girl,
I never spend a cent,
I sit and pet her every night
And she is quite content!

The ladies of the city
Are very flip and smart, They're very gay and witty—
And haven't any heart!
And yet, and yet—the city girls
I love and I adore,
For oh! my little country girl
Is such an awful bore!

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well

HEALTH FOR THE WORKER

Because sickness wastes the efficiency expected by the employer as well as by the contents of the employee's pay envelope, the prevention of disease has become a recognized industrial problem and the health of the indoor worker a vital issue.

To best maintain health the indoor worker must pay careful attention to correct position, proper and sufficient lighting, rest, recreation, fresh air and food and drink.

The light must be sufficient and correctly placed to prevent strain on the eyes. Several serious disturbances of health are caused by insufficient light. Chief among these are eyestrain and bodily deformities.

The worker himself must see that his body does not become deformed. By studying your job you can in most cases find a way to do your work without assuming an unhealthy position.

See that your chair or bench is neither too high nor too low. The workbench, table or desk may also be of a height that places strain on your body or it may be placed in such a way that the light causes eyestrain.

Faulty position at desk or bench frequently results in a contracted chest and this in turn interferes with proper expansion of the lungs. This may cause one to be more susceptible to tuberculosis.

INGROWN NAIL

TOUGHEN SKIN AND TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

charge. To the office, whence came Walter D. Rowlands, the rising furniture prince. He abandoned the more spectacular speedway game, for the conservative joy of making happy homes.

Out for a walk around. Crowds in our banking houses, taking in and taking out. Moose Patt invited me to tour the new Temple, and marked same down for early next week. With my stereotyper in his new Dayly-Overland. How the West End is building up. Dean Campbell's new home at State and Cole almost ready for the vacuum cleaner; new apartment house on Jameson; three new ones on South Baxter. Passed Weinfield's Washery going full blast. Few lights in the outskirts, but some recently added. Streets showing many chuck holes, but not like the commissioners' roadways. All of 'em have bottoms. Everything looks prosperous in the State street colony. Who was it did that paving job on West Elm? When will they start a petition to resurface West Wayne? Isn't that the sweetest little bungalow on State near Woodlawn? Rosedale avenue looks a good buy.

Over east, and it seems cleaner in that section. Mayhap because the DeeTeel doesn't work on Sunday. Buckeye Terrace, the colonial home of General George A. Hall. What a power he was in politics in the old days; he shouldn't care, for we have no politics nowadays. A policeman in the residential section; must be on his way home for lunch. Walved to Dr. Pence, the old School Board boss. Up northward, and the houses are doubling toward the hospital; Charlie Shappell will soon be in town. Boys playing baseball and girls shooting marbles. Murphy park ready to open; you can't kill a national pastime thru throwing a world's series. Wonder if Cincinnati will get into the second division; Bob Rice says not.

Down to the B. & O. Many Lima people going to see the Ziegfeld Follies at Dayton. New thru service to Louisville now ready and trains to run into the Grand Central. Brake-man tells me they could cut off an hour between Cincinnati and Toledo, and will, he believes, this summer. Travel light these days. Wonder if we shall ever get that new union depot; the land site is ideal. An old sign of Crystal Rock beer. Cedar Point excursions only three months away. There comes a passenger train on the Lake Erie & Western; that's unusual. No, it's the north bound B. & O.

Time to make plates for the one o'clock edition, the stereotyper says. Wish I had stuck to sticking type. Instead of becoming an intellectual; the forsmen owns his own home. Jobs pay better than positions since we made this world safe for democracy.

BUILDING BOOM PREDICTED COMMENCING HERE IN APRIL

Wise Builders Are Laying Their Plans This Month

The spring building boom in Lima is already beginning. It is predicted that by the first of April more building activities will be in evidence in Lima than in the past decade.

To avoid the almost certain rush for labor and materials, the wise builders are now contracting for their various needs, whether they intend beginning operations immediately or even as late as May 15th.

On this page you will find a number of dealers, whose service, quality and reasonable prices are certain to appeal to the wise buyers. At least make it a point to investigate the offerings of these merchants. It may be a means of your being better satisfied and at the same time saving a considerable amount of money.

For building materials we suggest calling on the Consumer's Building Supply Co. Everything in supplies. Prices right.

For high-grade, reasonable priced wall papers, new patterns and colorings, and paints, see the Quinn Decorating Co.

For home furnishings of a very fine character, yet at prices all can afford to pay, call on the Empire Furniture Co.

George T. Kocher Lumber Co., with yards in Lima and Elida, offers a remarkably complete selection of lumber for all kinds of building purposes.

Jones-Kinn Company has the Ideal Arcola, a wonderful modern scientific heating plant that would be ideal for any home.

In building that new home, investigate the tile features offered by the Acme Mantel & Tile company. They have something special to show home owners.

For high grade electrical fixtures, all the newest designs and color as well as metal effects, and for wiring that you can depend on, call the Wentworth-Dean Electric company.

BUILDING A HOME

By Geo. T. Kocher
Kocher Lumber Company,
Lima and Elida, O.

"It was Jacob Rits who so appropriately said, 'Upon the home rests our moral character; our civic pride and political liberties are grounded there. American citizenship in the long run will be, must be, what the American home is.'"

"He was right and there never was a time in America when we so needed a return to the same and sober living, first engendered in the home and meant to be perpetuated in the homes that came after. By a home I do not mean the 'borrowed house' that the renter uses today and has to move from tomorrow but the permanent abode where we rear and teach our families, a place all our own, no matter how humble, where we and our children may say with pride 'Yes, this is OUR home.'"

"I have seen it proven time and again that one can build a home cheaper than one can pay rent. Careful figures have been prepared emphasizing the truth of this statement. Whether this be altogether true strictly speaking or not, the fact remains that there is a sentimental economical side to the question that so far outweighs any opposition argument, that the home owner is content to say he is far better off financially and in every other way. You, too, will find that building and owning your own home will pay big dividends in satisfaction that you never before dreamed of, if you have always been a rent payer."

"This is the day of the small home — that the little home has come into favor as never before. I have never seen so many beautiful and artistic small homes as are being built throughout America today. When I ride thru the bungalow district of our city and observe these many beautifully arranged little homes they inspire me even more than the mansions so-called. The designers seem to have struck a happy thought in planning little homes that combine beauty, convenience and economy."

"We urge the small home idea. The plan service we have for you shows pictures of such homes."

"Most people favor lumber for building their homes. Every day demonstrates the fact that it pays to build with lumber, and particularly at this time."

"I would be glad to aid any prospective home builder in preparing plans for a new home."

Important Suggestions to Those Planning a New Home

When you plan your new home have your architect to call and receive FREE a valuable book showing the installation of a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet in the kitchen. Have him make plans according to any one of the 50 Model Kitchens shown in the book. Specifications can be made right while you are building to include a Hoosier Cabinet which sets right in the wall (where you would build a Cabinet) and this will save you greatly on the cost and give you the full advantage of one of the world's best cabinets. The Kitchen Book Plan includes Fifty Plans of Model Kitchens submitted in a competition participated in by 243 of the leading Architects of America.

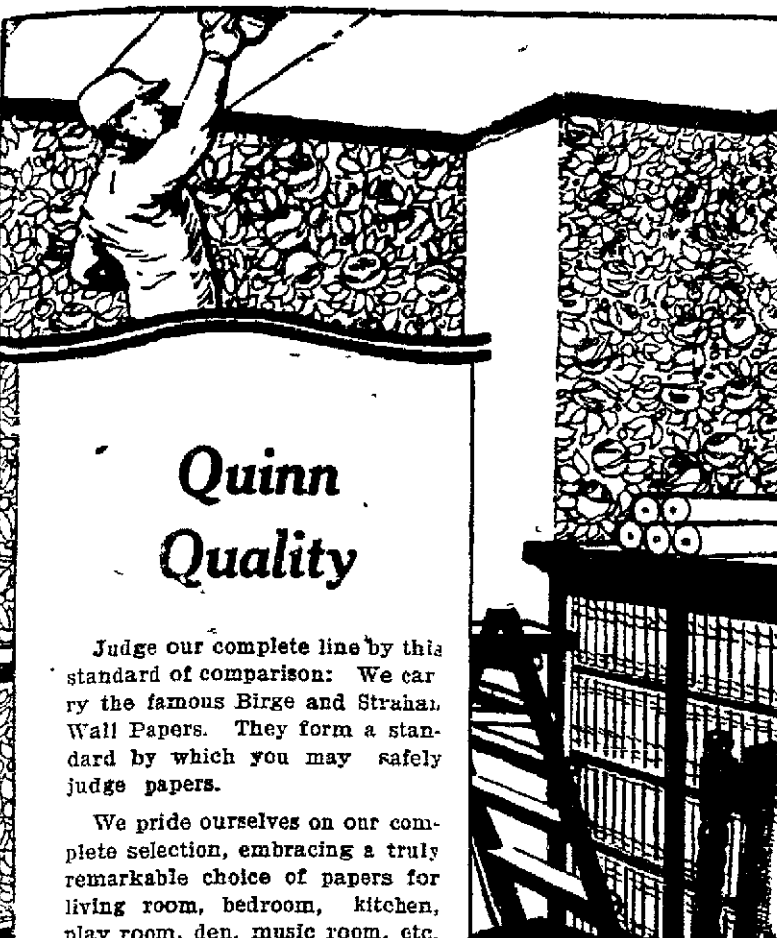

This book sells for Fifty Cents, but we are going to give it FREE to Architects or people who contemplate building this summer. You can just as well make your plans to include a Hoosier as not and it will save you money for you can buy the best Hoosier Cabinet for less than you can have a cabinet built in by a carpenter and still have more conveniences. This is an important matter and should merit the careful thought of any one who is going to build. Genuine Hoosiers now $34.00 up.

No, This Is Not a Phonograph, —It's a Fine Heating Plant

Estate HEATROLA

The Pipeless Furnace that goes into the parlor. Those planning a small home from three to six rooms will do well to consider the HEATROLA as their heating plant. It is guaranteed to heat a six room house by circulation. It requires no piping to carry the heat, no holes to cut in the floor and will save you 25% in fuel over a regular furnace. It is handsome in appearance, finely finished in baked enamel which will not burn off or discolor. No nicks anywhere and no backing at all to do. It will hold fire 60 hours without attention and burn any kind of fuel. The final solution of the heating problem for small homes — with or without basement. Not a stove, but a pipeless furnace no bigger than a stove. Installed as quickly as a stove in one of the living rooms. It's a reversible flue that can be run straight into the flue through the mantel or can be set up with a long pipe like a heater. Call and see this wonderful looking furnace and get a catalogue thoroughly describing the construction and operation. Economical, Reliable and Dependable. This heating system will save you money and while you are building you can have fine opening place on level with top of furnace so pipe will not show. If you are not going to build, we suggest that you install one in your home, select it NOW and be paying on it and have it delivered later. NOW IS THE TIME TO PLAN YOUR HEATING SYSTEM FOR NEXT WINTER.

NATIONAL LEAGUE LEADER DENIES PLAYERS ARE HOLDING OUT

BY BOB DORMAN

NEW YORK—"There are no holdouts in either league at present," says John Heydler, head of the National League.

Rather a strange statement, yet President Heydler means every word of it.

"Not until the bell rings, and a player has failed to report can he be classed as a hold-out," continued President Heydler.

"Too much is made of the so-called holdout."

"Many players who are dubbed holdouts are merely lax in answering their correspondence."

"Other players are away from home, hunting or fishing, and fail to get the contract promptly."

"As for admission prices, a little thought will convince tract submitted to him for his signature, why should so much ado be made about it?"

"Ball players are no different from anyone else. They have their services for sale, the same as a lawyer."

"They have the same right to put a value on their work and to bargain with their employers in order to obtain that price.

PRESIDENT JOHN HEYDLER

"In any business the man whose salary demands are unreasonable will soon find himself out of a job. That goes for baseball. Some players have an exaggerated idea of the profits made in baseball."

"Any club owner will tell you that the profits of the last two years, which have been the banner years of baseball, have not wiped out the deficits incurred from 1913 to 1919."

"As for admission prices, a little thought will convince anyone that they are eminently fair, as compared with that of other amusement enterprises."

"Regarding the outlook for the present season I am thru making predictions. They're the bunk. I would have to issue a favorable statement no matter what I thought."

"I am hoping that baseball will not suffer as a result of business conditions as they now exist."

"It seems that all over amusements have felt the pinch. Baseball is peculiar, however, it seems to weather a financial crisis better than any other amusement enterprise."

"Baseball is played under ideal weather conditions most of the season. That is one of its best assets in weathering a tight money market."

"Everyone likes to get out in the open. A ball game affords such opportunity, incidentally one gets the thrills that are furnished by the great national pastime."

"For that reason, no matter how low one's finances are, they manage to dig up enough to enable them to gain admission to the ball park."

"Picking a winner in the National League is beyond me. Perhaps I have a pretty definite opinion, but I am not going to express it. That wouldn't be diplomatic."

"I might say, however, that the New York Giants won the pennant and world's series last year. The Giants are certainly no weaker. Heine Groh at third gives the team additional power."

"There are seven other clubs in the National League, however, and I am not merely handing out flattery when I say that I believe each and every one is stronger than it was last season."

"St. Louis has a great team. It was going better than any club in the league at the close of the 1921 campaign. Gibson is sure to have the Pittsburg team up there."

"I look for keen competition and a great race."

ADA HIGH WINS WEST CENTRAL COURT TITLE

Lafayette Goes Under In Deciding Round

ADA High school won the West Central basketball championship for the third consecutive time, Saturday night, at Bluffton, when they defeated Lafayette in the finals 27 to 14. The losers did the best aggressive playing, but the Ada defense was impenetrable.

At the end of the first half the score was 9 to 6, but in the second frame Ada rushed their opponents off their feet.

Dixon, Ada's lanky forward, covered himself with glory. He made four field goals and two fouls, and in addition was in the thick of the fray at all stages. Ulrich, Lafayette forward, displayed a fine line of wares to admiring spectators. He caged two fielders and three fouls.

BLUFFTON BEATS DAYTON
In the main attraction of the evening Dayton lost to Bluffton college in a hard-fought encounter. This game, like the others, was slow and featured by very cautious playing in the first half, but things lived up in the second. The game ended with Bluffton holding the long end of a 17 to 16 score.

Louise, Dayton center, starred for his team with three field counters and two single-barreled efforts. Alderfer was the schilling star of the Blufftonites, speeding five field shots thru the basket for the field. He also made a foul.

SPINTERS OUT
Marty Spinters, star at the front position for Dayton, was out of the game with an injured knee, suffered when his team played Baldwin-Walace Thursday night.

More than two score teams participated in the tournament. The competition was narrowed down to 16 after the first round Friday night. Ada, Bluffton, Lafayette, Jackson Center, Rockford, Middleburg, N. Baltimore and Pandora surviving the second.

Ada, Spencerville, Lafayette and Rockford played in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon. Ada defeated Spencerville 15 to 6 and Lafayette trounced Rockford. Lineups and summaries of final tournament games and Bluffton-Dayton clash:

ABOLISH GRID RULE

NEW YORK—The free trial for a goal after a touchdown was abolished Saturday by the football rules committee. Henceforth, a team scoring a touchdown may put the ball in play or on back of the opponents' five yard line, and, from scrimmage, try for a single point by any legal scoring play.

Lima football authorities gave the new rule their unqualified approval Saturday.

COMPLETE COMPETITIVE BASIS

It will place the game on a competitive basis, and in case the score is close each team will have an equal opportunity to put across the winning marker. Heretofore many a game has been won by specialists with trained toes who hoisted the oval over the bar while their opponents looked helplessly on.

Naturally that sort of game left a bad taste in mouths of players and fans and charges of luck were frequently made. There is, of course, considerable skill connected with kicking a goal after touchdown, but the painstaking placing of the ball, the "aiming," etc., of the kicker is distasteful when the score is close—fans would much rather that the ball be in the thick of a skirmish.

COACHES EXPRESS APPROVAL

Coach O. J. Detrick declared he is in favor of it. "I also hope," he said, "that the basketball rules committee abolishes the free foul throw."

"I have regarded the rule as a superiority," Coach Ward Young of South High said. "After a team has made six points then a touchdown I do not see the necessity of adding another."

ARE DELIVERING

Twenty-five per cent of the Lima fans asked to participate in a fund to remodel the grandstand at Murphy-stad baseball park, have responded. Manager Bernie Halloran reported Saturday night. Letters were put in the mails only two days ago.

Prospects for a bright and attractive amphitheater when fans breeze around in the spring are flattering.

Dugan Worth More Than Ruth, Report

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Offers have been made for Joe Dugan of the Boston Red Sox that make him the highest valued player in the game. Harry Frazee, president of the club, intimated here Saturday.

"I have refused an offer of more money for Dugan than I got for Babe Ruth," Frazee said. He is reported to have been given $150,000 for the home run king.

160 'Diamonds' In The Rough

Culling out of Central High school's 1923 football material at spring practice promises to be a pretty big job for Coach O. J. Detrick, who thought the first of last week that 120 was a whole lot, but 49 more have put in their names, making a total of 169.

And Detrick doesn't believe it will be long before he has the list of candidates will amount to 175.

With all that material to work the coach will select, after the varsity team is formed, the best second string players, and organize two or three other elevens.

These will be encouraged to play as much as possible, and, as most of them are freshmen and sophomores, they will have a healthy ambition to make the representative squad by the time they enter the first year of their high school career.

NEWSBOYS SCORES

North Side News carriers lost to the Star five, 14 to 5, and the South Siders were defeated by the Gazette team, 64 in the second round of the newsboys' basketball league Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. Ray Bowsher, forward for the South Siders, was the star, making a spectacular basket from the center of the floor.

DELPHOS MANAGER

DULPHOS—Al Huysman has been selected to manage the local American Legion baseball team this season. He formerly managed the successful Cliftonville team. The first game will be played April 30 and tryouts will be conducted two Sundays previous.

HORSELESS AGE?

Old Dobbin has not been entirely antiquated, if a report from the Horse Association of America is taken as a criterion.

A substantial increase in horseback riding is noted. There are 20,000 business men in New York, 30,000 in Philadelphia, 7,500 in Boston and 16,000 in other cities who follow riding as a hobby.

There will be more riding this spring than in the last several years, the association believes.

"DUSTER" IS WILD

DALLAS—Walter Mails, Indian pitcher, was away off for the first time of the St. Louis Cardinals-Indian game Saturday and was largely responsible for the 4 to 3 defeat of the Speaker's American Leaguers.

The Cards scored two runs in the third frame without a hit on three bases on balls given by Mails, an error by Wamby and a sacrifice fly.

11 NATIONS

NEW YORK—Eleven foreign nations are expected to be lined up to fight America for the Davis cup when the battles close here on March 15.

Nine nations already have cabled their challenges and Rumania and Japan are considered as sure entries, as both have signified their intention of competing.

Last year there were a total of 12 challenges but Argentina and the Philippines defaulted without playing in any of the preliminary rounds so there is promise of a record number of actual competitors this year.

Y. DIRECTOR CITES NEED FOR GREATER PHYSICAL TRAINING

ANNUAL exhibition of the accomplishments of men and boys in the physical department of the Lima Y. M. C. A. promoted some pertinent remarks on training by Irvin G. Maxwell, physical director.

A call to the army of the physically fit was issued by him in an interview with the Lima News.

Increased efforts will be made, he said, to encourage mass calisthenics and exercise in other forms, and where there are now groups of tens and twenties attending classes there will in the future be hundreds.

"We have classes for boys of all ages; nine to ten years; 13 to 14, and 14 to 16. There are also the classes for seniors, young men and business men," the director declared.

"Our classes at noon, the six o'clock and employed boys' divisions are immensely popular and steadily growing in numbers, but there is ample room for many more. I would suggest that they be better patronized; many who do not find time to attend at other times during the day certainly can find time to devote a little attention to their bodily welfare then."

The above classes are held twice a week—Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Maxwell called attention to the fact that some 14 or 15 states of the Union have compulsory physical training. He does not believe it necessary to compel young people to build up their bodily structure if they receive proper encouragement in taking up some systematic course of training voluntarily.

"We are fairly well filled up now, but that doesn't mean we haven't room for more. Where a total of several hundreds now attend there should be thousands. I believe we are able to accommodate 2,000 persons here and give them the benefit of training which they in after years would not exchange for the most priceless possessions possible."

"We hear much these days concerning physical qualifications for those who enter the business world. In what way could they better fit themselves for the rush, grind and strenuousness of business activity than by paying some attention to their bodies before they enter the whirlpool?"

"Babson, the statistician, has declared one of the vital necessities before we ascend to a normal plane in business is that the men who direct commercial affairs shall be better fitted physically. One of the reasons why they faltered in the crisis in January of 1921 is needed is cooperation and more cooperation."

Facilities at the Y. M. C. A. are ample, Maxwell said; all that is because they hadn't the physical stamina to stem the tide."

STATE CAGE LAURELS WON BY MT. VERNON

Down Delaware Hi In Last Court Battle

DELAWARE—Mt. Vernon High school Saturday night became scholastic basketball champions of Ohio by defeating Delaware High in a bitterly fought game, 33 to 17.

Winning their way thru the preliminaries of the Northern division of the state inter-scholastic tournament, Mt. Vernon easily overcame Fortoria, her sister survivor from the preliminaries, Saturday morning. The score was 34 to 19.

In the same semi-final round Delaware disposed of Greenfield, the other surviving team from the Southern division competition on March 4 by the score of 34 to 20.

Mt. Vernon easily outclassed the other 100 quintets in the titular tournament, in which were represented the pick of the state's scholastic fives.

At the end of the first half of the title game with Delaware, the score was 22 to 7 in favor of Mt. Vernon. The play was fast and spirited.

At the conclusion of the tournament, which has been in progress here for the last four week-ends, sport authorities selected a mythical all-Ohio scholastic team.

Mt. Vernon placed three men, and Delaware and Greenfield one man each.

Opinion of local followers of the game favored Mt. Vernon before the

REUNION OF MAPLE TOPPLING CLANS

The designed as the "Allen-co tournament," bowling teams from nearby counties are expected to participate in the pin gathering at the Recreation alleys here in April. Several Wapakoneta squads of plumen are coming.

In the neighborhood of 30 Lima fives signified their intention of entering. Arrangements will be concluded by the last of March.

To Postpone Boxing Card From March 31

SETS will be taken immediately, according to Charles Maxwell, president of the Lima Gym club, Saturday night, to postpone the boxing card that was scheduled for March 31 at Memorial Hall.

The move becomes a necessity, according to the promoter, because of the fact that the Elks lodge is planning an initiation on the 31st. A large percentage of the attendance would be cut in event dates of the two affairs clashed. The club will ask the boxing commission for a week's postponement.

TO REPEAT TENNIS MATCH OF 1900

It is now up to the English Davis Cup team of 1900 to say whether there will be a return match with the team that represented the United States in that contest, for Dwight F. Davis, Holcombe Ward and Malcolm D. Whitman have agreed to play. The proposal originated in a statement by H. Roper Barrett, who was a member of the team from the British Isles, to the effect that his team could defeat the Americans if they should meet this year.

His argument that the English players last longer than their American contemporaries struck fire for it is the contention of many close followers of tennis that our men stay in the game longer than they do abroad. Julian S. Myrick, as president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, put Mr. Barrett's challenge before Davis, Ward and Whitman, who promptly accepted it.

MOTOR OUTLOOK GOOD FOR ALL

Predictions of National Auto Man
Are Encouraging

BY ALFRED REEVES
General Manager National Automobile
Chamber of Commerce

One of the most helpful signs on the 1922 business horizon is the lowered cost of motor transportation.

This means that every person doing business that involves the use of motor transportation will be able to operate more economically than in the last two or three years.

The reduction in motor transportation expense has come in two directions. The automobile manufacturers have reduced the price of their motor vehicle, direct to the consumer. The new 1922 values which represented an average lowering of manufacturing costs when raw materials would be less costly. This is one of the few businesses in which the retailer has not been holding out and in which the public has secured the prompt advantages of the reduction.

Lower first cost means a lower amount to be allowed each year for depreciations. Operating expenses have also been much reduced. According to figures compiled by the Cleveland Trust company, gasoline is now 3 1/2 per cent cheaper, oil 1 1/2 per cent, and lubricating oil 1 1/2 per cent cheaper than on January 1, 1921.

It is clear that this will be a customers' year and such a condition will prevail for some time. This situation, however, should be encouraging to the automobile trade. This industry is engaged primarily in selling transportation, not merely in merchandising new cars and trucks. The low upkeep costs of the present time will mean greater use of motor vehicles. There are now about 10,000,000 cars and trucks registered in the United States. The consumption of gasoline in August, 1921, was the highest on record. Automobile production in November, 1921, was 9 per cent higher than in the same period the year preceding.

Whatever the production figures of next year may be, it is probable that the sale of parts, tires, fuel, lubricating oil and other accessories will reach new records. The increased use of cars and trucks will tend to vent out the tolling stock more rapidly and help to accelerate the large replacement market toward which the industry has been looking for some time. Low operating cost will bring additional customers in the market and strengthen the demand for used cars.

The year 1922 will probably bring about increased public respect for the second-hand automobile. Used cars have heretofore been regarded as a necessary evil rather than as a business. There is no reason why a second-hand car should be in disrepute any more than a second-hand house. It is probable that the dealers and owners will get together in the large cities and employ neutral appraisers so that fair values may be determined for this product. There is already a tendency for dealers to take particular care in remodeling second-hand models so that the purchases who is ignorant of the mechanical details will not be misled.

Savings due to standardization of auto parts are said to amount to 15 per cent of the retail price annually.

American railway express has 1200 electric trucks in use.

REAL ACTIVITY AT DORT FACTORY

Increased Sales Mark Opening of Spring Season

The Dort Motor Co. reports greater activity in the motor car field than has been in evidence for some months. It is not that the robins are chirping, that the buds are swelling, and the pass-willows, those first harbingers of Spring, are showing signs of life.

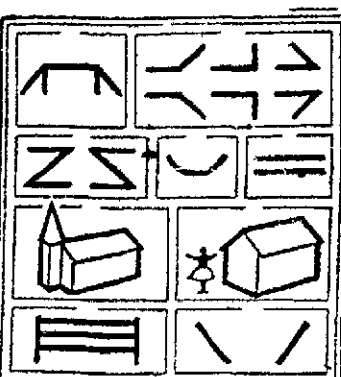

According to J. C. Stupp it is something more fundamental and more vital to the industry. Reports from the Dort factory show daily increasing production behind which there is a strong and well sustained demand for the product.

Partly is the increased demand noticeable in the closed models and the factory production records now indicate about a 50-50 break between open and closed jobs. This trend toward the closed car is due to two things Mr. Stupp believes. The new low price level represented by Model 19-1 Sedan and 14 F Coupe which gave the public closed car advantages at virtually open car cost, and the additional factor that is represented by the many refinements and additional mechanical features which prevail throughout the line.

London, Eng. has a motor ambulance for first aid to dogs injured on the streets.

It is harmful to the car to shift into reverse while the machine is moving forward.

ITALY'S ROAD SIGNS

The Italian Touring Club has devised a system of touring the Italian highways. The signs are drawn so as to show dangerous points, directions of roads and churches and schoolhouses along the way.

Tires will give out sooner from overloading than from any other cause.

Never test a battery just after filling with water.

OHIO SECOND IN STATE LIST OF AUTOMOBILES

"Interesting and illuminative comparisons are revealed by the statistics on motor car registrations for 1921, figures for which are now available," according to Mr. Walter C. Davis, secretary and sales manager of the Davis Motor Car Company.

"According to the final totals of motor cars registered there is now one automobile for every 10.2 persons in the United States. In Iowa there is one motor car for every 7.28 persons, in Alabama one to every 29.50 persons. In between these extremes come all the other states, with the agricultural states leading by a comfortable margin. New York is still on top of the list of registrations with over 800,000 motor motor cars, Ohio is second and Nevada is at the bottom with a little over 10,000. Florida showed the largest per cent increase in registrations last year with an increase of 32.40 per cent. The average gain for all the states was 17.6 per cent."

Agricultural states contain the largest number of automobiles in proportion to population.

German cycle car sells for 5000 marks—about $22 at present exchange rates.

Eighty-three per cent of the world's automobiles are in the United States.

Number of automobile in France has increased by 100 per cent since the beginning of the war.

Batteries Wear Out for Two Good Reasons

Every battery has two kinds of wear—the natural slow wear due to use, and the more rapid wear that comes from abuse.

Keep the proper amount of water in your battery by putting in a little every two weeks. Test with the hydrometer to make sure there's enough charge. Come in to Battery Headquarters at the first faint sign of trouble.

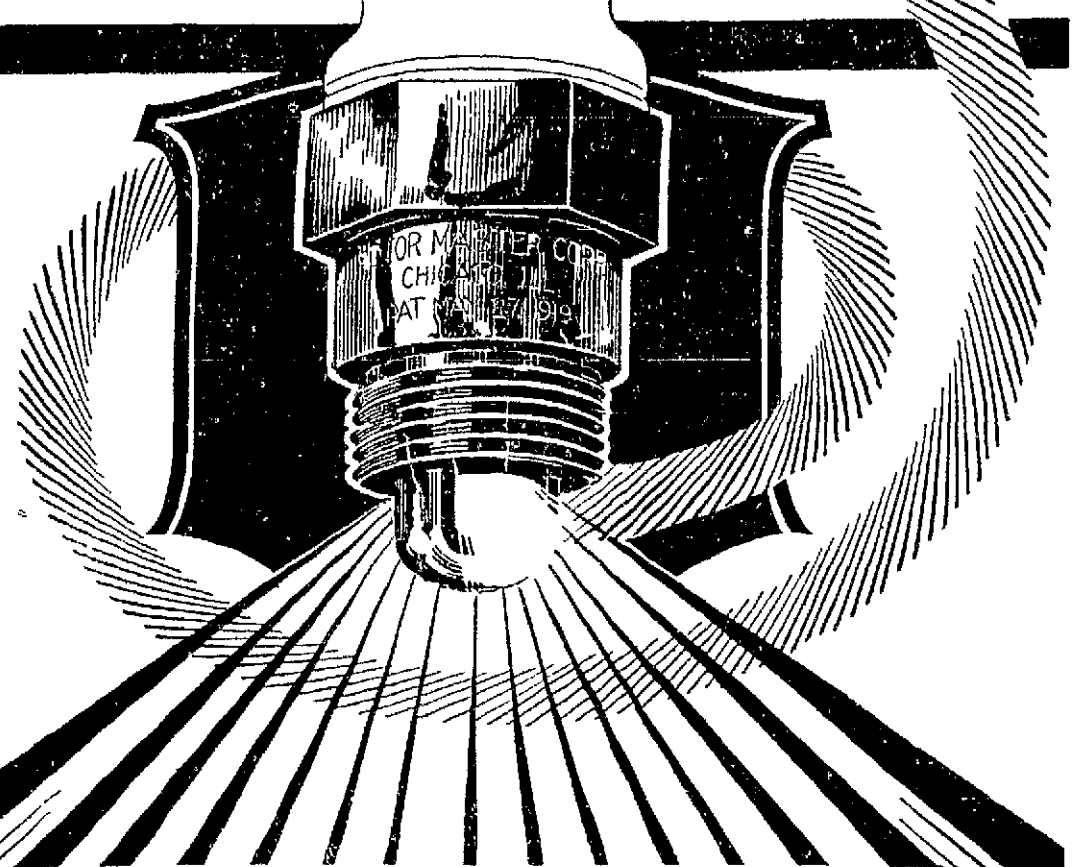

Then your battery will wear out slowly and gradually, giving you uninterrupted service at lowest cost per month and per mile.

Studebaker Genuine Value

TODAY, more than ever before, it is to the buyer's interest to determine what is BEHIND his car as well as what is IN it.

In the SPECIAL-SIX, Studebaker offers a car, the enormous sales of which are the best proof of its value.

The SPECIAL-SIX has established itself in the minds of thousands of owners as an unusually capable, powerful, roomy and beautiful car. Its tremendous popularity contributed largely to the attainment of Studebaker's position as the largest builder of six-cylinder cars in the world.

But in addition to the value that is IN the SPECIAL-SIX, there stands behind it, an organization whose resources and permanence are assurances of continued service to the car owner and of protection to him not only today and tomorrow but in the years to come.

For 70 years, Studebaker has been building high quality vehicles and selling them at fair prices.

There are many reasons in addition to the unquestioned intrinsic value of the SPECIAL-SIX why it should be your motor car choice. You are urged to inspect this car NOW.

SALES EXCHANGE FOR USED CARS

New Company Opens Sales Rooms at 545 W. Market-st

MANY DEALERS CO-OPERATE

Choice of Make of Car Unlimited According to Manager

Thru the efforts of O. J. Archer and Lima automobile dealers a new company has been formed to handle the sale of cars taken in exchange on new purchases.

This new company, known as Lima Used Car Exchange, with headquarters and spacious salesrooms at 545 West Market-st, begin operations today.

The first showing of used cars comprises a list from about a dozen Lima dealers, embracing practically every make of car. There is a wide choice of models, from re-conditioned to the higher priced cars, all put in a good condition and ready to drive away.

"This plan is an innovation for Lima," said Mr. Archer. "It means, concretely, that prospective buyers of used cars may come to the Lima Used Car Exchange and there select the car they wish without shopping all over town to find just what suits them. We are showing cars from about a dozen different dealers. These cars are in open competition both in quality and price. If the dealer wishes his cars to move rapidly he must put the price down to where they will sell in competition with the other low priced cars. Hence, the buyer is assured of a better value, possibly, than he or she would likely secure by shopping all over Lima by the old plan of sales."

"In buying a used car, everyone must remember that every automobile one sees on the streets is a 'used car.' There are 9,000,000 people in the United States today driving 'used cars.' We have taken the 'blind-fold' out of used car buying. Our salesmen tell you all the inside facts about the cars before you buy. Our customers must be satisfied."

"None should hesitate about buying a used car from this Exchange."

Everything is open and above board. It is on these methods of square dealing that we hope to build up an enormous business.

"None should hesitate about buying a used car because it is not a new one. People do not hesitate about buying a house someone else has previously owned. Why should they be sensitive about buying a car which has rendered service to someone else? A used car is a safe and sane investment, when the buyer knows all the facts. We make it a point to be explicit on every detail."

TAPPEN TALKS OF LUBRICATION

When And Why Grease Lubrication Is Better Than Oil

C. L. Tappen, manager of The Alemite Lubricating Company, tells when and why grease lubricant is better than oil.

"We concede the fact that oil is a better lubricant than grease in specific instances and especially where oil of the proper consistency is used; for instance, in a bearing where the lubrication can be confined and retained and foreign substance prevented from entering the bearing. In all other cases, such as open bearings, roller or ball bearings, and where there are reservoirs to retain the lubricant, grease is far better."

"If oil is used in an open bearing and gravity relied upon, and if the oil is allowed to flow into the bearing without obstruction, it will flow out just as quickly, with the result that the bearing will seize. Relying on gravity, the inward flow is subject to obstruction, with the same results. If the particular bearing is subject to dust, the oil reaching outside forms practically a wick; attraction will set in and draw what little oil there is in the bearing. Any dirt, dust or foreign substance which may get into the bearing will stay there after it becomes imbedded in the metals and excessive wear is continuous, whereas, with grease, and especially where the grease is forced into the open bearing under high pressure, the grease being a thick substance will stay where it is put—filling all cavities and eliminating the possibility of dirt entering into the bearing thru this source."

"When re-lubricating, the old grease is forced out and new clean lubricant takes its place, leaving the bearing free from all grit and thoroughly lubricated. As a consequence, minimum wear takes place."

"On bearings which carry a heavy load, grease is much better than oil, because being of a thicker substance it will take a heavy load without being squeezed out from between the two metals. This is true with shackle bolts, steering knuckles, etc., on automobile trucks and tractors."

"We contend that oil is the best form of lubricant for high speed bearings, where the lubricant is continuous or confined, and especially where the power consumed is the dominating factor. Take, for example, the bearings on the generator, which runs continuously day in and day out. The power necessary to create this high speed is the dominating factor which determines what is the proper lubricant necessary. In this particular instance, the continuous oil feed is the best, and there are many other conditions similar."

"But on the other hand, let us consider the various parts of the automobile. They use oil in the crank case because they can confine it and it can be delivered to all parts thru a splash or force feed system, at the same time keeping out the dirt. In the transmission or differential they use a heavy oil for the same reasons—it can be confined and dirt is prevented from entering. Consider steering knuckles, however, which are vertical. If oil is used in this part and allowed to flow without obstruction, it will flow out just as readily. It wicks or other means were used to regulate the flow, these wicks become clogged, dirt accumulates, and the flow is interfered with. In the winter time, because of the extreme cold, oil will congeal and will not flow at all. This oil will accumulate around the outside bearing, dust will settle, forming a wick, compaction and attraction sets in and what little oil remains in the bearing is burned out."

"Now take the same bearings and substitute oil lubrication with forced feed grease lubrication. The entrance to the bearing is clear and open. The grease is forced into the bearing under four or five hundred pounds pressure. This in itself is sufficient to carry away any dirt that might be in the bearing. Grease, being of a heavy thick substance, stays where it is put, filling up the cracks and crevices around the open part of the bearing which prevents dirt from entering. When re-lubrication is made, new grease is forced same condition exists with the steering and the old grease forced out. This is rod bolts, shackle bolts, and in fact all other parts of the car."

DAVIS NEW CAR TO SELL FOR $1195

Radical Reductions Also Made In Price of Regular Line

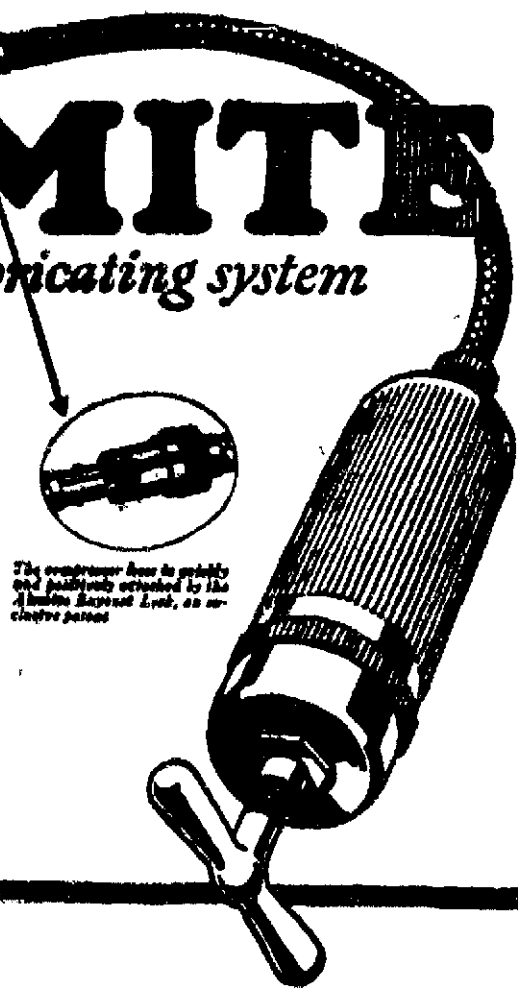

Price reductions announced by the George W. Davis Motor Car Company, Richmond, Indiana, on all models comprising the Davis line for 1932, run from $300 to $600 on the various models.

The reductions are as follows: Touring car reduced from $1795 to $1595, the Fleetaway reduced from $1895 to $1695, Man O' War from $1895 to $1595, Sedan from $2595 to $2195, Coupe from $2595 to $2095. New model Phaeton, $1195.

Commenting on the new low prices and radical reductions, Walter C. Davis, secretary and sales manager of the Davis Company, said: "We have reduced prices greater than reductions in the cost of materials, and to give the buyer the advantage of the lowest possible prices right at the beginning of the spring season. We have always built the highest possible value into Davis cars, and we have always passed on directly to the buyer every saving, every manufacturing economy that we have been able to effect in our plant, with every modern money-saving method and our great financial resources."

"Present conditions have enabled us to base our prices on anticipated reductions in the cost of materials to us. The result is an opportunity of decided advantage to the buyer. When cars of Davis reputation and character are sold at prices that are much lower than even pre-war prices, and for a vastly better car. It is an opportunity that wise buyers cannot overlook."

Longworth-Bussert Co. sells the Davis car for this territory.

Why Shop All Over Town for a USED CAR

Lima's Leading Auto Dealers Now Offer Clearance of All Makes of Used Cars at This One Big Show Room!

Announcing the Opening Today, March 12th

--of--

Lima 'Used Car' Exchange

In Which These Dealers Offer You an Unrestricted Choice Of Many Cars (All Makes) All Shown Under One Roof

YOU SHOULD BUY YOUR USED CAR HERE

Instead of going all over the city to find the best value in a Used Car, come to the Lima Used Car Exchange and here you will find all makes of cars.

Here you will find competitive prices and values all on the same floor. No matter what make of car you prefer, here you will find it. These Lima dealers have turned them all over to us. In order to make the cars sell, every car must be low priced, for the best values are sure to move first. Hence, for a dealer's cars to sell, all must be marked down to genuine bargains so that each will have an equal sale value.

Here you will confront no salesman's jockeying. You are your own salesman or saleswoman. Instead of having to run the gauntlet of fifty salesmen as you would in shopping all over the city for a used car, come here and either of the four salesmen will gladly demonstrate the car of your choice.

Through the Used Car Exchange all the dealers' used-car-department overhead expense is eliminated. Instead of each dealer going to the expense of storage room, advertising, salesmen, etc., these sales are now to be consummated in this one big institution.

These Dealers Are Cooperating

In this plan to save you money on the purchase of a Used Car. They are using this plan in order that you will be better satisfied with your value, that you will secure the car of your choice, and that you may be better able to judge the values by comparing all the cars at one time. Following is a list of dealers whose cars you will find at the Lima Used Car Exchange.

- Baxter Brothers
- The Sturtevant-Jones Co.
- Longworth-Bussert Co.
- The Cadillac Sales & Service Co.
- The Colonial Auto Sales Co.
- The Hawisher Motor Co.
- The D. D. Jones Co.
- Timmerman Motor Sales Co.
- Lima-Lexington Co.
- Lima-Nash Co.
- The Reo-Baker Co.

WHEN

YOU MAY BUY YOUR USED CAR HERE

Now, you may come to the Lima Used Car Exchange and select the car of your choice. Practically all makes of cars and all models are now on display at our salesrooms, Lima Motor Car Building, 545 West Market street.

HOW WE GET THESE CARS

All the used cars you find here are those taken in on purchase price of new cars at the dealers whose names appear in this announcement.

When the dealer has overhauled, repainted, or otherwise put the taken-in cars in condition for immediate use the cars are put on sale here. There isn't the hundred-trip demonstrations you find so many times where people have to shop all over town to finally get the car they want. You got a car that you know is just as represented.

Come, make your own selection; terms can be arranged to suit purchaser.

Truth and Honesty About the Cars We Sell

We are building our business on the satisfaction of the people who buy their Used Cars from this Exchange. It is on truth and honesty only that we hope to attain this result.

The salesmen, acting unbiased, without even a knowledge from whom the cars came, will tell you the exact facts concerning the cars you inspect.

This business is here to stay—it is up to us to gain and hold the confidence of the buying public. If you buy a Used Car from us, we are counting on you sending us other purchasers. To do this, we must first satisfy you.

BUICK ROADSTER NOW ON DISPLAY

New Special Six-54 Roadster at Sturtevant-Jones Show Rooms

The New Buick Special Six-54 Roadster that created such a sensation at the recent Auto shows is now on display at the local sales rooms of the Sturtevant-Jones Company on W. Market-st.

L. B. Merritt, manager of the Sturtevant-Jones Company, has the following to say:

Like other Buick cars, this Special Six-54 Roadster has been designed and manufactured to meet specific motoring requirements. And like other Buick cars, its well-engineered chassis is the outcome of twenty years' experience and research of the most practical nature.

With the correctness of the Buick chassis design, there have been combined the conveniences and appointments dictated by the practice of good taste and discrimination. A refined, spacious, powerful roadster, pleasantly striking in appearance and unusually satisfying in performance, has resulted. In every detail—in beauty, in comfort, in durability, in fleetness, in transportation value—it makes the most of this highly appreciated type of motor car.

Before attaching the hand pump, give it a few strokes to clean out grit.

French government has the right to cause gasoline importers to mix 10 per cent alcohol with their fuel.

Auto cylinder has from 40 to 120 pounds of pressure when the charge is compressed ready for firing.

F. J. GIESKE AGAIN ENTERS THE MOTOR FIELD IN LIMA

The Hawisher Motor Car Co., 496 W. Market-st., again succeeded in securing the service of F. J. Giesken, who will have charge of Used Cars, Tractors and Truck Department.

Mr. Giesken needs no introduction to the Tractor trade here, as he had charge of service on Tractors with Ed. Hawisher for five years, and in that time made a large circle of friends.

For the last two years he has been doing sales promotion work in Michigan for The Arbutus Ryan Co., of Toledo, and recently sold Trucks throughout Michigan for Ruggles Motor Truck Co., Saginaw, Mich.

He is a great observer of conditions, and feels very optimistic as to the future.

He feels that the taxes at the early part of the year was the only stall to improvement, while there has been several little boosts recently, so in general, conditions are very much improved. He relates that just the other day he overheard a man from a different state remark that the people of Lima and surrounding had made Lima into a real city, and that the people of Lima hadn't realized it.

Mr. Giesken is a member of Lima Council No. 17 U. C. T., whose members are also glad to know that he will be with them again.

PFISTER-VANCE COMPANY NOW READY FOR SERVICE

Irvin R. Pfister and Carl Vance, two automobile electricians, have purchased the equipment and good will of the Tappan Auto Electric company, corner West and Elm-sts. Both members of this company being expert electricians, and both well known Lima men, the success of this company is assured. Automotive electrical troubles of all kinds will be given expert attention.

STUDEBAKER HAS RETAINED PEAK

Slight 1921 Decrease Came in Repair Parts Sales Only

E. H. Hawisher, of the Hawisher Motor company, distributors of Studebaker automobiles, has the following to say: With Studebaker so prominently in the limelight because of many notable records established, it is naturally a surprise to learn that Studebaker's business fell off in any direction whatever in 1921. That is—it is a surprise until it develops that the decrease came in repair parts sales.

Then, knowing this, it is easy to understand why the Studebaker forces not only point with pride to this record but actually consider it the foremost among the many notable achievements to Studebaker's credit in 1921.

Before giving the figures, it may be well to say in passing that they are the first of their kind ever compiled and announced by any automobile manufacturer. Incidentally, they cover the first nine months in 1921, and show that Studebaker led all manufacturers of standard makes of cars in percentage of increase car sales over the same period of 1920 and also 1919.

The figures show that while car sales increased 35 percent over 1920, the sales of repair parts decreased 13 per cent. And, similarly, while car sales increased 39 per cent over 1919, sales of repair parts decreased 6 per cent.

October 1, 1921. It is further pointed out, there were 117,000 more Studebaker cars in operation than two years previous, yet the sales of repair parts were actually 6 per cent less than at that time.

Improvement Eliminates Noise And Frequent Turning of Receiving Set

The newest radio "A" battery recently placed upon the market, said to overcome the bothersome noises caused by electrical leakage and consequently give a far more satisfactory performance.

Electrical leakage is overcome in this new battery by the use of a special one-piece case which is molded from neoprene rubber. Cell partitions are fused with the side walls and bottoms so that the construction is truly "monobloc." There is not a single fitted joint anywhere in this container.

To make sure that no flaws or air bubbles might have escaped detection, each one is tested with an electrical current of 15,000 volts which would pass thru and spark across the most minute opening that could possibly be present. Danger of leakage of battery solutions is also eliminated at the same time.

This new radio battery is the product of Willard Storage Battery company of Cleveland, Ohio. This company, a pioneer and for a long time the largest builder of automobile starting and lighting batteries, has been doing considerable experimental work in the radio battery field. This new "A" battery is the latest addition to their line and will be handled by their authorized service stations.

France, Italy and England will be represented at the French Grand Prix near Strasbourg, on July 15.

Time to recharge the battery is when it jacks power to turn over the engine.

Tests are being planned in France for running automobiles with alcohol and benzol.

POTTER MOTOR MAKES REDUCTION ON SUPPLIES

"Prices of Automotive equipment and supplies have been marked way down at our store," said Mr. Potter, President of the Potter Motor Co., North Elizabeth-st.

"Today, people are shopping around to get the best values for the least money. We have recognized this and have cleaned out most of our old stock, so with the reduction in prices in effect today we are able to give a much bigger value for the money than last year. Not only did the new stock cost us less but we have changed our merchandising policy. By reducing our overhead we have been able to mark down our selling prices very low without in any way sacrificing the quality. That this policy is a popular one with automobile owners at our convenient store is proven by the big increase in our business since adopting it. We look for a big year in the automobile accessory and supply business this year, if we are to judge by the way spring business has started off."

Why Not Try One Set of Caterpillars

The Caterpillar is a massive cushion tire whose patented side-vent construction and broad traction surface enable it to grip slippery pavements or soft mucky ground with equal facility.

It is so resilient that it has been adopted in preference to pneumatics by many truck owners who haul breakable loads. And being free from punctures and blowouts, its dependability gives it a great advantage over the pneumatic.

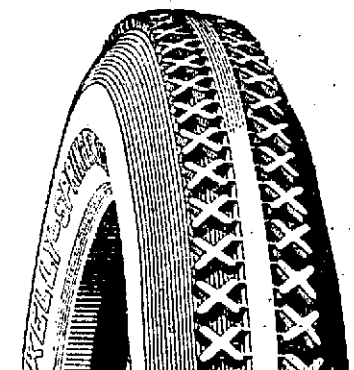

For mileage the Caterpillar is in a class by itself. It consistently gives double the average mileage of any other type of tire.

If you try one set of Caterpillars, you will never go back to any other because they will give you the qualities you desire in a truck tire at lower cost per mile.

$1,000 IS OFFERED FOR A NAME

Michelin Tire Co. Makes Offer For Name and Slogan

The N. and N. Co., the local Michelin tire dealer is very enthusiastic these days over the nation-wide contest now being conducted by the Michelin Tire company offering $1,000.00 in cash and sixty-five other prizes for securing a suitable name for the interesting tire man which has been a feature of Michelin advertising for many years, and whose entries have amused countless thousands of people.

It seems this tire man already has a name, but the Michelin company feels the name is not exactly suitable because it is not a name easily understood or remembered. In short, the Michelin Man is known as Bibendum, but while Bibendum is a good name in some countries, it is hardly suitable for American use.

The story about the original naming of the Michelin Man takes the reader back to France where the modern pneumatic tire had its birth-place in the Michelin Works at Clermont-Ferrand, a city of 70,000 busy people away up in the mountains in the south central part of the great republic beyond the seas. The story goes that the Michelin Man was developed from a crude idea suggested by a workman in the Michelin factory. This workman noticed that a pile of tires, carelessly assembled, bore a crude resemblance to a man. He mentioned this to a member of the advertising staff, who later developed the idea, using tires of different sizes. The services of the celebrated French cartoonist, O'Gallot were then called in, and soon the Michelin Tire Man became a reality.

About the first public use of the figure was on a poster where the tire man was shown holding a globe containing broken glass, horse shoe nails and other terrors of the road, evidently in the act of proposing a toast, the wording being "Nunc est Bibendum" which is Latin for our more familiar expression (before prohibition) of "Here's How." From that time forward the Michelin Man was known abroad as Bibendum, this name being considered appropriate, because Michelin advertising bore the message that Michelin tires "drank" or absorbed the shocks of the road, and also such obstacles as bits of iron, broken stones, and so on.

The rules governing the present contest are very simple. All the contestant has to do is of course first find a suitable name for the tire man and an appropriate slogan or phrase (not more than ten words). This sounds simple, but it isn't. No wonder the Michelin company is willing to pay $1,000.00 in cash for a good name for the famous tire man. Nevertheless the company feels that a good name exists, and is willing to pay this considerable sum to secure it.

After selecting a name and phrase the contestant simply mails them to the Michelin factory at Milltown, New Jersey, sometime between March 1st and March 25th. The contest closes on March 25th and names put in after that date will not be considered.

To help him the company has provided The N. and N. Co., the local Michelin dealer, with circulars telling about the House of Michelin, and so has printed postcard forms for use in sending names.

REO MOTOR EFFICIENCY TEST ON FIRE WAGONS

A remarkable example of the efficiency of the motor in the Reo Speed Wagon is cited by Russell Baker of the Reo-Baker company, who has just received an account of the remarkable test to which the Reo was recently subjected. The test was conducted on a triple combination fire truck for Spangler, Pa.

The Speed Wagon is widely used for mounting fire equipment owing to the fact that the motor is regarded as one of the most dependable for pumping as well as for the speed of the vehicle. This test, was conducted under the auspices of the Underwriters. The motor was given a 30-minute run on full throttle after a 12-hour non-stop test. During this period of 30 minutes the Speed Wagon motor delivered 344 gallons at a pressure of 122 pounds. The significance of these figures is understood when it is realized that 272 gallons is considered a good record at 120 pounds pressure.

Only two out of every thousand automobile accidents are said to be unavoidable.

More than 12,500,000 automobiles are in use throughout the world.

OVERLAND CUTS INCREASE SALES

So great is the demand for Overland and Willys-Knight cars, following last Monday's smashing price reduction, that dealers are coming in to the Toledo factory and driving away cars rather than wait for railroad deliveries.

The number of dealers taking delivery at the factory is increasing daily, it is stated. Yesterday scores of cars left by road for cities and towns within a five hundred mile radius of Toledo.

The volume of orders, according to Willys-Overland officials, has surpassed all expectations. Every day since Monday has shown an increase with indications of still being far from the peak.

One noteworthy feature of the increased business is the number of large orders from small towns.

Reports from the company's branches in the larger cities refer to "sales better than any time in the past five years."

The average for 15 competing cars is $1704

The Davis Sedan is priced at $2195
The average for 15 competing Sedans is $2595

Think what this price advantage means! And remember the Davis has all the proved best specialized units—not one or two, but ALL of them!

NEW Davis prices are from $590 to $990 lower than Davis prices of a little over a year ago. And they are lower, too, than the average prices of the fifteen cars which seek to compete with Davis. The Davis touring car is $109 lower than the average for 15 competing touring cars. The Davis sedan is $400 lower than the average of 15 competing sedans.

These are values! The Davis is built of the finest specialized units, by a twenty-year-old manufacturing organization which has been building fine automobiles for thirteen years, and is among the strongest companies in the industry. See the 1922 Davis—and then decide!

The Clover Leaf Embroidery club met with Mrs. J. O. Ebbel, of Marion-av., Wednesday. The evening was enjoyed socially and a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess. St. Patrick's Day decorations, presented by Mrs. Fred Stump and Mrs. C. E. Harold were the only guests. The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Homer Griffith, of Chester-pl.

Misses Mary and Eleanor Quinlan and Miss Blanche Feth are the week end guests of Charles Quinlan, a student at the University of Dayton, Dayton. They attended the "Follies" Saturday evening.

Mrs. Henry G. Peabody, of Boston, will be the speaker at the luncheon to be given Saturday at the Barr hotel by the Union Church Women of Lima. The speaker will have for her subject, "Education of the Orient." Mrs. Peabody has traveled extensively in India, Japan and China, and her subject will deal with her personal observations in those countries. She is international chairman of the combined missionary board of the United States and Asia. The gathering promises to be one of the most interesting of the week. Reservations may be secured from the local church committees.

BY THEIR HAIR SHALL YE KNOW THEM

Judge Thomas F. Graham and actresses portraying the hair-dressing types that, he says, tell their own story.

(BY GENE COHN)

SAN FRANCISCO — (Special — It's all "in the way she does her hair!"

Superior Judge Thomas F. Graham, famed divorce court mediator, who has won the title of "the great reconciler," has concluded, after a considerable amount of experimentation, that considerable of a woman's character is betrayed by the particular way her locks are arranged.

And here is his general schedule of how the hair betrays the type:

SPIT CURLS—Here is the jazz lady. Chances are the spit curl wasn't in evidence when she started jazzing around, but was acquired as a matter of course. It's to be found about cabarets and wherever the jazz hands play. Inclined to flapperism, flighty.

BOBBED — Accompanies short skirts, cigars, smocks, tam o' shanters, bohemiaism—all so-called "modern girl" sort of thing. Indication of "advanced thought," ultra-modern theories.

MONA LISA—The kind with hair parted trimly in middle and falling in sleek order over the ears. She's the "career hunter"—the lady seeking her soul.

EAR MUFFS—Likely to have had too much petting and pampering at home. The kind you'd expect to run home to mother if "friend husband" asked her to cook a meal.

MARCEL WAVE — Disposition likely to resemble the hair—that is, artificial, as rigidly set as the curves of the hair and, hence, stubborn, unreasonable, etc.

HAIR DISHEVELED — Runs her house as she fixes her hair. Is likely to throw a dish or bring a rolling pin into play if a man were to complain about her bad housekeeping or her cooking.

LIMA MAN PICKS
TOLEDO GIRL AS
LIFE PARTNERCarl Neville and Miss Julia E. Taylor Quietly Married Saturday—Young Attorney to Bring His Bride for Residence Here

THE marriage of Miss Julia Eugenia Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Eugene Taylor, of Toledo, and Carl H. Neville, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wesley L. Neville, of this city, was quietly solemnized in Toledo Saturday at high noon, in the Woman's building. The Rev. M. D. Baumgardner performed the ceremony, which took place in the drawing room where spring flowers in the pastel shades were attractively arranged. The Rev. Baumgardner officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents.

Miss Jane Bentley, of this city, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while Ronald Cuthbert, of this city, acted as groomsmen. Little Miss Jane Taylor, sister of the bride, and Master Wesley Neville, brother of the bridegroom, drew the ribbons. Miss Freda Boes, of Ann Arbor, Mich., played the wedding music.

The attractive bride was attired in her traveling suit of blue and grey tweed, embroidered in canna shade. She wore a hat to match and her corsage was of rosebuds and spring flowers. The bridesmaid was very becomingly attired in a navy blue suit trimmed in grey. She wore a hat to match.

Immediately following the ceremony an elaborate wedding dinner was served in the Woman's building.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville left on a wedding trip to Chicago and upon their return will receive their friends in the Frances-apts, in this city.

The bride, who is a graduate of Scott high school in Toledo, is a niece of Mrs. H. O. Bentley, of Lima. She has been a frequent visitor in this city and has a wide circle of friends here.

The groom was graduated from the law school at Ohio Northern University in the class of 1919. Since that time he has been practicing in this city. Prior to entering Ohio Northern, Mr. Neville attended the Tennessee Military Institute, Sweetwater, Tenn., and also studied for some time in Cincinnati. He is a rising young attorney and is very active in the social and club life of Lima.

Among the out of town guests present for the ceremony were Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Neville and son, Wesley, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Bentley and daughters Jane and Mary Esther, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Killen and Roland Cuthbert, all of this city; Mrs. W. S. Bentley, of Bluffton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and son George, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. Harry Frogley, Frank Cornell and son Charles, all of Swanton; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hitty and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heck, of Carey.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. William Montague, of S. Jackson-st.

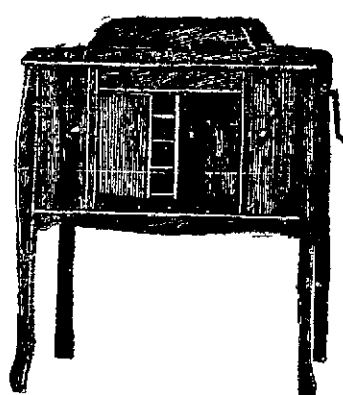

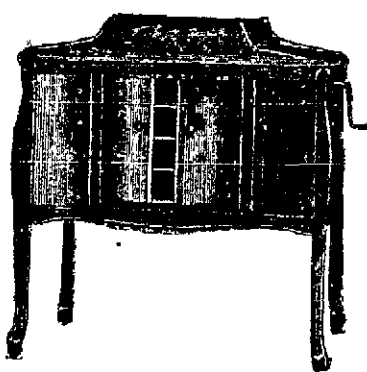

The Laurel club will meet with Mrs. John Tobie, of E. Euro-st., Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Nathan Coon will act as assistant hostess.

Members of the Shakespeare Study club will meet at the public library Thursday. The following program will be given: Argument of Act V, "Othello." Miss Mary Elder; readings of selections, Act V, "Othello," Mrs. Foss Zaitman; Argument of Act V, "Luria," Mrs. W. B. Kirk, and music from operas, "Othello," Mrs. P. J. Hobart.

Mrs. F. T. Cuthbert, of W. Market-st., will entertain the members of the Portmably Bridge club with a 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday.

Miss Mabelle Fair, of N. Main-st., is spending the week and in Dayton. She attended the "Follies."

Members of the Armistice club will meet with Mrs. Minnie Saliz, of the Allentown-ld, Wednesday.

Milady's Silhouette---

GOOD NEWS---

Binner Corsets are designed for women who are careful of the appearance they make—who really care what foundation they put under the new Suit or Dress—Our stock of Binner's is most complete—clever fitters to advise you.

The biggest news item in the corset world is that women are wearing them again. They are wearing corsets and therefore are buying them; and the corset business promises to be bigger this season than it has been at any time for the last year or two.

Women in America heard that Paris had decreed the "uncorseted effect" and America—in true American fashion—immediately tried to out-Paris Paris. If the uncorseted effect was decreed in Paris it was intended that it should be done in the subtle French way, by means of clever corseting; but to the American woman it meant that it would be taken literally, and large or small, she discarded her corset.

Two Compelling Influences

Two influences activated Milady in this movement, aside from the fact that dispensing with the corset was the "stylish" thing to do. First, in a time of unusually scant and close buying, the custom of doing without a corset appealed to the American woman as an economy measure. By discarding her corset she could save on her clothes budget. Secondly, the weather man, who handed suffering American humanity a "longest and hottest Summer in years"—that of 1921—aided the corsetless vogue. The American woman believed she felt cooler and comfortable minus her corset, and the lack of it appealed to her.

Perhaps women followed the custom through economy and perhaps in order to gain comfort; but at the end of the long Summer, Lady America woke to the realization of several things. One was that dresses were again assuming a suggestion of a belt line, and a belt line necessitated a corset.

Miss Columbia immediately realized thereupon that to look well in a dress with a distinct belt line, she needed a corset. Further introspection revealed to her that she had missed its support and that it really had been a factor in making for her comfort.

On gazing into her full-length mirror, the feminine U. S. A. discovered that her figure was taking on the proportions of a perfectly unbecoming meal-bag. She needed a corset!

Now Donning Them

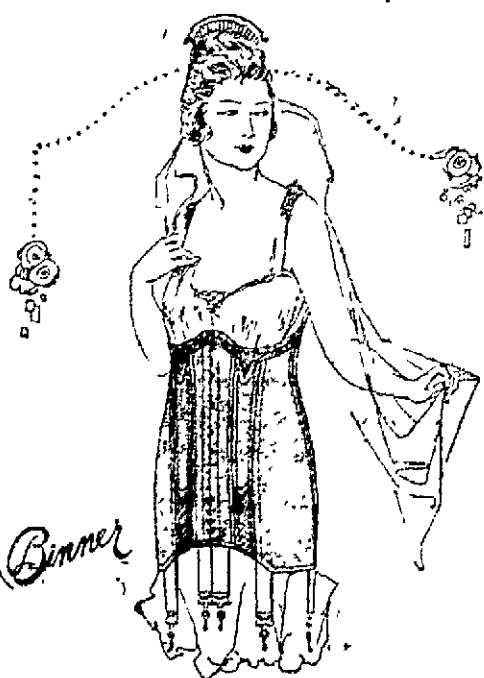

It has taken several months for women to reach this viewpoint. But one by one they have been stepping into the corset department of stores and gladly putting on the one-dreaded corset.

It is no longer dreaded. The corset designers have taken the greatest precautions to make the corset a comfortable adjunct to dress. Made with rubber inserts, of soft pliable fabrics that conform to every motion of the body, the new corsets at once permit the most strenuous exercise, and at the same time comfortably support the figure and persuade it ever so gently into the lines it should follow to present the greatest possible evidence of grace.

Bones are sparingly used on corsets now, but they are so placed as to do the same amount of good that the many stiff ones were called on to do in other days. For the most part the bones are big in the waist line and as long as necessary over the hips. They are short at the top. At the top they are met by one of the long, comfortable brassieres that have been specially designed to extend over the top of the low-cut corset, and take care of the upper portion of the figure.

The Blue Triangle club of Central High school arranged a style show, which was presented in the school cafeteria Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Martha Roby, instructor of art in the Lima schools, gave an interesting talk in connection with dress for high school girls. She stated that the high school girl's dress should be marked by simplicity and durability and that anything extreme should be avoided. She emphasized sports clothes, especially the trend suit, plain hat and low-heeled shoes. The slip-over sweater, scarf and plain skirt were also mentioned as very splendid and appropriate for the high school girl.

A group of girls were attired in dresses and other wearing apparel which were either not becoming and suitable for the officers of the club acted as hostesses. They were Mrs. J. W. Roby, president; Mrs. Gwen Jones, vice president; Miss Catherine Weadock, corresponding secretary; Miss Josephine Garretson, recording secretary; Miss Eleanor Gekeler, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Klingner and Miss Helen Meredith, board members.

The enjoyable feature of the afternoon was the presentation of "Alice in Wonderland," under the direction of Miss Zella Foster and Miss Helen Meredith. The cast included a group of out-of-town girls who are members of the high school fraternity. Miss Izora Shumaker portrayed the role of Alice; Miss Helen Craig, White Rabbit; Miss Harshorne, Dormouse; Miss Gladys Howard, Queen of Hearts; Miss Helen Knave of Hearts; Miss Melva Levering, March Hare; Miss Alice Stout, King; Miss Ho Maddux, Hatter; Miss Louise Taggart, Gryphon; Miss Zella Caldwell, Cook; Miss Esther Williams, Cheshire Cat; Miss Mildred Haddell, Mock Turtle; and Miss Acton, Duchess. Miss Irene Buckley and Miss Mildred Haddell were in charge of the dances.

At the conclusion of the play dainty refreshments were served by the St. Agatha's Guild.

Mrs. O. L. Wallburg and daughter Maxine, of E. Eureka-st., are spending the week-end with relatives in Toledo.

Mother's Progressive club of the South High school will meet with Mrs. Ollie DeVoe, of 429 S. Jackson-st., Wednesday evening. Mrs. Apple will act as assistant hostess.

Mrs. W. P. Post returned to her home in Detroit and Miss Jessie Pease returned to her home in New York after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Pease, of the Thomas-apts.

Mrs. Lester Pratt, of the Thomas-apts., will entertain the members of the Art Study club at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening. The club will conclude its study of the interior decorating of the congressional library at this meeting. Mrs. Phil M. Crow will present a paper on the subject, "Mural Decorations of the Rotunda of the Congressional Library" and Mrs. Thomas F. Brady will have a paper on, "Mural Decorations of the Rectory of the Congressional Library."

Mrs. Kent W. Hughes of Lakewood-av. will welcome the members of the Thursday Bridge club at her home, Thursday.

Members of the Bay View club will meet Monday with Mrs. E. G. Weadock, of 720 W. Wayne-st. Mrs. Julia Simpson will act as assistant hostess.

Miss Myrtle C. Young, of Columbus is a guest at the home of Mrs. H. L. Burroughs, of N. West-st.

Mrs. W. D. Goble, of Carey, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Martz and Walter Wetherill were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Strawbridge of W. High-st. Friday evening honoring Miss Edna Strawbridge, a student at the Defiance college, who is home over the week-end. Games and music were enjoyed through the evening and at a late hour dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Don Faze, of Prospect-av. was hostess to the members of the Cotovia club, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Marion Reese was welcomed as a new member of the club. The afternoon was enjoyed socially and a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess. The table appointments were in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. Mrs. Lee Day was the only guest.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Ralph Chamberlain, of N. Washington-st.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Banta, of S. Collett-st., are home from a month's sojourn in Florida.

Dr. and Mrs. Alan D. Kneisly, of S. Baxter-st., were in Dayton with friends Saturday evening.

Mrs. C. A. Graham and Miss Helen E. Graham, of Elmwood-av., are spending the week-end in Columbus where they attended the opera, "Mecca," in which Miss Mary Wonnell, of Cincinnati, a niece of Mrs. Graham, has a leading part.

House Peters at The Lyric Today

If You Love Clean, Red-Blooded Men, Wind-Swept Skies and the Wild Beauty of the North Woods, See "The Man From Lost River" at the Lyric, Starting Today

House Peters! Magic name sym-bolic with everything that is best in the 'movie' art, the one screen star who can suggest romance and strength without weakening either quality, idolized by men, women and children the world over, comes to the Lyric starting today. His picture, "The Man From Lost River" is from the pen of Katharine Nelson Burt, she of "The Branding Iron" fame, finds her at her very best and if you love red-blooded men and women, wind-swept skies and the wild beauty of the great out doors, you'll like this picture. Pulsating through, out with human emotions, in the grip of love and fear this production will lead you down the trail of wonderful adventure into the valley of love and contentment. This picture was six months in the making, 1600 miles were traveled in locations. Every scene almost is a positive sensation. It is a mighty super-drama that surpasses all other cinema productions dealing with the great Northwest. See it at the Lyric starting today.

DONA SOL'S GOLD DRESS

When Dona Sol enters the apartment of El Gallardo in the first act of "Blood and Sand" at the Faurot Opera House, Thursday night, as that great torero is about to leave for the plaza de toros to add to his renown as a killer of bulls in the arena, the audience gasps, with delighted envy on the part of the feminine portion and with keen appreciation from the males at the beautiful picture on which they gaze.

Certainly Catherine Calvert is intoxicatingly attractive as she smiles thru half closed eyes at the man who all Spain acclaims as its greatest hero of the national sport. The great aristocrat is wearing the picturesque costume of Andalusia, which enhance her great pulchritude. She looks like one of those graceful ladies painted by Goya.

Her dress is of cloth of gold, covered with rare old black Spanish lace. The skirt is made with panther hips—and it is easy to trace the newest edicts of fashion to the costumes worn in "Blood and Sand"—the bodice is tight fitting, accentuating the natural figure, which, in its glory spurns a corset.

The wonderful comb, high above the raven locks, is a copy of one in the museum of Madrid, said to have been the property of a former Queen of Spain, over which falls the priceless black lace mantilla in graceful folds until it partially hides the wonderful embroidered silk shawl.

Mr. Skinner bought this shawl—said to be 300 years old—in Madrid last summer, and its purchase is a delightful story. It weighs seventeen pounds. It is of pale blue, the original color softened by the flight of years, accentuated the double embroidery. In that body of it are flowers of various hues, purples, the flower of the pomegranate and green leaves to emphasize the coloring. From the solid center falls a delicate work half a yard deep, and from this hangs fringe eighteen inches long.

That weapon of the women of the Latin races, a rare fan of black lace and gold, Dona Sol waves languidly, as she studies the figure of the espadra; who in turn lets his eyes fall to the floor, where they rest on dainty black satin slippers which permit a glimpse of a neat ankle clad in a gold stocking.

A bit of old Spain's story has been transported bodily to the stage of the bull ring.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart: I AM a girl 18 years old. Do not think I am foolish for writing you about something which means more to me than life itself. Don't tell me that I don't know what love is. I do and I pity anyone who suffers as I am suffering. This man I love does not love me. He wants me for a short time, but he soon tires of me. Strange to say, that made me love him more than ever. I am a working girl and he is well to do. Do you suppose that has anything to do with why he doesn't love me? Why is it that men usually fall in love with wealthy girls? I am nearly crazy. Don't tell me to forget him. I can't.

KITTY

PERHAPS you will be surprised to know, Kitty, that there is still a ray of hope for the girl of 18 who loves madly. One who cares nothing for her—much hope, in fact, if only it is possible to make her see it.

I shall not tell you that you do not know what love is. The love you are experiencing now may cause you as much suffering as a later and more lasting love. However, I shall tell you that you can lessen your own suffering if you try. You are young. You have years ahead of you and all of the opportunities in the world, in which to seek other interests. Remember, no pleading nor heartaches of yours can make this man love you if he has no love for you. The fact that you are a working girl certainly is no disgrace and the average young man would not permit that to lessen his love for you. If a man loves a girl he is willing to court her even though she may live in the humblest of cottages.

Dear Miss Smart: I have heard that photographs can be cleaned. Can you please tell me if this is so and how it may be done?

ANONYMOUS

Photographs which have become soiled may be made to look like new by washing with a piece of white cotton wadding dipped in cold water. Do not use colored cotton wadding and never use soap, soap powder or ammonia—just cold water.

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

An appeal is made to clubs and federations in every town in Ohio to conduct a sale of goods made by the state's blind. The articles made by the needy blind are needed in every home. Every article sold makes a way for the people who live in utter darkness to have the chance to feel that they are self-supporting. Besides, the articles sold give their makers something to do to pass away the long and lonely hours.

Is your club going to have this sale of pretty and useful articles? Is your federation going to hold it? All club women are urged to do their share in bringing happiness to these unfortunate. For further information communicate with the Ohio Commission for the Blind, Columbus.

AMERICANIZATION WORK

Athens clubs are in a fair way to solve the problem of their Americanization contract by the help of the Y. W. C. A. In the mining regions, about Athens, the foreigners are largely in the small villages or mining camps, and are quite distrustful of people from town. A young slip of a girl can often win her welcome here as no other woman cannot, and these girls are making their approach in the mining camps near Athens by the good old method of the children. From story hours for the children it is not far to the girls' organizations and to mothers' clubs, thence to work in the homes and community meetings. In all these the Athens club women help with transportation and chaperonage, with money and service. At Christmas time, the girls hold community Christmas services and treat, presents, treats of all kinds and programs in the mining towns, bringing great joy to about 500 little folk and incidentally to their elders. The club women stand back of the girls in this and thus there is being accomplished in this manner what could not be accomplished by the club women alone. The Y. W. C. A. and the Athens club women have joined hands in a most commendable enterprise for the good of the nation as well as their own communities.

The Athens City federation plans

Mr. and Mrs. Orley B. Johns, of Faurot-av, opened their home to the Social and Literary club Wednesday evening when the members entertained their husbands with a very enjoyable gathering. The evening was pleasantly whiled away informally and in the contests, E. A. Hanner, Clayton Donze and John Vogelgesang were successful. At a late hour a delicious three-course luncheon was served. The hostess was assisted by Mesdames Armstrong, Cheney, Wood and Kinzer.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Robens, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hanner, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kinzer, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Donze, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. POLLY AND PAUL --AND PARIS

By ZOF BECKLEY.

THE TELLING OF A TALE

Violet had never seen Paul angry before. Under his look, the words she was about to repeat died on her lips. He beckoned to the waiter, paid the bill, saw to her wraps and guided her to the street before she realized what was happening.

He said nothing until they came to a street lamp.

"Now I can see your face," he said in an ominously quiet tone. "You're either mad, or joking in a way I will not stand from anyone."

"I am not joking," said Violet. "For some incomprehensible reason, George Barry is interested in your wife. Her youth, her naiveté—something. When she is by, he has no eyes for me, for anyone, because she—she—well, I suppose it amuses her!"

She stopped abruptly. They walked slowly on.

"Violet—you've got to say less than that, or more. Either you are talking absolutely rot, or you are withholding something."

"Oh, am I? Listen, then, you shall hear it all."

She told the story of the studio-party. Everything she said was true. She dealt in facts. But there are ways of making facts look pretty much as the teller wants them to. Emphasis here, reserve there, a withholding of certain details, the playing up of untruthful of others. Her narrative was skillfully told, leaving herself, in the role of the deeply injured one. Her desecration by Polly and Barry was exaggerated. Yet Polly herself, had she been there, would have been at a loss to put it in a better light.

"I had walked and hunted all night," finished Violet. "I hated to arouse my maid at dawn, and decided to stop in at your flat, wash up and have Polly give me a cup of coffee before going home. But at six o'clock she still had not come in. You needn't grieve at me, it is the truth. . . . waited. She came—at seven. Remember, I am relating facts, not fancies. You insisted on the whole truth; now you know it. I make no comments, pass my judgment."

"You had better not," said Paul. "You know perfectly well Polly is as more in your way than—I am. Polly is—"

"A paragon, of course," cut in Violet, "not to be mentioned in the same breath as a person like myself."

"Polly is—" he ignored her interruption, "perfectly certain to tell me the whole story as soon as I see her."

A hard smile crossed Violet's face, drawing her lips down at one corner. Without seeing her, Paul knew that she lifted her eyebrows and shrugged as she answered, "Perhaps. Perhaps not."

He refused to prolong the conversation. If Polly had only been at home! How he longed to hear from her lips the story of the party—the strange homecoming with Barry in the early morning.

Weakly he put Violet into her cab and said goodnight.

"Good night," she answered, a look of sudden anger on her face, "You're very disgusted with me, no doubt, my friend. But if you do not believe I speak the truth, you have only to ask that nice concierge of yours about that morning. She was also there—when they came home."

Paul was too furious to reply. He turned abruptly and tramped in the direction of his home.

HIGH CLASS PROGRAMS PROVIDED FOR CINEMA PATRONS THIS WEEK

SPECTACLES LACKING IN OFFERINGS

Group of Screen Stories Declared By Critics to be of the Best, Scheduled

Meritorious Program Releases Outlined for Forthcoming Half Fortnight Here

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)

SOME unusually interesting programs will be offered for local cinema patrons during the forthcoming week. Unlike last week, no spectacles or super-productions are included in the roster, but each playhouse has announced a really meritorious group of program releases.

One of the most important of the week's offerings is to be seen today at the Sigma theatre, where the Lois Weber picture, "What Do Men Want," opens a week's engagement. Miss Weber's problem plays are always popular, and this newest effort is said to be paramount to her other productions. Claire Windsor and J. Frank Glendon handle the leading roles.

"One Glorious Day," declared by New York critics to be the most unique and versatile comedy of the year, opens a four-day run today at the Fauror. Will Rogers is the stellar performer, Miss Lila Lee playing opposite.

Following the engagement of Otis Skinner at the Fauror on Thursday, the Fauror's weekly bill is rounded out with the showing of "Her Face Value," starring petite Wanda Hawley. This is a delightful little comedy drama and shows Miss Hawley in a somewhat different role.

Katherine Newlin Burt's famous story, "The Man From Lost River," is a most sterling and interesting picture, which, in its pictorial form is being shown today and for the first four days of this week, at the Lyric theatre. The cast is a competent one.

Universal's newest star, Miss Du Pont, makes her debut before Lima film devotees at the Lyric on Thursday, when she appears in "The Rage of Paris." Miss Du Pont is serenely beautiful and her role in "The Rage of Paris" gives her a splendid opportunity to display her talents.

The Lyric's bill of fare for today is quite delectable, including William De Mille's "Midsummer Madness," with Conrad Nagel, Lois Wilson, Jack Holt and Lila Lee. Then there will be vocal selections by Miss Marie Sparrow, a comedy burlesque offering by Leon Norton, and a two-reel Snooky comedy, "Snooky's Blue Monday."

The story tells of the triumph of a strong foreman in a lumber camp over a weak but charming character who settles in the camp. The heroine is at first dazzled by the glances of the new arrival, and up to the climax, is completely unaware of the sterling qualities that exist beneath the stern exterior and the tongue-tied manner of the man who can control men but is helpless in the presence of women.

House Peters has the role of the stern foreman, powerful in physique and firm of character. The girl is played by Miss Fritz Brunette, while the third angle of the triangle is upheld by Allan Forrest.

Most of the scenes for this enthralling picture were taken on a government reservation at Lake Huntington, in the Sierras, and they are among the most beautiful ever screened. The story is not only one of action but involves a keen play of character upon character, and for that reason, is a picture that should not be missed.

As the main attraction at the Lyric for the last three days of this week, starting Thursday, the management announces Universal's newest star, Miss DuPont, in a colorful and vivid narration, "The Rage of Paris," heralded as "the screen's most beautiful blonde," the new star possesses a dramatic talent that is poignant. Her bearing, her poise, her genteel mannerisms all proclaim her as a truly regal cinema queen, and local fans await her initial appearance in this city with interest. The story is one of Parisian night life and many costly sets and costumes are displayed throughout the showing of the film.

That's the Lyric's program for the entire week, and there isn't a single reason why film devotees shouldn't spend happy hours at this playhouse.

The Sigma Pictures

CONTINUING its policy of giving patrons the very choicest of screen attractions, the Sigma theatre announces, as its feature for today and the coming week, Lois Weber's great drama "What Do Men Want?" in which Claire Windsor has one of the most important roles.

Opinions may vary as to what constitutes the greatest possession of man or woman, but in this new picture Miss Weber gives a startling definition of man's wants and woman's desires. This hunt for happiness is the big theme of the picture and concerns every man and woman in the city; and Miss Weber has stripped bare the weaknesses of man and made wonderfully clear a woman's conception of what men want.

Above all else, the story is broad, and exceptionally mighty in its appeal. Thru constant study and close observation of different people or different desires, Miss Weber has developed an almost uncanny ability in recognizing big, vital problems that confront average America. In "What Do Men Want" she has put her best effort into producing a pulsating drama of American life that

DANNY LUND AT THE ORPHEUM

It is with pleasure that Manager Shaw of the Orpheum theater announces the return engagement of Danny Lund to the Orpheum theater for one week only. It will be remembered that Danny Lund appeared here early in the season and played a five weeks engagement at the popular Market street theater, which in itself is a record for a city the size of Lima. Danny made quite a host of friends on his previous engagement and due to many inquiries as to when Danny would return here Manager Shaw has arranged to play him one week only with an entire new class of plays.

Danny returns to Lima with practically a new company, all new costumes, scenery, and for his opening bill will present a Musical Comedy entitled "In India" with Danny in the leading comedy role. Everything will be entirely new from any show presented heretofore guaranteeing theater goers an entire new show. Seats will be on sale after 1 o'clock for all three performances today and can be ordered in advance by phoning Main 3666 Wednesday night as usual a Big Country Store will be staged. Now you know that Danny Lund is the funniest comedian touring the circuit today so a word to the wise, order your seats immediately, and get ready for a good hearty laugh as Danny absolutely guarantees that.

lightful skylark. One of the unique pictures of the season "And, strange to say, the rest of the critical sharps were of the same opinion. So it is evident that you are in for a rare treat at the Fauror today. We won't spoil your enjoyment or wonderment by hinting at the clever and unusual story, but we will advise you to see "One Glorious Day" from the start and get the full benefit of its gleesome and fanciful fun. It will be preceded by Tony Sarg's Almanac, new Kinograms and a Bruce scenic, "Wilderness Friends."

On Friday and Saturday the Fauror will offer the chic comedienne, Wanda Hawley, in her new Realart comedy, "Her Face Value," by Earl Derr Biggers, author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate." T. Roy Barnes heads the supporting cast.

The Majestic Pictures

THE SUNDAY program as scheduled for appearance today at the Majestic theater, is a decidedly meritorious one, including as it does, the showing of William De Mille's success "Midsummer Madness," and two splendid acts of vaudeville.

"Midsummer Madness," among other things, boasts a cast that is of the finest. There's Lois Wilson, Lila Lee, Jack Holt and Conrad Nagel as the principals, and Charles Ogle, Lillian Leighton and Claire MacDowell in minor roles. The picture is an adaptation of Cosmo Hamilton's brilliant society novel, "His Friend and His Wife," the story of the momentary infatuation of a husband for another woman, whose husband happens to be his best friend. And the wives had always been as dear to each other as sisters. The complications that arise from this situation are dramatically told and will hold you spellbound till the very last flicker.

Mr. DeMille has surrounded his players with sets of rare beauty and the costumes worn by Miss Wilson and Miss Lee are strikingly handsome.

AMONG the roles which the art of Otis Skinner has made notable in the annals of the American stage, that in which he is appearing at the Faurot Opera House for one night only, Thursday, March 16th, must be recognized as one of the most successful of his efforts, if he may be judged by advance reports. The role is that of Juan Gallardo, bullfighter, the idol of Spain, and the hero of Blasco Ibanez' thrilling novel "Blood and Sand."

This engagement of Mr. Skinner is bound to be regarded as one of the important and impressive events of the year. The appearance of Mr. Skinner in a new play has always ranked as an unusual event, and the combination of the famous actor and a new play is sure to prove gratifying to local theatregoers. It may not be out of order to describe briefly, the story as dramatized by Tom Cushing. The action of the drama first finds Gallardo at the peak of his popularity as the pre-

Twins In "Two Little Girls In Blue"

Twins figure largely in the production and cast of "Two Little Girls In Blue." A. L. Erlanger's elaborate musical comedy production which will be seen at Faurot's Opera House next Tuesday evening. The author's idea requires a pair of twin girls for the pivotal roles, and these are played by the Fairbanks twins, long favorites with the patrons of Ziegfeld's "Follies"; then in the cast are the Tomson Twins, who do not play twin roles, and Emma Janvier, the character woman of the cast. In private life she is the mother of a fine pair of twin boys. Last week two hundred and twenty-five pairs of twins attended the performance in Chicago.

When the Gambler's Ghost Came Back

Sir A. Conan Doyle's Investigation Into the Mysteries of Spirit Phenomena Has Revealed This Incredible but Authentic Incident, and Also His Own Efforts to "Combat and Conquer Evil Spirits"

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Who Tells How Haunted Houses May Be Rid of Their Spirit Tenants.

LONDON.

A N astounding drama of supernatural horror which has just occurred in the London home of a well-known British army officer is believed by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to furnish final proof that haunted houses actually exist and that ghosts sometimes are capable of bringing dreadful tragedy into human lives.

The apparent facts in the case are vouched for by Horace Leaf, one of England's leading scientific authorities on psychic phenomena, who was present in the house when the principal events happened.

During a period of acute house shortage in London, the retired officer, who had suffered some financial reverses following the war, leased a gloomy old mansion on the Thames embankment and moved into it with his young wife.

They noticed nothing peculiar about the house except that it was gloomy and depressing, until about two weeks after their installation, when they brought from the country three young prize English bull terriers which had been made household pets by the wife.

At the threshold of the front door the dogs whined and pulled back on their leashes and showed signs of fear. They were finally persuaded to enter.

The same afternoon, however, one of the dogs seized an opportunity to dash out of an open back door, again exhibiting signs of terror, and never returned.

That night, when the husband and his wife retired, they left the two dogs lying quietly asleep before an open hearth in the big hall which was used as a living room.

Three hours later he was awakened by some sound, half-heard in his sleep. When he became fully awake the house was dark and silent, but he had a sense that something was wrong. Thinking that burglars might have entered, he armed himself with a revolver, tiptoed to the head of the staircase, crouched and flashed on the light in the hall below.

The light revealed the two terriers huddling together in a corner, facing the center of the room. Their hair was bristling with terror, and they were whining in almost inaudible tones.

There was no other visible presence in the room. As he crouched, watching from behind the balustrade, one of the dogs flinched as if he had been struck by a club.

Convinced that whatever might be the matter, it was not a case of burglars, the officer went down to the dogs and finally succeeded in calming them.

The next morning, he attached slight importance to the incident, and even when he found that both the terriers were very ill, he was inclined to explain the matter rationally—to believe that the queer actions of the dogs might be explained by the fact that they were already ill in the night, and a bit feverish and delirious as human beings sometimes become in similar circumstances.

George Garscadden, with an Assistant at Glasgow University, Testing the Psychophone Which He Has Invented for Recording Spirit Voices.

Even when one of the dogs died two days later, he still believed that he was in the presence of purely natural mystery—or perhaps merely a coincidence that was no mystery at all.

Another ten days passed, and one night he and his wife were sitting alone in the same big hall before the fire. The one remaining dog, which had not entirely recovered, was being kept in the kitchen, in another part of the house.

Suddenly the wife gasped. "I am sure of it! I have felt it before, but now I am certain. There is some one else in this room! Some presence we cannot see! Just now it seemed to touch me."

The husband had sensed nothing, but she was insistent, and her experience, coupled with the previous unexplained action of the dogs, led him to consult Horace Leaf, a colleague of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's, and one of England's leading experts in psychic matters.

Mr. Leaf was so much impressed that he arranged to visit the house, and brought with him a mutual friend who is a distinguished officer of the British navy. They remained in the house several nights, and nothing happened. But on the fifth night, to quote the exact language of Mr. Leaf, "the ghost appeared!"

"I felt his influence strongly," continued Mr. Leaf, "as did the others. We began to speak to him, and he answered. He used English. He said he was an Italian and that he had run a gambling place in that very house. He said he didn't want any of us there, and that we must go away and leave him in possession or harm would come to us."

Then, according to the story of those who were present, a terrible thing happened.

The wife, who had been sitting in her chair, pale as death, suddenly shrieked and jerked forward as if she had been seized by an unseen force.

One of her arms was pulled upward, and for the fraction of a second the watchers saw the flesh above her elbow contract as if in the clutch of an invisible hand.

A moment later she lay fainting on the floor, and the ghostly visitor had gone. Medical aid was hurriedly sent for. She soon recovered from the fainting, and examination showed that she was apparently unharmed, but as the result of the experience she became seriously ill, and despite the attentions of the best doctors and surgeons in England she has not yet recovered nor can the diagnosticians say exactly what is the matter with her.

Needless to say the house was vacated on the morning following this occurrence, and it still remains unoccupied.

Following the report of this remarkable case, and of similar experiences said to be equally well attested, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who has devoted many years to the study of supernatural phenomena, declares his positive belief that unhappy spirits do actually return to this planet, and that they sometimes act with deliberate ered a way to combat them. Recently he startled an audience to whom he was lecturing on this subject, by declaring that he had been personally called in upon numerous cases by people who were being harassed by ghostly visitations.

"Such earth-bound spirits," he said, "evidently found no happiness in their actual life on earth, and now that they have passed out of this sphere, their compelling desire seems to be to return to their former haunts where they were unhappy, with the idea, perhaps, of setting right the things that were all wrong in their former existence."

"Only a short time ago a family which was very much wrought up over manifestations which took place in its home continually, asked me if I would not come and see what I could do to aid them in eliminating this influence. The members of the family had their nerves on edge, and could keep no servants because of the extraordinary influence which persisted at intervals in haunting the place."

"I went to this unhappy home, and there with other spiritualists, we held a meeting—a 'seance' I might call it. The ghost appeared, and through the medium we were able to talk with it. It proved to be the ghost of a man. We asked him what he was doing there. He said he was unhappy. We told him to try to improve his state, to forget his old life here on earth, and to turn his thoughts to a higher life. We reasoned with him, promised to pray for him, and soon afterward his visits ceased entirely.

"Prayer is a potent factor, not only in the liberation of these poor earth-bound spirits, but even for the good of the higher spiritually developed souls who have passed beyond."

"As to the question of punishment hereafter," declared Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, "from all the information I have on this subject, I believe there is a material and a spiritual way. If you are weighed down with materialism at the time you die, you suffer as an earth-bound spirit. If you are spiritual, you go at once into the more spiritual spheres. If, like most of us, you are a combination of both things, you go to an intermediate state between the two. Later the spirit goes from place to place, gradually mounting higher as it is purified, and finally reaching the place of which we have been taught, where loved ones from earth await us."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle believes, with the celebrated French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, and other scientific men who have become interested in spiritualism, that the entire world is on the verge of a great revelation.

He points to the fact that spiritualistic phenomena are becoming more common than ever before, and that the skeptical attitude of science is undergoing a change. As an illustration, he referred to the fact that the distinguished scientist, Charles Richet, member of the French Institute, had presented to that body a formal statement expressing his belief in the existence of ghosts and describing them in detail from his own observations.

According to Professor Richet, ghosts have a sort of "body and substance, eyes that see and turn in their orbits, a voice that can be heard, breath that throws off carbonic acid, feet that move and fingers that clutch."

Professor Richet, who has made a long study of so-called spiritism and psychic phenomena, admitted it required much courage on his part as a recognized scientist to devote himself to the study of such questions and present the result of his investigations to the world.

"When the three dogs were brought to the haunted house, one fled in terror, one was killed by apparently supernatural forces, and the third escaped."

bookers was not so seriously damaged by this episode as it would have been had not his vanished bride's family kept secret because of the scandal, the facts they had unearthed against him. He continued to tango gaily until suddenly the Tokio dismissed him. Whispers began to breeze about that the handsome tango teacher had not only cheated his little dancing partner, but had "borrowed" frequently and largely from soft-hearted, sweet young things with generous allowances from their papas.

"Lord" Gray was beginning to find the tangoing not so smooth when he made a friend of Willard Wilson, proprietor of the Remington Hotel in New York, owner of a chain of other sumptuous hotels at fashionable resorts, a power in the Hotel Managers' Association of America, and one of the socially elect of Newport and Palm Beach. Mr. Wilson was greatly attracted to the young Britisher and sympathized with him in his struggle to get on in America. He took him home and introduced him to his wife and his lovely daughter, Marjorie.

Presto! "Lord" Gray took up his residence at the Remington. He danced that summer with Marjorie Wilson as his partner at Mr. Wilson's hotel at Pinebeach. And—in the early autumn he and Marjorie with his medals and his vivid account of his bombing exploits and his capture and escape, immediately put Gray in line for more social conquests. The "war hero racket" he found even better than being a "tango lord." Gray was invited to many Fifth Avenue homes. When he had no such invitation, he "crashed the gate" on the strength of his uniform, which he wore constantly, though he had not the shadow of a right to do so.

Thus he appeared at the Horse Show when the Prince of Wales was the guest of honor whose magic personality drew into Madison Square Garden the wealthiest and most aristocratic assembly the famous coliseum ever has held. The Prince had an escort composed of ex-service men. Nobody had invited Gray to be one of them, but there he was, swaggering about in uniform and medals, pushing to the side of the Prince himself, glorying in the adulation of brown eyes and blue. Later, when the Prince mailed to members of his Horse Show guard of honor photographs which he had autographed, Gray went out and bought a photograph of the Prince, forged the royal name with a flourish, and proceeded to display the "trophy" whenever he could invent an occasion.

But Gray's hour of strutting was drawing to a close. His wife died. The Wilsons, after helping him again and again for their daughter's sake, finally cut him off when he was arrested in New Orleans for impersonating an agent of the secret service in a "go" at blackmail. Mr. Wilson got him out of town and washed his hands of him.

Returning to New York, Gray again took a flyer at the "400." He was entertained by Mrs. Eben Takamini, wife of a wealthy Japanese importer, and several others. But with every passing day, he found more doors closed to him. Society, after so long a time, at last was "on" to the "tango lord" and the impostor war hero. He was only plain James Gray again, son of a cab driver. And so he disappeared from the limelight of the tango palaces and the tea toddlers.

There the story of James Gray, so far as America is concerned, ends. But it does not write "finis" to his career. Before he was sent from the courtroom to prison just the other day in England, the prosecutor revealed that James Gray was still the debonair swindler of susceptible society girls. His accuser this time was an Eastbourne belle who tearfully told the court all about his theft of her jewelry.

"He sent me," she wept, "this letter." The courtroom listened while it was read—only two lines, but the key to James Gray's whole career: "Needs must when the devil drives, dear. Please forgive—Necessity knows no law."

eloped. She thought she was becoming "Lady" Gray. Besides, she was very much in love. And, for a time, it appeared life was destined to be one long dream of happiness both for her husband and herself.

Gray gave up dancing. He "helped" his father-in-law in the management of his hotels. But his accounts got too frequently jumbled to suit Mr. Wilson's taste. Gray, on request, gave up hotel managing and began to demonstrate automobiles for the Chalmers company and other well known concerns. He was a dare-devil driver. His acquaintance in society by this time was extensive. Throughout the first years of the World War Gray entertained himself vastly by smashing up other people's cars and a few of his own bones. Those scars on his arms and shoulders he was later to use, like his prison term, to push himself up in the world.

Just before the United States entered the war, Gray enlisted in the Royal Air Forces in Canada. His knowledge of mechanics quickly won him a commission and he was sent to Kelly Field, Texas, along with Vernon Castle and other Canadian officers, to teach young Americans to fly as he had taught their sisters to tango.

Kelly Field was then one of the biggest social as well as military centres in America. The air service had attracted hundreds of young men from the country's "first families." Their mothers, wives and sisters moved on San Antonio in droves until a roster of the city's hotels read like a page from "Who's Who in Society."

Vernon Castle had always been more or less of a social lion. In his uniform he was doubly petted. And Gray, as his chum who was a British lord and a very swagger figure in the dapper dress of the Royal Air Service, at Kelly Field, cut into society like a knife into cream.

Gray made an enviable reputation as an instructor. He needed it, for just at this time Scotland Yard recognized his face in a photograph of his squadron as that of the man who had been sought since 1914 for swindling the War Office out of 30,000 pounds. Only his influential American friends and his record in the air service saved him and persuaded the British government to drop its charges and give him another chance to wipe out his prison blot.

Gray sailed for England with his squadron. Stationed at Hooton Park, he appeared set on the right road at last. But an old habit tripped him up. The owner of a motorcycle claimed Gray had rented it and sold it in another town, pitching a "party" with the proceeds of this little manipulation. The army authorities made a thorough investigation of his record. His career was so speckled with minor crimes that Gray was "permitted to resign."

That was before the armistice. The lion of Kelly Field who had gone overseas to become an ace, simply could not go dragging home cashiered and dishonored. Gray schemed shrewdly. He cabled his wife in a friend's name that he was dead. Then, one bright autumn morning, who should land in Hooton but "Lord" James Douglas Gray, hobbling on a stick, his chest flaunting the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Order, his body pitted with scars which no one thought for a moment to ascribe to vulgar, unheroic auto smashes.

Always Remember

A Jazz Opera for Mary Garden!

Irving Berlin, Ragtime Wizard, Says He Will Compose It and Miss Garden Says She Will Produce It "If She Likes It," and Even Sing the Star Role

"A jazz opera with syncopated sextettes, saxophones and slide trombones, and a tenor singing in the manner of Al Jolson, isn't just a jazz-mad dream. Irving Berlin has formally announced he intends to write it."—The Orchestra Conductor in the Nifty Straw Is Mr. Berlin.

A JAZZ OPERA, produced four or five years hence by the Chicago Opera Company, with a Southern setting, syncopated arias and sextettes, saxophones and slide trombones overshadowing stringed instruments, a tenor singing in the manner of Al Jolson, and a ballet that shimmies, isn't just the jazz dream of a jazz-mad jester. It's more than possible.

Irving Berlin, foremost composer of jazz in the world, has formally announced he intends to write it. Mary Garden, manager of the Chicago Opera Company, will produce it "if she likes it," and may sing the star role. And the musical intellig-form, American critics can do nothing less than listen seriously when Berlin quite as seriously declares he will write a jazz opera. And this is what Berlin says:

I am determined to do this as a serious composition, for I am convinced that eventually the great American opera will be written in that form, though some persons may now be able to trace vulgarity in it. As soon as my more commercial undertakings are completed, I mean to get at it. It is possible the scenes may be laid down South during the Civil War, where sentiment in America seems naturally to turn.

When Berlin capped this statement with much earnest attention from the McCormicks and the Gattis of America as they gave to Italy when Puccini stunned them with the announcement that he had chosen the American wild west as the setting for a new work.

No American would have thought of doing that, they said then. And they are saying now that no American, except Irving Berlin—unique in his jazzy pre-eminence—would or could think of do-gents, instead of laughing, are discussing the proposal with serious and almost eager interest.

Some of them ask, "Why not? Other nations have produced grand operas characteristically their own. America alone has no such distinction. What is the characteristic music of America? Is it not, after all, jazz? Then let's have America's own jazz opera!"

If, as they suggest, jazz may be a great new musical form, unrecognized as such by the pundits, scorned by the critics even as Wagner's "music dramas" at first were derided by the critics of his day; if jazz only waits the touch of a master hand to take its place with German and Italian opera as America's contribution to operatic art, then they agree Berlin is the logical man to undertake the experiment. Not even the scoffers laugh at Berlin. They admit he is a genuine artist in his own field—the Wagner of ragtime. Europe has applauded the genius of the man who wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Everybody's Doing It," "All by Myself," "You'd Be Surprised," "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," "Say It With Music," and a hundred other tunes that have been whistled around the world. Where Italian and Parisian musical journals hail him as the creator of an entirely original and interesting musical form, American critics can do nothing less than listen seriously when Berlin quite as seriously declares he will write a jazz opera. And this is what Berlin says:

Perhaps this horrid jazz, denounced from the pulpit, "resolved" against by city councils and club-women, barred here and banged there, yet hummed by flappers and fathers, hurdy-gurdyed on every street corner, played on a million phonographs, danced the length and breadth of America—perhaps, after all, its should-ershaking rhythm expresses the restless, seeking spirit of the nation as the melodic effluence of Italian opera or the conventional German idiom never could do. Thus, when Irving Berlin sets himself to compose a jazz opera, he will get at ing a jazz opera. But Berlin stands alone. Already he has demonstrated that opera and jazz are not too far apart for a bold venture to wed them. The occasion was several years ago. The subject was the justly famous sextette even or some other classic composer. So common did the practice become that the publishers of "Avalon" became defendants in a damage suit charging the rag was lifted note for note from "La Tosca."

But Berlin, frankly and deliberately, took the sextette and jazzed it by accentuating the off-beat, thereby making one of the biggest strikes of his career. It was simply syncopation applied to melody, and that is what Berlin says his method will be in writing his jazz opera. Properly speaking, he says, it will be "syncopated opera."

Colored men, colored men Who could, who could Sing that sextette he heard so beautiful.
Beautiful.
Soon he found some coons who understood the harmony; and they said: "We'll do it; go right to it!"

So he gave them parts and said: "The hard one is for me." They started tuning up their voices. Ephraim, at the old piano, struck a chord in fancy manner. Swaying—swaying, saying—saying: "Start to sing, never mind playing so." They began; they began To sing the sextette, Sing the sextette. And say, Let us say, let us say It was a bird. When Ephraim heard He shouted "Stop!" But the singers wouldn't stop They'd rather drop, rather drop Than stop! That sextette from Lucia so beautiful, beautiful.

Get us sing
Let us sing, let us sing,
Some ragtime op'ra,
Ragtime op'ra!
Let us sing,
Let us sing, let us sing

Some op'ra grand!
We understand
About a man,
Let us sing about a man
Called Ephraim,
Ephraim, Ephraim!
Who heard,
Who heard the sextette
From Lucia, so beautiful, so beautiful.
Ev'ry night you'd see him sitting in the gallery

At the op'ra house, quiet as a mouse.
He loved to hear Caruso sing his part so tenderly;
When he struck a high one, to the sky one,
Ephraim would begin to holler
"That note alone is worth a dollar!"
Take it!
Take it!
Make it! Make it!
Jump to the top of the house and shake it—soon,
Very soon, very soon!
This op'ra darkey,
Op'ra darkey,
He bought,
Yes he bought, yes he bought,
That score you bet!
That sweet sextette!
He hunted then,
He went out and hunted then
For colored men,

The WRONG FACE

By ISABEL OSTRANDER

At ten o'clock the following morning Sandy Cove smiled peacefully in the golden sunshine.

Within the decoriously shaded library of the Tudor house six persons were gathered: Mrs. Tudor herself, her niece Fay, Captain Warren, Kenneth Clayton, Sheriff Hulse, and Sergeant John Barry. The latter was seated at the long mahogany table in the center of the room with a sheet of notes spread out before him, and it was toward him that all eyes were directed. None appeared to notice the pasteboard boxes of various size which flanked the notes upon the table, and certain it was that none saw the sheriff and Barry himself.

"The sheriff and I have asked you to meet us all together," began Barry, pleasantly enough, "in order that we may tell you the result of our investigations of yesterday into the death of Miss Laura Tudor. It was murder, of course, but her death was never intended. You all know the method by which the crime was committed, but what I think that none of you know is that the carbon monoxide was meant not for her but for her cousin, and the fact that the two young ladies changed beds during the night was all that saved Miss Fay Tudor from the fate meted out to her. It rebounded upon an innocent victim—namely, the breast of the murderer. When I said that 'none of you know this, I meant none except one, for the guilty person is in this room at the present moment!'"

Fay sat clutching the arms of her chair tightly, but she made no outward move and her eyes never left the face of the detective. Clayton groined a sudden exclamation, but Captain Warren sat immovable, although a slight flush crept upon his cheek. Mrs. Tudor started to her feet with a swift cry.

"Please sit down, Mrs. Tudor," Barry's tones were sympathetic but firm. "I know how you must be feeling at this moment, but I shall not keep you long in suspense. "Sometime between three and four o'clock in the morning the murderer started to enter the room where the two young ladies were asleep, carrying in one hand the receptacle containing the carbon monoxide, and in the other an electric torch. This person dared not turn on the lights in the room for fear of waking one of the other of its occupants, in spite of the fact that they had both been heavily drugged. On the threshold, by a miracle of fate, perhaps, the electric torch went out."

"The low light at the farther end of the hall did not penetrate the fact of the detective. Clayton groined a sudden exclamation, but Captain Warren sat immovable, although a slight flush crept upon his cheek. Mrs. Tudor started to her feet with a swift cry.

"You can figure the rest out for yourself—the murderer's advance to the other bed; the insertion of the tube between the lips of the unconscious girl; the application of a bandage over her nostrils so that, perforce, she must breathe in the deadly gas; the departure from the room for a certain, well-calculated period; the return; removal of the mask from one face and bandage from the other; and hurried exit with the container."

"But the murderer had made the fatal mistake of trusting to the sense of touch alone. It was upon the wrong face that the mask was adjusted, upon the wrong face that the bandage was placed, and into the wrong lips that the tubing was put."

"Stop! I can bear no more!" The ringing cry came from Mrs. Tudor's white lips, and she started again from her chair.

"Why not?" Barry asked coolly. "Does the recital of your own crime bring it back too vividly before your mind? Woman, you are the murderer of your own daughter!"

A swift change had come over the countenance of Mrs. Tudor, a hideous, malevolent change which wiped from it the last semblance of youth and prettiness. She sat rigid, her blue eyes fixed with a sort of mocking mirth upon those of Barry.

"There was no thought of murder in your mind when your niece returned from Europe," Barry continued. "You felt secure in your coming happiness, but the mind of a woman in love is more keenly intuitive than at normal times, and within a few days you realized something which your niece did not dream of—that the man you loved and hoped to marry had turned from you. It was not Fay Tudor alone whom you hated then to the point of murder; it was the common enemy of all women of middle life, youth! youth!"

"You planned to kill her on the night of the dance, planned to stab her, I think, with the dagger from the hall arrangement of weapons which I found concealed in your room an hour ago, and to that end you slipped into the pantry when attention was engaged elsewhere and put into the hot milk, which the young ladies were to drink, six powders of the drug which Miss Fay had brought from Paris for insomnia, a triple dose for each, so that neither would awaken if you entered the room."

"You meant the affair to look like a suicide, but during the dance you learned from the lips of Professor Semynov of an easier method, and one practically safe from discovery, as you thought. You determined immediately upon its adoption, and that determination was crystallized by a conversation you overheard upon the little porch which opens off the breakfast room. You planned it down to the most minute detail, even to the use of the gas mask to save your daughter from harm. After your guests had gone you slipped down the stairs to the hall closet to obtain the keys to the garage from the pocket of your mother's coat which hung there. You found there, quite by accident, a pair of Miss Fay's cast-off slippers, which Louise hoped to have stretched for her own use, and you managed to put them on, with a lardy thought for possible footprints which might be left on the ground."

"You committed the crime, making the fatal mistake which I have already described and which you learned of in the morning when you heard the voice of the very girl you thought you had slain. I could find it in my heart to pity you at that moment were it not that you planned immediately to throw the crime upon the shoulders of Miss Fay. You recalled her slippers, which were still sopping wet, and you had them concealed beneath your negligee when you demanded admittance to the room where your daughter lay dead. You thrust them under the bed when you knew sobbing beside her body!"

"I suspected you first, when you appeared to desire to bribe me, but why you should have murdered your own daughter was beyond me until I learned by accident that she and her cousin had changed beds with each other during the night. Then all was clear to me."

"Yes! I did it!" Mrs. Tudor sprang from her chair and pointing wildly at Kenneth Clayton where he sat regarding her with eyes of unutterable loathing. "That man was mine, and this mix stole him deliberately from me. I meant her to get out of the way and then he would come back. There was madness in her eyes, madness in the cry which sprang from the room. Laurel! Laurel! God knows I would not have harmed you, my baby! But if I have lost all you shall not have him, Fay! I failed once, but I shall not fail now!"

With a sudden spring she was upon the girl, her fingers tightened with maniacal strength about her throat. Barry called to the waiting men outside and leaped forward to the aid of the sheriff, Clayton and Captain Warren. It took their combined strength to tear the crazed woman from her would-be victim.

"It's all over," Barry said. "Take her away, Joe; you and Yarell and the matron."

Late that autumn Sheriff Hulse paid his customary visit to Barry in town and much to the honest country official's embarrassment he was taken one evening to call upon the great Professor Semynov.

"S'pose you heard, Professor, that the Tudor house back in Sandy Cove burned down a month ago?" he asked. "Miss Fay—that is, Mrs. Warren—and the captain were away in California on their honeymoon and Mr. William Tudor is still in the hospital, where they're curing him of that shell shock or whatever it was happened to him. Funny how he came to be lost and reported dead, wasn't it?"

"Captain Warren saw him fall," replied the professor, "and after the attack went out to what he supposed to be the body of his friend. It must have been the body of some other young American officer."

"I heard a little about it when I called at the hospital to see young Tudor," he remarked. "He remembers that the Germans got him but he managed to escape. They must have stripped him of his credentials, but left the marks of his rank on him, for he was treated as an officer all the way thru."

There was a pause and then the sheriff observed:

"The Tudor woman never recovered her mind before her death." "It doesn't matter," Barry's tone was grave. "She escaped trial here but she has gone to a higher court before an infallible judge, and we know that her sentence will be a just one."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

THE DRAGON'S PLAN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"And now," cried Twelve Toes, "the dream of my life has come true."

Twelve Toes the Sorcerer, in the form of a gypsy woman, stood gazing at Nancy and Nick with a wicked gleam in his eyes.

"Now scrub," he cried. "Scrub and scrub for a thousand years. That stuff will never come off the floor of my cave, and the pieces of the Cloth of Dreams that you hold in your hands will never wear out. And you will not remember so much as your names as long as you hold it, where you live; the errand you were sent upon, or anything."

"As for me, I have your magic paper and the magic feather. No more messages will you get from the Fairy Queen, no more directions!"

All this time he was changing slowly back into his favorite form of a dragon, and now his words ended in a hiss.

Then something happened! A buckle on one of Nancy's goshes became loose and a gleam of green showed thru the flap.

Twelve Toes knew at once that he had the prize of all prizes, the Magic Green Shoes. Without a

Charm of Motherhood

THERE are many homes once childless that now are blessed with healthy, happy children, because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored the mother to a healthy, normal physical condition.

The following letters give the experience of two young women and prove the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Park Rapids, Minn.—"I have taken your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—when I was a girl for pains, and before and after my marriage. I now have a sweet little baby boy, and will send you his picture. My sisters also take your medicine and find it a great help, and I recommend it to those who suffer before their babies are born."—Mrs. WM. JOHNSON, Box 155, Park Rapids, Minn.

Kutztown, Pa.—"I wish every woman who wants children would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has done so much for me. My baby is almost a year old now and is the picture of health. She walked at eleven months and is trying to use her little tongue. She can say some words real nice. I am sending you her picture. I shall be thankful as long as I live that I found such a wonderful medicine for my troubles."—Mrs. CHARLES A. MERTZ, Kutztown, Pa.

These letters should induce others to try

COATS GIRLISH

NEW YORK.—Coats for girls are apt to be rather straight of line this season with straight roomy sleeves and tailored pockets. The wraps are loose and exceedingly girlish of line.

The coat shown, designed by Kneale and Perl, is a khaki kool, a favorite material for summer frocks and wraps. It turns the dust well and does not wrinkle, which is something Millady must consider in this day of riding and hiking.

Buttons are being used much for ornamentation. Most often they are in the model shown, of darker material than the coat itself, thus giving the garment a pleasing accent.

CAUTION OF THANKS

OBITUARY OF THEODORE H. RICHARDSON. Theodore H. Richardson was born in Spencer, Indiana, April 21, 1859. He spent his boyhood in Indiana. He with his parents moved to the state of Ohio in the autumn of 1880, and he lived in Lima, Ohio, where he has lived since that time. Death came Monday afternoon, March 15, at his late home in Spencer, where he had resided for the past 30 years. At the time of his death he was 61 years, 10 months and 12 days of age.

When a young man he united with the United Brethren church at Spencer, Indiana. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Spencer for the past 25 years. He has been a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Lima since he moved to this city.

Left to mourn is the faithful wife, a son, Clarence, of Lima, a daughter, Mrs. Elmer E. Miller, of Lima, and three sisters, Mrs. W. R. Harrison, of Lima, Ohio; Mrs. J. E. Richardson, of Lima, Ohio; and Mrs. J. E. Richardson, of Lima, Ohio.

His father, mother and two sisters and one brother preceded him in death. With the passing away of Mr. Richardson, Spencerville loses one of its early pioneer citizens of this city. While he was a man of his work will live and he has an example of the sturdy industry from which came.

Funeral services were held at the home, Thursday, March 15, 1922, in charge of Elder J. E. Miller, of the Trinity M. E. church, and interment was made in the Spencerville cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS—WE WISH to extend our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kind and helpful assistance during the illness and death of our dear friend, Mr. Richardson, and to the choir for their beautiful singing and for the many floral offerings.

Respectfully, R. C. Fether, Chairman for his frequent visits during his sickness and his consoling words.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Burns and family.

CARD OF THANKS—WE DESIRE to extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks for the sympathy, confidence and loving kindness shown us in our late sorrow and bereavement of husband and father.

Mrs. William Rhoda, Mrs. Oscar Free, Otto J. Rhoda.

WE WISH TO THANK OUR NEIGHBORS and friends for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Jane Smith, who died March 15, 1922, at her late home in Lima, Ohio.

John Smith, Mrs. Allen Brown, Mrs. Ed Schaffner.

To The Public

We have noticed the word "REALTOR" has been used very indiscriminately in connection with the Real Estate Dealers in Lima. We wish to call your attention to the fact that this is a "colored" word and limited to the use of members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which the Lima Real Estate Board is a member. Therefore no person, unless a member of the Real Estate Board affiliated with the National Association, has the right to use the name of "Realtor."

The word was coined, and is used, to give a distinct appellation to members of Real Estate Boards affiliated with the National Association, to distinguish them from non-members whose business ethics were not controlled by the "Golden Rule Code" of the National Association. The purpose was to get into the public mind the idea that a member of the local Real Estate Board has a standing which differs from that of the ordinary real estate man.

The object of the organization is to protect the public against unprincipled and irresponsible persons whose only object is to benefit themselves at the expense of the buyer or seller, either by fair or unfair means.

The following are the names of the Real Estate Dealers who are members of the Lima Board and any evidence of fraud or misrepresentation in the sale or handling of property, if reported to the Secretary, will have prompt attention and if he is found guilty will be expelled from the Board.

To The Public

We have noticed the word "REALTOR" has been used very indiscriminately in connection with the Real Estate Dealers in Lima. We wish to call your attention to the fact that this is a "coined" word and limited to the use of members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which the Lima Real Estate Board is a member. Therefore no person, unless a member of the Real Estate Board affiliated with the National Association, has the right to use the name of "Realtor."

The word was coined, and is used, to give a distinct appellation to members of Real Estate Boards affiliated with the National Association, to distinguish them from non-members whose business ethics were not controlled by the "Golden Rule Code" of the National Association. The purpose was to get into the public mind the idea that a member of the local Real Estate Board has a standing which differs from that of the ordinary real estate man.

The object of the organization is to protect the public against unprincipled and irresponsible persons whose only object is to benefit themselves at the expense of the buyer or seller, either by fair or unfair means.

The following are the names of the Real Estate Dealers who are members of the Lima Board and any evidence of fraud or misrepresentation in the sale or handling of property, if reported to the Secretary, will have prompt attention and if he is found guilty will be expelled from the Board.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

REAL ESTATE AND ITS REAL WORTH

WEADOCK AVE Six rooms, bath and basement, nice large lot and an elegant location. Can be purchased on time payments. A bargain at $3,350.

WEST ELM-ST. The best location for a home in west Lima. Corner lot, 75x150 on paved street, sidewalks all down, plenty of shade and priced right.

SUBURBAN Fronting on the Adgate Road near the Country Club. This is especially desirable, as it is away from the heavy traffic but still close to the car line and main thoroughfare. The drainage is good and this location is one of the coming suburban homesites. We have about 275 feet front left that can be purchased either in one piece or divided. If you are looking for a real suburban sight do not fail to investigate this.

FARM 80 acres two miles south of Lima on a good gravel road, all good soil, excellent drainage, good barn, five-room house and other out buildings. Will accept some Lima property in exchange. Price, $12,000.

SHORT SHAVINGS

James Porter, Lakewood-ave. radio enthusiast, was awakened late at night by a shouting in his room. He had left the switch of his radio instrument turned on, and someone in Chicago was trying to attract the attention of someone in Pittsburgh.

I. G. Maxwell, physical instructor, walked home bareheaded from a lunchroom because he couldn't find his hat. "When I got back to my office," he says, "I remembered that I wore a cap out, and instead of hanging it up in the restaurant I put it in my overcoat pocket."

Pete Hulsken in an incautious moment, promised a friend to carry a couple of books home for him. "I should have asked about the size of the books," he says. "I found they were bound volumes of newspapers."

Dick Judkins visited an insurance office and saw the office boy looking out of a second story window. "I had a typewriter on the window sill, cleaning it," said the boy. "It fell out and I think maybe it broke."

PRINCESS MARY IN ITALY
FLORENCE, Italy—Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles arrived here Saturday night on their honeymoon. The British and American consuls met them at the train and crowds cheered and showered them with flowers as they drove thru the streets. The couple will spend the remainder of their honeymoon at a beautiful villa near the lakes.

VISORS FOR HELMETS
PARIS.—French army experts are experimenting with a new form of helmet with movable visor. The visor is to be set over the face when the soldier is in action. Other times it is pushed up out of the way.
